Rackets Probers Call For Strategy Huddle Monday

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Senate Rackets Committee today called in its far-flung staff of field investigators for a big strategy conference.

Committee sources said the closed door meeting, starting Monday, will have an important bearing on next year's schedule of hearings on alleged racketeering and other malpractice in the labor-management field.

The investigators were called in from offices the committee maintains in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St.Louis, Detroit and Miami, and from other cities where they have been working on an on-and-off basis.

Hearings Slated

Charges and counter charges between Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers Union and the Kohler, Plumbing Fixture Co. in Wisconsin are slated tentatively for hearings next month. These will concern acts of violence in the still-unsettled four-year-old strike at Kohler.

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, said investigations of the operating engineers, carpenters and butchers unions also may be scheduled.

He said, too, that an important aspect of the coming year's inquiries will be an investigation of the conduct of some companies and the labor consultants they employed. He declined to give any details.

Kennedy said the meetings Mon-

Teachers Say Salary Scale Sub-Average

BATON ROUGE, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Louisiana Teachers' Assn. said today both teacher salaries and pupil costs in Louisiana are below the national averages.

The LTA, representing more than 20,000 teachers, school officials and school board members, has endorsed a two cent hike in the natural gas gathering tax to finance higher teacher pay.

The 1956 Legislature voted the higher salary schedule, then killed the tax to finance it. By switching surpluses, Gov. Earl Long's administration has provided half the pay raise through next June 30.

Quote Figures

The LTA, quoting figures compiled by the National Education Assn., said the 1957-58 average salary of the instructional staff—principals, supervisors, special instructors and classroom teachers—for Louisiana was estimated at $4,585.

The national average was $4,650, the LTA said, adding Louisiana currently ranks 21st in salaries paid its instructional staff, a decline from its 1956-57 ranking of 19th.

Average instructional salaries in the present school year range from the low of $2,650 in Mississippi to $5,925 in California, high for the nation.

Louisiana's classroom teacbhers also rank 21st in salary, said the LTA, with an average annual salary of $4,450. The national average is $4,520.

Again, Mississippi is low in classroom teacher salaries with an average of $2,525 and California is high with $5,750.

The LTA noted these were statewide averages, while salaries vary widely in different areas of a state.

The LTA estimated Louisiana will spend 176 million dollars this year for operaton of public elementary and secondary schools, averaging $303 per pupil in average daily attendance.

"Twenty-six states and the District of Columbia will spend more per pupil this year than Louisiana," the LTA said, "and the average for the nation is estimated at $320."

The highest cost per pupil is $482 in New York state, with Mississippi again bringing up the rear with only $158 per pupil.

The LTA noted, "Only eight states had a higher percentage of elementary teachers with the generally accepted minimum of four years of college preparation than did Louisiana."

While a number of states still license elementary school teachers with less than four years college work, the LTA said, "since 1947, no Louisiana teachers has been given permanent certification except on the basis of four or more years of college preparation."

United Fund Goal Still Not Reached, Officials Report

A total of $201,860 in contributions has been received in the United Givers Fund drive here, it was reported yesterday. This is 97 per cent of the goal set earlier this year.

With the fund $6,131 short of the goal, drive officials urged persons to send checks or pledges to the United Fund, P. O. Box 900, Monroe.

There are 11 health, welfare and character building organizations that are depending on the generosity of the people of Ouachita Parish for operating for 1958, United Fund officials said.

"If you have not joined the United Givers, please call FA 5-3869 and ask that a pledge card be sent to you," they urged.

"Remember, there are eleven drives consolidated into one so give enough for all."

Red Prosecutor Says Drive To 'Last For Years'

BUDAPEST, Dec. 21 (AP) — Prosecutor Geza Szenasi pledged today that pursuit of "counterrevolutionaries" who took part in last year's anti-Russian uprising would continue for years. He did not say how many.

Szenasi told the year's last session of Parlament.

The prosecution of counter-revolutionary cases is not yet at an end. There has been talk that the campaign of punishment should be followed by a campaign of mercy. Some also say that those sentenced will not serve half their terms. I agree with those who do not hold this opinion, who feel that the prosecutions should not be ended.

No Hope

"After martial law was repealed some people expected that there would be a lessening of rigor. These expectations are without real foundation. If the years disclose those who committed counterrevolutionary crimes, we will strike at them the blows they deserve.

"Pursuit of the spirit of appeasement could be extremely harmful. The slogan 'let us make peace among us' is a siren song. Such lukewarmness favors the enemy."

Judges Fired

Chief Justice Jozsef Domonkos disclosed in another speech that more than half his judges had been fired for refusing to join summary courts set up after the rebellion was crushed. It was not immediately clear if he was referring to the Supreme Court alone or to all judges. The line between courts is a vague one from the Western viewpoint, with lower court judges frequently being called to serve on the supreme bench.

The summary courts were empowered to impose death sentences, to be executed in 24 hours without appeal, for such offenses as entering a factory to urge a strike. Laymen sat on these courts beside professional judges.

An authoritative Communist source said today the case of Maj. Gen. Pal Maleter, rebel hero of the 1956 uprising, had not yet

Churches Set Special Yule Observances

Churches in the Twin Cities are planning special Yuletide observances today, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, with seasonal music and candlelighting services highlighting most of the meetings.

The First Methodist Church will observe a special Christmas service today at 10:50 a.m., with a presentation of the "Messiah" scheduled for tonight at 7:30 .The church choir will be directed in this presentaion by Eloya Fominaya, a member of the music faculty at Northeast State College.

A candlelighting ceremony will also be held at the evening service, and church leaders said they hoped the ceremony would become traditional.

At 11:30 p.m. Christmas Eve, members of the First Methodist will have a communion service, and a family worship program is set for broadcast over a local radio station at 10:45 a.m. Christmas Day.

A program tonight at 7 o'clock is planned by the First Assembly of God Church, West Monroe, with members of the Sunday School classes participating. Treats for the children will be distributed at the morning service today.

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church will observe midnight mass Christmas Eve, with masses also set for Christmas Day at 7 a.m., 8:30 a.m., 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Blessing of the crib will precede the midnight service, and the school choir is to sing

Special Christmas music is to be rendered by the choir at the First Presbyterian Church this morning, with a candlelight communion service scheduled for 11 p.m. Christmas Eve. The choir will also present special numbers, under the direction of Lee Fiser, at the communion service.

Family Service

A Christmas family service is being planned for 5:30 p.m. today at St. Paul's Methodist Church on Lexington Avenue, featuring the children's and youths' choirs. A living tableau will depict the Yuletide story. The

Police Hunting Child, Believed Kidnap Victim

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21 (AP)—Police searched today for an 11-week-old girl, feared kidnaped by two women.

The missing child is Caroline Elizabeth Horton, taken from the family home yesterday afternoon supposedly to be entered in a baby contest.

Police Lt. Don Scott said Mrs. Dorothy Horton, 28, reported a woman saw her daughter at the Public Health Building Wednesday and suggested she be entered in a forthcoming baby contest of the Temple Baptist church.

Mrs. Horton gave her telephone number to the woman, who called herself Mrs. Johnson, and was contacted the next day by a woman who identified herself as a Mrs. Miller.

By prearrangement the second woman picked up the child shortly before 1 p.m. yesterday. She drove away in a cab, saying she would return at 5 p.m.

When the woman did not return, Mrs. Horton contacted police.

Cab driver Boris Parfenoff told police the woman had him drive to St. Dominic's church and had told him the infant was her own.

Priests at the church said they had not seen the woman and child, and Temple Baptist church had no baby contest.

POLICE POST REWARD

Crossett's 'Meanest Man' Still At Large

CROSSET, Ark. (Special) — "Crossett's Meanest Man for 1957" was still on the loose last night.

Crossett Mayor Vaskell Carter gave the title to the unknown party who stole and butchered a pet deer from the Crossett Zoo.

Angry police officers have chipped in a $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of the culprit.

Raised As Pet

Dash, the two-year-old single-point buck, had known nothing but kindness all his life. Charles Menser of Lake Village had picked the animal up in his soybean patch and raised him as a pet.

When the deer grew too big to keep, Menser found a home for him in the Crossett Zoo, because he knew if he released the animal into the woods, it would be killed by some hunter as it walked up to be petted.

Game Warden W. A. Kelly said someone apparently hit Dash on the head and dragged him under a fence to an automobile Thursday night. Dash's horns and a quantity of blood, indicating the animal had been butchered, were found beside a dirt road two miles from Crossett.

Five other deer who were nearby were not harmed.

Move To Get Science Dept. Gains Ground

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—A Democratic move to pull together all of the government's research and development activities under a new Department of Science appeared to be gaining ground today.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said a study begun by the staff of the Senate Government Operations Committee, before the Russian Sputnik launchings, had "disclosed a crying need" for centralized control of space weapons and other developments.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in a separate interview that a single agency, whose head would be responsible only to the President, should supervise the race to catch up with Russia in missiles and satellites.

Kefauver Backs

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), who has plugged for creation of a Science Department, is expected to ask the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, of which he is a member, to embrace this proposal in continuing inquiry into the rocketry program.

Humphrey said a Government Operations subcommittee he heads will begin public hearings in January on information it has compiled in cooperation with the National Science Foundation on the proposed consolidation of basic and applied scientific research and development work.

Piecemeal

"The government has been doing scientific and technological work on a piecemeal basis," Humphrey said. "Science has been the orphan when limited funds were passed around in many of the departments.

"We need a continuing full-scale program to pull ourselves ahead of the Russians. This can't be done by the emergency appointment of scientific advisers. We need a man of Cabinet rank to get in there fighting every day for science."

Humphrey said the question of whether the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) should be included in such a department was one he was not prepared to pass on now. But he said the AEC's scientific research work could be correlated with that of the proposed new department.

Mansfield said he thinks scientific research represents an "undue burden" on the military services which are responsible for use of the weapons scientists develop.

New Vanguard Being Prepared, Newsmen Report

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP)—Signs of limited activity around the Vanguard rocket-launching complex hinted today that the Navy well may best the Army in the race to put up America's first satellite.

Observers detected with binoculars what looked like a bit of the white nose of a giant rocket, peeping out over the top of the fixed launch stand and the roll-away gantry crane or working platform for the Navy vehicle.

But since their view was from the beaches some miles south of the highly secret Missile Test Center, they could not be sure of their find.

For the past two weeks a long slender arm of the Vanguard launch tower has extended out of the top of the structure, angled off to the right, much in the manner of a stirring stick leaning out of the top of a pop bottle.

Today, for the first time, the arm was leaning over to the left, apparently having been shifted overnight.

2 Burn To Death In Orleans House

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—A fire in a multi-family apartment house today at nearby Marrero in Jefferson Parish burned two persons two death.

Fire Chief Philip Panepinto said eight other persons fled to safety as the pre-dawn blaze destroyed the structure.

Panepinto identified the dead as Andock Pejeaud, 49, and Dolores Williams, about 20, both Negroes. Their bodies were found in ashes of the building.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

HAPPY CHRISTMAS FOR THEM — Mrs. Joseph Schow, thrilled over a wonderful Christmas present, hovers over her daughter, Maurine, 12, as they arrive at Los Angeles yesterday from Salt Lake City en route to their home in San Diego. Maurine, who has been unconscious much of the time since July 1, recognized her mother two weeks ago and said "Mama!" Asks World Parley On Disarming

MOSCOW, Dec. 21 (AP)—Soviet leaders challenged the West today to sign a no-war agreement and proposed an international conference on disarmament. They scorned NATO's call for a foreign ministers' conference.

Before applauding members in a joint session of Parliament, Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev dared the West to sign a no-war agreement and decide the future "on the basis of which of our two systems gives its people the best lives."

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko announced the Soviet Union "calls for a special session of the United Nations or an international conference on disarmament." He said this could pave the way for an East-West summit meeting again being urged by Soviet leaders.

Gromyko Speaks

As for the offer of the NATO conference decided upon in Paris this week to discuss disarmament at the foreign ministers' level, Gromyko said:

"We are in fact invited to sit again at a conference table with the same NATO members with whom we have patiently negotiated until now, and to launch again into sterile negotiations which do not advance the cause of disarmament one whit."

The West at such a meeting would put forward terms that the Soviet Union cannot accept "because they are in no way conducive to disarmament," Gromyko said.

"The Western powers would not fail to accuse the Soviet Unian of refusing to compromise or sabotaging the agreement and thus mislead public opinion. Judge for yourselves. Can anything useful be expected of a foreign ministers' conference thus composed?"

Gromyko said the NATO communique's call for a foreign ministers' conference was included "because of the difficult situation in which the guiding spirits of the arms race and the cold war have found themselves."

Secretary of State Dulles' "touch is readily apparent in this statement," he said. Gromyko added that Dulles needed "this outwardly conciliator note to mislead the peoples who really want an end to the arms race and the cold war."

The Parliament closed a three-day budget session by endorsing Khrushchev's and Gromyko's proposals and adopting a resolution seconding Premier Nikoli Bulganin's recent letters to other governments.

The resolution said the United States, Britain and Russia should agree to bar use of atomic and hydrogen bombs and halt all nuclear tests New Year's Day. It also endorsed the idea of a zone

Fair And Warmer Seen For District

Fair and warmer weather is in store for north Louisianians today, according to the forecaster.

The unseasonably mild period is expected to continue through Monday.

Yesterday's temperatures ranged from a low of 33 to a warm 66.

Arkansas will have much the same weather as Louisiana today, but widely scattered showers are predicted for tomorrow.

Highest temperatures expected for today are 65 to 62.

MASS THERAPY LOOMS

LSU Discovers Parasite Cure

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Louisiana State University today announced discovery of the first successful oral treatment of several major intestinal parasites affecting over 350 million persons.

In an article for the Journal of the American Medical Assn., Dr. J. C. Swartzwelder, professor of parasitology, and Dean William W. Frye of the LSU medical school said the drug, dithiazanine, had been tested successfully in 400 patients.

"The drug is so simple to administer and so effective and nontoxic that it may be used for mass therapy in heavily infected populations such as institutions, as soon as it is available in quantity," Dr. Swartzwelder said.

He said the drug destroyed four parasites, trichuris trichiura, commonly known as "whipworm," strongyloides stercoralis, ascaris lumbricoides or "large roundworms" and enterobius vermiculars or "pinworm."

In many other cases, he added, dithiazanine successfully attacked "hookworm."

Other drugs have been successfully used against ascaris and enterobius, the scientists reported, but dithiazanine is the first effective oral threapy capable of eliminating all four.

In some cases, they said, the new drug has saved lives in the

Police Hunting Child, Believed Kidnap Victim

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21 (AP)—Police searched today for an 11-week-old girl, feared kidnaped by two women.

The missing child is Caroline Elizabeth Horton, taken from the family home yesterday afternoon supposedly to be entered in a baby contest.

Police Lt. Don Scott said Mrs. Dorothy Horton, 28, reported a woman saw her daughter at the Public Health Building Wednesday and suggested she be entered in a forthcoming baby contest of the Temple Baptist church.

Mrs. Horton gave her telephone number to the woman, who called herself Mrs. Johnson, and was contacted the next day by a woman who identified herself as a Mrs. Miller.

By prearrangement the second woman picked up the child shortly before 1 p.m. yesterday. She drove away in a cab, saying she would return at 5 p.m.

When the woman did not return, Mrs. Horton contacted police.

Cab driver Boris Parfenoff told police the woman had him drive to St. Dominic's church and had told him the infant was her own.

Priests at the church said they had not seen the woman and child, and Temple Baptist church had no baby contest.

Move To Get Science Dept. Gains Ground

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—A Democratic move to pull together all of the government's research and development activities under a new Department of Science appeared to be gaining ground today.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said a study begun by the staff of the Senate Government Operations Committee, before the Russian Sputnik launchings, had "disclosed a crying need" for centralized control of space weapons and other developments.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont), assisant Senate Democratic leader, said in a separate interview that a single agency, whose head would be responsible only to the President, should supervise the race to catch up with Russia in missiles and satellites.

Kefauver Backs

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), who has plugged for creation of a Science Department, is expected to ask the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, of which he is a member, to embrace this proposal in continuing inquiry into the rocketry program.

Humphrey said a Government Operations subcommittee he heads will begin public hearings in January on information it has compiled in cooperation with the National Science Foundation on the proposed consolidation of basic and applied scientific research and development work.

Piecemeal

"The government has been doing scientific and technological work on a piecemeal basis," Humphrey said. "Science has been the orphan when limited funds were passed around in many of the departments.

"We need a continuing full-scale program to pull ourselves ahead of the Russians. This can't be done by the emergency appointment of scientific advisers. We need a man of Cabinet rank to get in there fighting every day for science."

Humphrey said the question of whether the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) should be included in such a department was one he was not prepared to pass on now. But he said the AEC's scientific research work could be correlated with that of the proposed new department.

Mansfield said he thinks scientific research represents an "undue burden" on the military services which are responsible for use of the weapons scientists develop.

New Vanguard Being Prepared, Newsmen Report

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP)—Signs of limited activity around the Vanguard rocket-launching complex hinted today that the Navy well may best the Army in the race to put up America's first satellite.

Observers detected with binoculars what looked like a bit of the white nose of a giant rocket, peeping out over the top of the fixed launch stand and the rollaway gantry crane or working platform for the Navy vehicle.

But since their view was from the beaches some miles south of the highly secret Missile Test Center, they could not be sure of their find.

For the past two weeks a long slender arm of the Vanguard launch tower has extended out of the top of the structure, angled off to the right, much in the manner of a stirring stick leaning out of the top of a pop bottle.

Today, for the first time, the arm was leaning over to the left, apparently having been shifted overnight.

2 Burn To Death In Orleans House

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—A fire in a multi-family apartment house today at nearby Marrero in Jefferson Parish burned two persons two death.

Fire Chief Philip Panepinto said eight other persons fled to safety as the pre-dawn blaze destroyed the structure.

Panepinto identified the dead as Andock Pejeaud, 49, and Dolores Williams, about 20, both Negroes. Their bodies were found in ashes of the building.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

Paul Chapman, District FHA Official, Dies

Fair And Warmer Seen For District

Fair and warmer weather is in store for north Louisianians today, according to the forecaster. The unseasonably mild period is expected to continue through Monday.

Yesterday's temperatures ranged from a low of 33 to a warm 66.

Arkansas will have much the same weather as Louisiana today, but widely scattered showers are predicted for tomorrow.

Highest temperatures expected for today are 65 to 62.

MASS THERAPY LOOMS

LSU Discovers Parasite Cure

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Louisiana State University today announced discovery of the first successful oral treatment of several major intestinal parasites affecting over 350 million persons.

In an article for the Journal of the American Medical Assn., Dr. J. C. Swartzwelder, professor of parasitology, and Dean William W. Frye of the LSU medical school said the drug, dithiazanine, had been tested successfully in 400 patients.

"The drug is so simple to administer and so effective and nontoxic that it may be used for mass therapy in heavily infected populations such as institutions, as soon as it is available in quantity," Dr. Swartzwelder said.

He said the drug destroyed four parasites, trichuris trichiura, commonly known as "whipworm," strongyloides stercoralis, ascaris lumbricoides or "large roundworms" and enterobius vermicularis or "pinworm."

In many other cases, he added, dithiazanine successfully attacked "hookworm."

Other drugs have been successfully used against ascaris and enterobius, the scientists reported, but dithiazanine is the first effective oral threapy capable of eliminating all four.

In some cases, they said, the new drug has saved lives in the Observance

Today in the churches of the Twin Cities, Christmas will be observed, for this time the real day comes in the middle of the week.

Elaborate programs will be held in all churches to observe this great day. The great oratorio "Messiah," that has come down through the ages, will be presented in several local churches today. In downtown Monroe, the First Methodist Church will present this wonderful musical production. Elroy Fominaya, assistant professor of music at Northeast State College, and director of music for the Methodist church, will direct the presentation.

The choir of this church has been busy with rehearsals on

Mother Of Six Killed In Crash

MANDEVILLE, La., Dec. 21 (AP)—An auto smashed into the side of a freight train here last night, killing Mrs. Billie Jean Black, 32-year-old mother of six young children.

Coroner H. E. Gautreaux said Mrs. Black and her husband, Irving, 49, moved here lass than two weeks ago from Fort Collins, Colo. The children ranged in age from one to nine years.

Officers said Mrs. Black was alone in the auto when it hit a gondola car of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad train.

POLICE POST REWARD

Crossett's 'Meanest Man' Still At Large

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — "Crossett's Meanest Man for 1957" was still on the loose last night.

Crossett Mayor Vaskell Carter gave the title to the unknown party who stole and butchered a pet deer from the Crossett Zoo.

Angry police officers have chipped in a $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of the culprit.

Raised As Pet

Dash, the two-year-old single-point buck, had known nothing but kindness all his life. Charles Menser of Lake Village had picked the animal up in his soybean patch and raised him as a pet.

When the deer grew too big to keep, Menser found a home for him in the Crossett Zoo, because he knew if he released the animal into the woods, it would be killed by some hunter as it walked up to be petted.

Game Warden W. A. Kelly said someone apparently hit Dash on the head and dragged him under a fence to an automobile Thursday night. Dash's horns and a quantity of blood, indicating the animal had been butchered, were found beside a dirt road two miles from Crossett.

Five other deer who were nearby were not harmed.

GOODFELLOWS REPORT

Hearts And Purses Back Worthy Cause

The "White Elephant" sale of the Monroe Rotary Club, an annual entertainment feature, was recently held, with the money collected going into the Goodfellows fund.

This money, along with other generous donations, has brought the total to $3,726.09.

With three days left to add to this sum, Goodfellows will be striving to hit the $4,000 mark, that the needy of this area may enjoy a happy holiday season.

Goodfellows is grateful to all those who have given, and wants to remind those of you who haven't that there is still time to brighten some home this Christmas. Just send your contribution to Goodfellows, News Star—World, Monroe, La.

Rain In District 3 Heavier Than '56's

JENA (Special) — Rainfall for the first 11 months of 1957 already has far exceeded the total recorded during the 12 months of 1956 in the five - parish district 3 of the Louisiana forestry commission, according to figures released this week by Ed Burns, district forester from the Olla headquarters.

"And we still have the month of December to be recorded this year," Mr. Burns added.

Leading the district this year, for the first 11 months, is Winn parish, with a total of 77.90 inches of rain recorded at the Winona tower, compared to 45.77 inches of rain recorded there last year for the full 12 months.

Other figures for the district include 76.47 inches at Mount Pleasant tower in Caldwell parish, compared to 48.31 inches last year; 51.09 inches at Aimwell tower in Catahoula parish, compared to 48.32 inches for all of 1956; a total of 64.49 inches at Antonia tower in Grant parish, compared to 47.95 inches of rain for 1956, and 70.33 inches of rain recorded to date at Belah tower in LaSalle parish, compared to 47.46 inches of rain listed for the parish in 1956.

The "wet" months for 1956 in the district were February and December. This year, February was comparatively "dry" and the December figures aren't in yet. However, the slight loss in February of this year, compared to February of last year, has been more than offset by "wet" April and September and "wet, wet, wet" June and November.

LaSalle parish, with 9.58 inches of rain in February, 1956, was second wettest in the district. This dropped to 2.66 for February of this year. However, April, 1956, listed only 125 inches of rain, compared to 8.38 for this year and September, 1956 had only .39 inches of rain, compared to 8.34 inches this year.

Another "typical" parish in the district was Catahoula. February, 1956, listed 9.35 inches of rain, compared to a drop to 3.80 inches this year. But April, 1956, with 1.27 inches, increased to 7.14 inches this year and September, 1956, with only .91 inches, zoomed to 4.59 inches this year.

Comparative figures for the first 11 months of 1956 and 1957, through Nov. 30 of each year listed:

Caldwell parish, 38.09 and 76.47; Catahoula parish, 39.26 and 61.09; Grant parish, 38.92 and 64.49; LaSalle parish, 38.16 and 70.33, and Winn parish, 39.88 and 77.90.

Rotary Club Holds Annual Yule Party

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —The "Story of the Fourth Wise Man" was beautifully and impressively told by Reverend William E. Clark at the regular weekly meeting of the Lake Providence Rotary Club. An unusually large crowd was in attendance for the special Christmas program, which was under the direction of John O. Nelson, program chairman.

The meeting room of the club was decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and a special treat, enjoyed by those present, was the accompaniment for the singing of Christmas songs, with Mrs. Jack Holt at the organ and Miss LaVerne Davis at the piano.

Jingle Bells was sung for the opening number, followed by the invocation given by Rev. Clark, pastor of the Lake Providence Presbyterian Church.

$1,560 Collected

President Carl A. Kelly presided during the business meeting. He announced that a total of $1,560 had been collected so far in the annual Boy Scout drive, sponsored by the Rotary Club. Special commendation was given to James S. Green for his outstanding work in this endeavor. Dr. Kelly also reported that the club would not meet during the coming two weeks of the holiday season, but would begin their regular weekly meetings again on January 8th.

John Nelson, program chairman, presented Reverend Clark who told the ever-fascinating story of the Fourth Wise Man, and his life-long search for the Christ child. At the conclusion of his talk, Miss Laverne Davis sang "The Lord's Prayer," with Mrs. Jack Holt accompanying her at the organ.

A representative of Hewitt Music Company of Monroe, through whose courtesy the organ had been loaned, entertained the Rotarians and guests with a medley of Christmas carols on the organ.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of "America."

106 Ouachita Students At LSU

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Students from Ouachita Parish attending Louisiana State University this year total 106, it was announced by LSU Registrar Albert Clary. The figure includes 72 men and 4 women. Twenty of the students are engaged in graduate and professional work.

Final registration figures for the fall semester at LSU show a total enrollment of 9,726, an all-time enrollment record for the Baton Rouge campus and an increase of about 800 students in the past two years.

All of Louisiana's 64 parishes are represented in the student body. LSU also has more than 900 students from 40 other states and 40 students from 5 foreign countries.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

OPELOUSAS—UP—Benton Brouillette has filed a $14,400 suit in St. Landry district court for damages incurred in an automobile accident on July 5, near here. Named as defendants were Gabriel Jardauin and the Bankers Fire and Marine Insurance Co. Brouillette claimed Jardauin ran a stop sign and collided with a truck driven by Jennings Sayer, one of the plaintiff's employes.

Exhibit On Atomic Energy To Tour La.

BATON ROUGE (Special)—The people of Louisiana will soon have the opportunity to get a clear, concise picture of our nation's "atoms for peace" programs right in their home towns. The occasion will be the showing of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's newest traveling exhibit in 55 cities throughout the state beginning January 7.

The "Atoms for Peace" mobile unit is shown under the national sponsorship of the National University Extension Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the schedules for the showings in Louisiana are being arranged by the LSU General Extension Division and the state Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The new "Atoms for Peace" mobile unit is one of the latest developed by the commission to acquaint the general public with its many programs concerned with the peaceful applications of the great new force, atomic energy, to all aspects of modern life.

The mobile unit is a self-contained, walk - through exhibit, housed in a bus - type vehicle, enabling it to be shown at different points in each city in the course of a day. In a relatively short period of time, a visitor walking through the exhibit obtains a simple, informative picture of our country's efforts to further the ideal expressed in President Eisenhower's speech before the United Nations General Assembly in December 1953: "To find the way by which the miraculous inventiveness of man shall not be dedicated to his death, but consecrated to his life."

Visit Cities

During its tour of Louisiana, the mobile unit will visit the following cities in January: Lake Providence, 7, 8; Delhi, 9; Rayville, 1; Winnsboro, 11; Columbia, 13; Monroe, 14, 15, 16; Sterlington, 16; Bastrop, 17, 18; Marion and Farmerville, 21; Ruston, 22, 23, 24; Arcadia, 25; Homer, 27; Springhill, 28; Plain Dealing and Vivian, 29; Shreveport, 30, 31, and Feb. 1.

The February schedule is as follows: Bossier City, 4, 5; Mansfield, 6; Natchitoches, 7; Many, 8; Leesville, 10; DeRidder, 11; Lake Charles, 12, 13; Jennings, 14; Crowley, 15; Lafayette, 18, 19; New Iberia, 20; Franklin, 21; Berwick and Morgan City, 22; Thibodaux, 24; Houma, 25; New Orleans, 26, 27, 28.

During March the exhibit will be at the following places: Metairie, 1; Slidell, 4; Covington, 5; Bogalusa, 6, 7; Amite, 8; Hammond, 10; Norco, 11; Gramercy and Lutcher, 12; Donaldsonville and White Castle, 13; Plaquemine, 14; Port Allen, 15; Baton Rouge, 18, 19; New Roads, 20; Opelousas, 21; Oakdale, 22; Alexandria, 24, 25; Winnfield, 26; Jonesboro, 27; and Minden, 28.

There is no admission charge for the exhibit, and every member of the public, young or old, is invited to visit it during its tour of the state.

The heart of the display is a series of panels which simply but graphically cover virtually the entire field of nuclear energy — from a description of the nature of the atom, through the mining and refining of radioactive ores, to the utilization of nuclear reactors in producing electric power.

The display includes examples of the use of radioisotopes — the so - called "tracer atoms" — in medicine, agriculture, industry, and other fields of research and development. Several of the panels are animated, operated by pushbuttons by the visitor himself. The exhibit contains actual radioactive ore samples, simulated fuel elements, reactor control rods, radiation - detection instruments, and other "live" materials.

Columbia F&AM Has Installation

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Columbia Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 164, met last night and installed the officers who were elected on December 2 for the coming calendar year.

The new officers are:

O. A. Van Landingham, Worshipful Master; W. E. McLemore, Senior Warden; Joe Conklin, Junior Warden; A. D. Bridger, treasurer; Erby Meredith, secretary; J. D. Kitchingham, chaplain; C. V. Poole, senior deacon; Willie Stamper, junior deacon; Grady Warford, master of ceremonies; Vick Wiles, senior steward; A. W. Baum, junior steward, and Webb Smith, tyler.

Following the installation ceremonies, the Masons staged their annual Christmas banquet, featuring turkey as the main course.

SCHOOL MISHAP

EROS (Special) — Jimmy Frasier, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Frasier and a member of the eighth grade at Eros High School, is recovering from a broken arm suffered in a fall at the school Thursday.

Young Frasier, a basketball player, fell on the school's gymnasium floor and broke his left arm.

COMFORTING ACCIDENT VICTIMS—Anxiety shows on the faces of two women bending over blanket-covered brothers injured in an automobile accident. One woman is mother of the boys. In foreground beside Kurt Bell, 6, is Mrs. Paul Weeks. In background kneeling beside Terry Bell, 16, is the boys' mother, Mrs. Rosemary Weeks. The car in which the boys were riding hit a utility pole. Both suffered head injuries. (AP Wirephoto.)

Rotary Club Holds Annual Yule Party

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —The "Story of the Fourth Wise Man" was beautifully and impressively told by Reverend William E. Clark at the regular weekly meeting of the Lake Providence Rotary Club. An unusually large crowd was in attendance for the special Christmas program, which was under the direction of John O. Nelson, program chairman.

The meeting room of the club was decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and a special treat, enjoyed by those present, was the accompaniment for the singing of Christmas songs, with Mrs. Jack Holt at the organ and Miss LaVerne Davis at the piano.

$1,560 Collected

President Carl A. Kelly presided during the business meeting. He announced that a total of $1,560 had been collected so far in the annual Boy Scout drive, sponsored by the Rotary Club. Special commendation was given to James S. Green for his outstanding work in this endeavor. Dr. Kelly also reported that the club would not meet during the coming two weeks of the holiday season, but would begin their regular weekly meetings again on January 8th.

John Nelson, program chairman, presented Reverend Clark who told the ever-fascinating story of the Fourth Wise Man, and his life-long search for the Christ child. At the conclusion of his talk, Miss Laverne Davis sang "The Lord's Prayer," with Mrs. Jack Holt accompanying her at the organ.

A representative of Hewitt Music Company of Monroe, through whose courtesy the organ had been loaned, entertained the Rotarians and guests with a medley of Christmas carols on the organ.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of "America."

106 Ouachita Students At LSU

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Students from Ouachita Parish attending Louisiana State University this year total 106, it was announced by LSU Registrar Albert Clary. The figure includes 72 men and 4 women. Twenty of the students are engaged in graduate and professional work.

Final registration figures for the fall semester at LSU show a total enrollment of 9,726, an all-time enrollment record for the Baton Rouge campus and an increase of about 800 students in the past two years.

All of Louisiana's 64 parishes are represented in the student body. LSU also has more than 900 students from 40 other states and 40 students from 5 foreign countries.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

OPELOUSAS—UP—Benton Brouillette has filed a $14,400 suit in St. Landry district court for damages incurred in an automobile accident on July 5, near here. Named as defendants were Gabriel Jardauin and the Bankers Fire and Marine Insurance Co. Brouillette claimed Jardauin ran a stop sign and collided with a truck driven by Jennings Sayer, one of the plaintiff's employes.

Exhibit On Atomic Energy To Tour La.

BATON ROUGE (Special)—The people of Louisiana will soon have the opportunity to get a clear, concise picture of our nation's "atoms for peace" programs right in their home towns. The occasion will be the showing of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's newest traveling exhibit in 55 cities throughout the state beginning January 7.

The "Atoms for Peace" mobile unit is shown under the national sponsorship of the National University Extension Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the schedules for the showings in Louisiana are being arranged by the LSU General Extension Division and the state Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The new "Atoms for Peace" mobile unit is one of the latest developed by the commission to acquaint the general public with its many programs concerned with the peaceful applications of the great new force, atomic energy, to all aspects of modern life.

The mobile unit is a self-contained, walk - through exhibit, housed in a bus - type vehicle, enabling it to be shown at different points in each city in the course of a day. In a relatively short period of time, a visitor walking through the exhibit obtains a simple, informative picture of our country's efforts to further the ideal expressed in President Eisenhower's speech before the United Nations General Assembly in December 1953: "To find the way by which the miraculous inventiveness of man shall not be dedicated to his death, but consecrated to his life."

Visit Cities

During its tour of Louisiana, the mobile unit will visit the following cities in January: Lake Providence, 7, 8; Delhi, 9; Rayville, 1; Winnsboro, 11; Columbia, 13; Monroe, 14, 15, 16; Sterlington, 16; Bastrop, 17, 18; Marion and Farmerville, 21; Ruston, 22, 23, 24; Arcadia, 25; Homer, 27; Springhill, 28; Plain Dealing and Vivian, 29; Shreveport, 30, 31, and Feb. 1.

The February schedule is as follows: Bossier City, 4, 5; Mansfield, 6; Natchitoches, 7; Many, 8; Leesville, 10; DeRidder, 11; Lake Charles, 12, 13; Jennings, 14; Crowley, 15; Lafayette, 18, 19; New Iberia, 20; Franklin, 21; Berwick and Morgan City, 22; Thibodaux, 24; Houma, 25; New Orleans, 26, 27, 28.

During March the exhibit will be at the following places: Metairie, 1; Slidell, 4; Covington, 5; Bogalusa, 6, 7; Amite, 8; Hammond, 10; Norco, 11; Gramercy and Lutcher, 12; Donaldsonville and White Castle, 13; Plaquemine, 14; Port Allen, 15; Baton Rouge, 18, 19; New Roads, 20; Opelousas, 21; Oakdale, 22; Alexandria, 24, 25; Winnfield, 26; Jonesboro, 27; and Minden, 28.

There is no admission charge for the exhibit, and every member of the public, young or old, is invited to visit it during its tour of the state.

The heart of the display is a series of panels which simply but graphically cover virtually the entire field of nuclear energy — from a description of the nature of the atom, through the mining and refining of radioactive ores, to the utilization of nuclear reactors in producing electric power.

The display includes examples of the use of radioisotopes — the so - called "tracer atoms" — in medicine, agriculture, industry, and other fields of research and development. Several of the panels are animated, operated by pushbuttons by the visitor himself. The exhibit contains actual radioactive ore samples, simulated fuel elements, reactor control rods, radiation - detection instruments, and other "live" materials.

Columbia F&AM Has Installation

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Columbia Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 164, met last night and installed the officers who were elected on December 2 for the coming calendar year.

The new officers are:

O. A. Van Landingham, Worshipful Master; W. E. McLemore, Senior Warden; Joe Conklin, Junior Warden; A. D. Bridger, treasurer; Erby Meredith, secretary; J. D. Kitchingham, chaplain; C. V. Poole, senior deacon; Willie Stamper, junior deacon; Grady Warford, master of ceremonies; Vick Wiles, senior steward; A. W. Baum, junior steward, and Webb Smith, tyler.

Following the installation ceremonies, the Masons staged their annual Christmas banquet, featuring turkey as the main course.

CONCERT RECORDS

Two Records Suitable For Christmas Season

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) — In the annual deluge of records deemed (by the record-makers) especially suitable for Christmas, there are two that really are. They contain a fully realized singing and playing of Berlioz's "L'Enfance du Christ," which is surpassing art mirroring what Christmas is all about (RCA Victor-LM6053).

The strength of the performance is in the validity with which the soloists project their alloted parts of the Christ story. The soloists were Cesare Valletti, who is among the most refined, musically, of practicing operatic tenors; Florence Kopleff, who reflects believably the character of Christ's mother, and Gerard Souzay ant Giorgio Tozzi, exceedingly eloquent baritone and bass, respectively.

The chorus was that of the New England Conservatory and the orchestra was the Boston Symphony, with Charles Munch conducting Almost as attractive is a handsomely packaged, documented record called "Music of the Medieval Court and Countryside for the Christmas Season," which is a long title but fully descriptive. It is almost but not quite as attractive because, while Berlioz is living art, this is art that has been superseded for some centuries and must appear now on the basis of quaint, antique charm.

More Quaint Charm

But it is beautifully set forth, (and authentically, too, you are persuaded), by the New York Pro Musical Antiqua which plays the original instruments and sings in the original manner and has acquired no small reputation in recent years. There are songs devoted to the adoration of the Virgin and dances which presumably were part of medieval Christmas festivities (Decca-9400).

If quaint charm is more charming at Christmastide than other times, then "Shakespeare Songs and Lute Solos" may deepen your holiday emotions. But these are not Christmas quaintness, only quaintness. They are warmly played and sung by Alfred Deller and Desmond Dupre, English specialists in musical antiquity (Angel-45016).

The standard array of Christmas carols has been arranged for full orchestra and recorded by the Hollywood Bowl Symphony under Carmen Dragon (Capitol-P8393). The same array has been recorded by the "Regina Music Box" and the "Mills Violino"

Mexico Launches Drive On Aliens

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21 (UP)— The Mexican government today launched a drive to rid the country of aliens who reside here illegally.

The interior ministry announced it was investigating the status of all foreigners living in Mexico and would proceed to the immediate deportation of all those found here in violation of immigration laws.

The statement was made in connection with the deportation of two American citizens Thursday. Max Schlafrock Lederman and Samuel John Novick were expelled through the border town of Nuevo Laredo for "grave violations of Mexico's immigration laws."

Third Party Talk

Just as several of the southern governors have given indications that they would like to veer away, for the present at least, of any third party talk, New York's millionaire governor, Averell Harriman, uses a hypodermic needle to give them a new injection of indignation.

Following the Little Rock integration fiasco, most of the Republican leaders, including the former integration zealot Vice-President Richard Nixon, decided to withdraw their extreme pressure methods and to let integration follow a slower and more natural course. Apparently most of the Democratic leaders have taken this position also.

Now Harriman, who ran a poor second to Adlai Stevenson in the quest for the last Democratic presidential nomination and who was supported chiefly and almost solely by Former President Harry S. Truman, says "there can be no compromise" on the party's civil rights platform in the 1960 presidential campaign, even if such a platform should mean splitting off the Democratic party of the south.

"Even a southern split from the Democratic party will have to be faced in preference to a compromise of the party's basic principles," he stated.

Continuing, he said: "I have no doubt the Democratic party's 1960 platform will contain a strong civil rights plank, including support of school segregation in accordance with the supreme court decision and federal district court orders, and that the national Democratic candidates will stand unequivocably for equal rights for all."

Harriman, who still has presidential aspirations but who will still be on the outside looking in after the next Democratic presidential nominating convention, cautioned the south against bolting from the party, pointing out that former President Truman won in 1948 without the electoral votes of four southern states.

"And Truman didn't have such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Michigan, where our 1960 chances look pretty good right now in the light of recent elections."

Harriman seems to have overlooked the fact that Republican rebuffs in some states in which recent elections have been held were attributed largely to the fact that the Republican government had just committed an invasion of states' rights which was unpalatable both to the north and to the south. His advocacy of the same things that gave the Republicans a temporary setback could easily send the votes back to the Republican party.

Harriman can well afford the proposal to kick the southern Democrats out of the Democratic party, as he knows the southerners won't back him for the presidential nomination and that he couldn't carry the south if he were to get the nomination.

A Washington news correspondent says the recent speech of Senator Lister Hill of Alabama adjuring southerners to shun a third party points up a private fear by southern senators of a party split in 1960 which they will not publicly admit. This commentator said private soundings found much third party sentiment in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. He said southerners concede that an incident in the 1960 Democratic national convention might spark the third party movement.

Even before the convention, Harriman is trying to set off the spark that will enflame the south. He shares the belief of some others that the northern Democrats would be better off without the southerners. For his own personal advantage, he undoubtedly hopes the northern and southern Democrats will split.

He knows that the supreme court's infamous Black Monday decision on segregation is gall and wormwood to the south.

So now he flaunts it in the hope of getting a party split.

Veneer Of Culture?

Tennessee's dirty linen, so far as organized labor and law enforcement by public officials is concerned, has been hung out on the line for all to see in recent days, and it is an understatement to say it is not doing that state any good.

And in Tennessee the spotlight has been centered on the state capital, Nashville, a city known as a center of religion and education, a city often called the "Athens of the South." The Senate Committee on labor rackets has uncovered the fact that in Nashville alone there have been committed, during the last four years, 128 acts of organized labor violence to person and property. It further shows that these acts have almost invariably been reported to the police and that almost as invariably nothing was done about them.

Why did the law enforcement officials do nothing about these violations? The only conclusion that can be reached is that it was because they were committed by members of organized labor, because in other fields of law enforcement the officials of Nashville have been quite efficient.

All this must have come as something of a shock to the so-called "better citizens of Nashville, most all of whom had undoubtedly been under the impression they had been living in a city of culture governed by responsible officials in a fair and impartial manner according to the recognized rules of law and order.

If it comes as so much of a shock that the people of Nashville and Tennessee do something about it, then it will have been an ill wind that has blown some good. If these citizens do not face up to their responsibilities as free people in a free nation, then they can expect the situation not only to remain but to worsen.

There is one thing sure—public officials are going to be no better than the people who elect them to office demand that they shall be. The people of Nashville knew about these 128 acts of unlawful violence at the time they were committed, because they read about them in the newspapers. That was the time for them to have risen up in arms and demanded that their law enforcement officials do something about them. Instead, they rather uninterestedly accepted the explanation that it was not known who committed them, whereas it is now revealed that it was known and that due to politics, fear, pressure, etc., no action was taken.

All during this period, the city officials were busy trying to get federal aid for various projects such as urban renewal (a polite term for slum clearance), while ignoring conditions that assure a continuance of slums. The chamber of commerce was busy trying to induce industry to locate in Nashville, ignoring certain factors that made Nashville a place where industry would not want to locate. The civic clubs were busy helping underprivileged children and others in need, and at the same time paying no attention to a situation that would assure a continuance of unsavory conditions. Nothing was heard from educational leaders or from the pulpits decrying the breakdown of law and order in the community.

The condition that exists in Nashville, a shame and a disgrace to any community, is well known to exist in many other cities throughout the United States. In fact, it may well exist in all of them. A city that does not believe it suffers under such conditions might well do a little self-searching. Nashville is simply used as an illustration here because that is where the Senate Committee has been centering its spotlight, and to point out that in Nashville—just as in all other cities of the country—it is the responsibility of the local people to remedy the trouble. Neither Nashville or any other city, Tennessee or any other state, or the United States as a nation can continue to live half in culture and half in corruption. That was the condition in Rome before the fall of that great empire. It must be one or the other.

The people of the cities and states and of the nation as a whole can remedy this situation if they will only face up to the facts and not stick their heads in the sand like a bunch of ostriches. They can demand that their elected officials enforce the law on all alike; if they won't do it, throw them out and get some who will. No organized group, whether labor or otherwise, can be above the law in a free nation—else it will not long be free.

Bold Move For Arab Unity Is Considered

Some students of the Middle East are beginning to ask whether a bold move by the West to sponsor Arab unity might be one answer to the instability which now invites Communist infiltration.

It is a question to be approached cautiously. Not merely because of the political problems involved, but because the rise of nationalist states in general has tended to divide rather than unify the world.

Nevertheless authorities like Freda Utley are trying to divine the future of the Middle East through application of lessons learned from Western efforts to keep Imperial China divided.

And George Kennan says that instead of seeking to divide, the West should seek reconciliation and unity for the area.

The Arabs themselves have tried and failed to attain unity in the face of Western discouragement. When Egypt's Nasser talks of unity from the Atlantic to the Persian gulf there are shudders.

The Zionists naturally fear a really cohesive Arab League would threaten them with disaster.

The West fears it would produce dangerous bargaining power for the oil countries.

Kennan thinks the West already has handed them too much of this, through its heavy reliance on Suez and Middle Eastern Oil. He suggests greater reliance on other sources and stockpiles to give the West greater flexibility in negotiations.

Nevertheless he sees the need for helping the Middle East to unity.

Such situations have always been the bugaboo of the West's efforts to build up underdeveloped countries against the threat of communism.

Every time you build somebody up in one interest, another interest is threatened, as the world is now witnessing in the case of Indonesia.

Kennan warns against appeasement, or putting the small nations in a position to play Moscow off against the West. He says you must not try to buy or coerce, but seek to attain true cooperation.

Freda Itley says the United States should just formulate a policy based on the ideal which it formerly represented in the eyes of small nations—freedom and progress.

Stability, however, and Western guarantees of boundaries once they are established, are basic to any real settlement in the Middle East. Stability without unity is difficult to envision among the Arabs. It is a question likely to become more and more prominent as the search for a solution continues.

Obtaining Loans To Be Made Easier

One great piece of cheerful news I can offer at this holiday season is to you, the person who will be borrowing money in the early months of 1958.

You will find it easier to get a loan than in a long, long time—assuming, of course, that you qualify as a reasonable credit risk.

And this goes whether you're looking for a mortgage to buy a home or a loan to finance an important purchase or credit to modernize or expand your business.

You also will find that in lots of cases, your loan will cost you much less than it would have only 60 days ago.

And that will be particularly so for businessmen and officials at all levels of government — federal, state and local.

Throughout the business boom of recent years, you, the borrower, have been on the short end of the credit stick. There hasn't been nearly enough money around to satisfy all who have wanted to borrow — and lenders have been rationing credit to applicants, turning down marginal borrowers, really making it rough for countless hundreds of thousands.

Throughout this tight money era, borrowing costs have been in a perpendicular upswing — and this past fall, interest rates reached levels not seen since the '20s and rarely touched in our entire history.

But the money trend has now switched and spectacularly so.

Money is getting "easier"; the direction of interest rates is down; tight money is fading fast.

Behind this vitally important new trend lie developments which illustrate perfectly the old proverb that, "It's an ill wind that blows no man to good."

For what has basically brought about the shift in the money picture is the downturn in business.

Because corporations won't be expanding at so furious a rate in early 1958, they won't be scrambling for loans so furiously. There will be more savings available for those who want to borrow. And because businessmen won't be putting such massive totals of goods on their shelves — in fact, they'll be trimming, not building, inventories in the first months of the year — they won't be hammering at bank doors so persistently for cash. Banks will be more willing to lend to the applicants who do show up. The letdown in business, in short, is creating the letdown in the demand for loans.

And as a result of the economic slowdown, the Federal Reserve System has abruptly eased its foot on the credit brake.

Our Central Bank is now promoting lower loan rates — in dramatic contrast to the policy it pursued from 1955 to mid-November 1957. It has cut the rate it charges to banks which borrow from it and thereby has put a ceiling on interest rates down the line. Within the next 30 days or so, it's quite likely the nation's leading banks will formally announce a reduction in the rates they charge to top borrowers. And the Federal Reserve is supplying funds more liberally to the private banking system too, is thus encouraging the banks to be more liberal in loans to you.

The extent to which the credit pendulum has swung in the past six weeks is truly phenomenal. For instance:

One of the government's top agencies went to the nation's banks for a nine-month loan on Nov. 1st. It had to pay 4⅞ per cent for the cash and lenders were not at all eager to supply the funds even at this rate. On Dec. 2nd, the agency went back for another nine-month loan. It paid 4⅛ per cent and got the funds easily. A few days ago it went back again. This time it obtained its nine-month loan at 3⅝ per cent and lenders fell over each other to get in on the deal.

What is going on at this highest level of borrowing is going on at lower levels too. When business starts to perk up, money could tighten once more — but this won't happen in early 1958.

And until it happens, it's good news for you, the borrower.

Famous Fables

ECONOMY: Millionaire banker E. T. Stotesbury lived in lavish style. One day, a visitor to the Stotesbury mansion observed that the bathroom fixtures were made of gold.

"Isn't this rather extravagant?" the visitor asked Mrs. Stotesbury.

"Oh no, it's quite economical," she replied. "They don't have to be polished, you know."

CONSCIENCE: Rhode Island Senator Theodore F. Green has a deep sense of responsibility to his constituents.

The Senator, who recently turned 90, has often expressed the hope that he will remain in the Senate until he is 100.

However, the mathematics involved disturbs him. He will be 93 at the end of his present term.

"Do you think," he asked a friend, "that I could in good conscience seek reelection at that time?"

The friend hesitated. After all, 99 is scarcely youthful. Before he could reply, Sen. Green continued:

"What I mean is: would it be proper for me to run for a six year term when I only intend to serve one year?"

Monroe, La.

Editor, News - Star — World,

It is becoming increasingly obvious that your paper does not operate on principle but on expediency, that its idea of truth is one that can be changed at will, and that it does not at heart have the interests of the average wage earner and property owner of this community.

This is borne out by the fact that you never fail to oppose burdensome taxes when they are threatened outside the city of Monroe. But when a move is on to increase taxation in the city, more often than not, you support the move. There is a certain amount of hypocrisy involved here. If the needs of the community warrant taxation now, then how in your almighty wisdom do you judge the professed needs of state or nation as non - existent when there is a question of further taxation or reduction?

If your paper and the so - called public - minded organizations of this city would consider principle more than expediency, they would recognize that a country can easily be reduced to socialism by gradually reaching a stage of confiscation. And this confiscation is most efficiently carried out through property and income taxes. At the level these two now stand, they are a limited form of confiscation. Unfortunately, too many national, state and municipal officials have assimilated a Marxist mentality and are more concerned about the administration of things than the governing of people. As Stalin put it: "The main function of party and government is administration which is effective action." The Kremlin secured its effective action as witnessed by Sputnik I and II — but at the expense of people, justice and all the spiritual values we hold dear. Such pragmatism isn't concerned with people or personalities. It says only, "let's get the job done at all costs."

This all means that with any public project or program, care should be exercised to avoid "soaking the rich," burdening the property owner or weighting the low income group. Thus, in Monroe's improvement program, it is grossly unjust to shoulder 5,480 property owners with the cost for improvements which benefit all the citizens. Today, property owners are no longer the privileged class they were at the time of the foundation of our country. The rights once solely enjoyed by them are now shared by all. But at the same time, neither are they to be the target of socialists who feel that because such owners have a little more than the average citizen, there should be more of a distribution on community (communist?) lines.

Putting aside this error of principle which has permeated our public officers, many of our educators and social, civic and business groups, a further practical error involved in this whole matter is a simple one of arithmetic. While three mills is a relatively small sum, it is not an isolated sum. Added to he recent school millage, the utilities and gas increases and the garbage collection fee, the burden to the property owners is far more than to the non - property owners. And it is misleading to point out only that all that is involved is a few mills.

Your paper has a serious moral obligation to present all sides of the question honestly. I, and many others, do not believe you have done this. In the future, it would be wiser to think out your position a little more carefully.

DENIES WRITING

Editor, News-Star — World,

In your last Sunday's paper, December 15, appeared a letter on your editorial page in the Public Forum column concerning the bond issue supposedly written by me.

I flatly deny writing such a letter nor did I know anything about it until it was called to my attention by some or all of my friends.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Many Claim They Made Others Great

A fellow was telling me at great length how quite a successful and distinguished citizen would never have got to first base had it not been for a fairly well-known public relations counsel who "made him." There being a difference in age and achievement between the successful and distinguished citizen and the well-known public relations counsel, I asked who made the former before he met the latter.

Always when a politician emerges to distinction, the stories go the rounds about who made him. For instance, Louis Howe made Franklin D. Roosevelt, but once made he continued on after Howe died. In fact, Roosevelt survived politically his original brain trust consisting of Raymond Moley, Rexford Tugwell, A.A. Berle, Jr.; he survived Tommy Corcoran and Ben Cohen; he survived James A. Farley; he survived Hugh Johnson. I often wondered who made him what he was, for better or for worse.

A friend of mine recently changed jobs and I heard of half a dozen men who accepted responsibility for the change. As I happened to know, none of them were consulted about it, none of them knew the facts, none of them had any rights in the matter. But they liked to take the bows and the credit. It added to their ego.

It is like doctors who are forbidden in this country to advertise but who are not forbidden to give the impression of esoteric knowledge amounting almost to the miraculous. Since I have had the second most publicized heart attack in the United States, I have been importuned by friends and others to go to this doctor or that, each one being the very top man in his profession. Ike, I am sure, is safeguarded from this, but it has always reminded me of how German doctors used to treat rich Chinese in Shanghai:

"Ach ja," the doctor would say pompously. "What you have only five men in the world can cure. I am one of the five, naturally. However, if you do not trust me, I can recommend Herr Professor Doctor Sauerbraten of Hamburg who has a clinic for such diseases."

The disease was overeating and one of its consequences, indigestion.

This doctor did not need a press agent to make him. He did it all himself with great care. The formula was not unusual. The cure was usually efficacious, some form of bicarbonate of soda, put together under a brand name. The result: the doctor got rich.

Making men is an old profession but current manifestations are new. "Had I but served my God with half the zeal I served my King," said Cardinal Wolsey of Henry VIII. However, Henry survived and proceeded onward after his maker dropped dead.

It is not all ingratitude either, for sometimes the maker gets very tired of being told that he has no talent, no ability, no genius but somehow got to the top of his line despite all his disabilities because somebody who never did much for himself, made him. Why did not the universal maker achieve anything on his own?

There is big money in this "making" business. One way to do it is to create unpleasant situations, to stir up suspicions and hatreds, to accelerate strife, and then to offer one's services for pay to straighten things out. This is a speciality of some lawyers who know how to walk both sides of the street without slipping. A combination of a lawyer and a public relations counsel, perhaps with a so-called investment broker, can throw a business into turmoil and open the door to raiders and take-over artists, which no matter how you look at it, can be profitable even if only to be bought off.

Some school of business administration or a school of journalism might give a course in this art. I think I could recommend the professors, great artists at making a buck out of starting rows and then hiring themselves out to one side or the other. It is curious how often the same names come up in these transactions. Naturally, there are always experts in every field and the big jobs go to the experts. That is how Murder, Inc. got started—that is, by the big jobs going to the experts.

Board Members Vote In Raise

AUBURN, N. Y.— (UP) —The Cayuga County Board of Supervisors recently met to decide whether to boost its members' salaries. Supervisor Bert L. O'Hara said. "There's not a man on this board worth any more than $950" (the present annual salary). Suprevisor Horace Reynolds said he might favor a $250 raise but the board would have to meet more often because "I think we could do more work than we've been doing." Immediately thereaftter the board voted to shelve the proposal for more meetings and approved a $550 wage boost for themselves.

Daily Devotions

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. — Luke 11:9.

God cannot help the individual unless that individual is not only willing to be aided but actively seeks assistance. In the verse above, Luke gives the key to prayer and to eternal salvation. There must be, first of all, a feeling of need; second, a willingness to receive help; and, third, a disposition to take the initiative and actively seek and work for the desired help, aid or emancipation. No half-hearted attitude will prevail.

Almighty God, we pray for humbleness, a conviction of spiritual inadequacy and a willingness to seek Thy aid. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

Third Party Talk

Just as several of the southern governors have given indications that they would like to veer away, for the present at least, of any third party talk, New York's millionaire governor, Averell Harriman, uses a hypodermic needle to give them a new injection of indignation.

Following the Little Rock integration fiasco, most of the Republican leaders, including the former integration zealot Vice-President Richard Nixon, decided to withdraw their extreme pressure methods and to let integration follow a slower and more natural course. Apparently most of the Democratic leaders have taken this position also.

Now Harriman, who ran a poor second to Adlai Stevenson in the quest for the last Democratic presidential nomination and who was supported chiefly and almost solely by Former President Harry S. Truman, says "there can be no compromise" on the party's civil rights platform in the 1960 presidential campaign, even if such a platform should mean splitting off the Democratic party of the south.

"Even a southern split from the Democratic party will have to be faced in preference to a compromise of the party's basic principles," he stated.

Continuing, he said: "I have no doubt the Democratic party's 1960 platform will contain a strong civil rights plank, including support of school segregation in accordance with the supreme court decision and federal district court orders, and that the national Democratic candidates will stand unequivocably for equal rights for all."

Harriman, who still has presidential aspirations but who will still be on the outside looking in after the next Democratic presidential nominating convention, cautioned the south against bolting from the party, pointing out that former President Truman won in 1948 without the electoral votes of four southern states.

"And Truman didn't have such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Michigan, where our 1960 chances look pretty good right now in the light of recent elections."

Harriman seems to have overlooked the fact that Republican rebuffs in some states in which recent elections have been held were attributed largely to the fact that the Republican government had just committed an invasion of states' rights which was unpalatable both to the north and to the south. His advocacy of the same things that gave the Republicans a temporary setback could easily send the votes back to the Republican party.

Harriman can well afford the proposal to kick the southern Democrats out of the Democratic party, as he knows the southerners won't back him for the presidential nomination and that he couldn't carry the south if he were to get the nomination.

A Washington news correspondent says the recent speech of Senator Lister Hill of Alabama adjuring southerners to shun a third party points up a private fear by southern senators of a party split in 1960 which they will not publicly admit. This commentator said private soundings found much third party sentiment in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. He said southerners concede that an incident in the 1960 Democratic national convention might spark the third party movement.

Even before the convention, Harriman is trying to set off the spark that will enflame the south. He shares the belief of some others that the northern Democrats would be better off without the southerners. For his own personal advantage, he undoubtedly hopes the northern and southern Democrats will split.

He knows that the supreme court's infamous Black Monday decision on segregation is gall and wormwood to the south.

So now he flaunts it in the hope of getting a party split.

Veneer Of Culture?

Tennessee's dirty linen, so far as organized labor and law enforcement by public officials is concerned, has been hung out on the line for all to see in recent days, and it is an understatement to say it is not doing that state any good.

And in Tennessee the spotlight has been centered on the state capital, Nashville, a city known as a center of religion and education, a city often called the "Athens of the South." The Senate Committee on labor rackets has uncovered the fact that in Nashville alone there have been committed, during the last four years, 128 acts of organized labor violence to person and property. It further shows that these acts have almost invariably been reported to the police and that almost as invariably nothing was done about them.

Why did the law enforcement officials do nothing about these violations? The only conclusion that can be reached is that it was because they were committed by members of organized labor, because in other fields of law enforcement the officials of Nashville have been quite efficient.

All this must have come as something of a shock to the so-called "better citizens of Nashville, most all of whom had undoubtedly been under the impression they had been living in a city of culture governed by responsible officials in a fair and impartial manner according to the recognized rules of law and order.

If it comes as so much of a shock that the people of Nashville and Tennessee do something about it, then it will have been an ill wind that has blown some good. If these citizens do not face up to their responsibilities as free people in a free nation, then they can expect the situation not only to remain but to worsen.

There is one thing sure—public officials are going to be no better than the people who elect them to office demand that they shall be. The people of Nashville knew about these 128 acts of unlawful violence at the time they were committed, because they read about them in the newspapers. That was the time for them to have risen up in arms and demanded that their law enforcement officials do something about them. Instead, they rather uninterestedly accepted the explanation that it was not known who committed them, whereas it is now revealed that it was known and that due to politics, fear, pressure, etc., no action was taken.

All during this period, the city officials were busy trying to get federal aid for various projects such as urban renewal (a polite term for slum clearance), while ignoring conditions that assure a continuance of slums. The chamber of commerce was busy trying to induce industry to locate in Nashville, ignoring certain factors that made Nashville a place where industry would not want to locate. The civic clubs were busy helping underprivileged children and others in need, and at the same time paying no attention to a situation that would assure a continuance of unsavory conditions. Nothing was heard from educational leaders or from the pulpits decrying the breakdown of law and order in the community.

The condition that exists in Nashville, a shame and a disgrace to any community, is well known to exist in many other cities throughout the United States. In fact, it may well exist in all of them. A city that does not believe it suffers under such conditions might well do a little self-searching. Nashville is simply used as an illustration here because that is where the Senate Committee has been centering its spotlight, and to point out that in Nashville—just as in all other cities of the country—it is the responsibility of the local people to remedy the trouble. Neither Nashville or any other city, Tennessee or any other state, or the United States as a nation can continue to live half in culture and half in corruption. That was the condition in Rome before the fall of that great empire. It must be one or the other.

The people of the cities and states and of the nation as a whole can remedy this situation if they will only face up to the facts and not stick their heads in the sand like a bunch of ostriches. They can demand that their elected officials enforce the law on all alike; if they won't do it, throw them out and get some who will. No organized group, whether labor or otherwise, can be above the law in a free nation—else it will not long be free.

Bold Move For Arab Unity Is Considered

Some students of the Middle East are beginning to ask whether a bold move by the West to sponsor Arab unity might be one answer to the instability which now invites Communist infiltration.

It is a question to be approached cautiously. Not merely because of the political problems involved, but because the rise of nationalist states in general has tended to divide rather than unify the world.

Nevertheless authorities like Freda Utley are trying to divine the future of the Middle East through application of lessons learned from Western efforts to keep Imperial China divided.

And George Kennan says that instead of seeking to divide, the West should seek reconciliation and unity for the area.

The Arabs themselves have tried and failed to attain unity in the face of Western discouragement. When Egypt's Nasser talks of unity from the Atlantic to the Persian gulf there are shudders.

The Zionists naturally fear a really cohesive Arab League would threaten them with disaster.

The West fears it would produce dangerous bargaining power for the oil countries.

Daily Devotions

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. — Luke 11:9.

God cannot help the individual unless that individual is not only willing to be aided but actively seeks assistance. In the verse above, Luke gives the key to prayer and to eternal salvation. There must be, first of all, a feeling of need; second, a willingness to receive help; and, third, a disposition to take the initiative and actively seek and work for the desired help, aid or emancipation. No half-hearted attitude will prevail.

Almighty God, we pray for humbleness, a conviction of spiritual inadequacy and a willingness to seek Thy aid. In Christ's name we pray. Amen.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Many Claim They Made Others Great

A fellow was telling me at great length how quite a successful and distinguished citizen would never have got to first base had it not been for a fairly well-known public relations counsel who "made him." There being a difference in age and achievement between the successful and distinguished citizen and the well-known public relations counsel, I asked who made the former before he met the latter.

Always when a politician emerges to distinction, the stories go the rounds about who made him. For instance, Louis Howe made Franklin D. Roosevelt, but once made he continued on after Howe died. In fact, Roosevelt survived politically his original brain trust consisting of Raymond Moley, Rexford Tugwell, A.A. Berle, Jr.; he survived Tommy Corcoran and Ben Cohen; he survived James A. Farley; he survived Hugh Johnson. I often wondered who made him what he was, for better or for worse.

A friend of mine recently changed jobs and I heard of half a dozen men who accepted responsibility for the change. As I happened to know, none of them were consulted about it, none of them knew the facts, none of them had any rights in the matter. But they liked to take the bows and the credit. It added to their ego.

It is like doctors who are forbidden in this country to advertise but who are not forbidden to give the impression of esoteric knowledge amounting almost to the miraculous. Since I have had the second most publicized heart attack in the United States, I have been importuned by friends and others to go to this doctor or that, each one being the very top man in his profession. Ike, I am sure, is safeguarded from this, but it has always reminded me of how German doctors used to treat rich Chinese in Shanghai:

"Ach ja," the doctor would say pompously. "What you have only five men in the world can cure. I am one of the five, naturally. However, if you do not trust me, I can recommend Herr Professor Doctor Sauerbraten of Hamburg who has a clinic for such diseases."

The disease was overeating and one of its consequences, indigestion.

This doctor did not need a press agent to make him. He did it all himself with great care. The formula was not unusual. The cure was usually efficacious, some form of bicarbonate of soda, put together under a brand name. The result: the doctor got rich.

Making men is an old profession but current manifestations are new. "Had I but served my God with half the zeal I served my King," said Cardinal Wolsey of Henry VIII. However, Henry survived and proceeded onward after his maker dropped dead.

It is not all ingratitude either, for sometimes the maker gets very tired of being told that he has no talent, no ability, no genius but somehow got to the top of his line despite all his disabilities because somebody who never did much for himself, made him. Why did not the universal maker achieve anything on his own?

There is big money in this "making" business. One way to do it is to create unpleasant situations, to stir up suspicions and hatreds, to accelerate strife, and then to offer one's services for pay to straighten things out. This is a speciality of some lawyers who know how to walk both sides of the street without slipping. A combination of a lawyer and a public relations counsel, perhaps with a so-called investment broker, can throw a business into turmoil and open the door to raiders and take-over artists, which no matter how you look at it, can be profitable even if only to be bought off.

Some school of business administration or a school of journalism might give a course in this art. I think I could recommend the professors, great artists at making a buck out of starting rows and then hiring themselves out to one side or the other. It is curious how often the same names come up in these transactions. Naturally, there are always experts in every field and the big jobs go to the experts. That is how Murder, Inc. got started—that is, by the big jobs going to the experts.

Board Members Vote In Raise

AUBURN, N. Y.— (UP) —The Cayuga County Board of Supervisors recently met to decide whether to boost its members' salaries. Supervisor Bert L. O'Hara said. "There's not a man on this board worth any more than $950" (the present annual salary). Suprevisor Horace Reynolds said he might favor a $250 raise but the board would have to meet more often because "I think we could do more work than we've been doing." Immediately thereaftter the board voted to shelve the proposal for more meetings and approved a $550 wage boost for themselves.

PORTRAITS

By James J. Metcalfe

God, Make Him Well

DEAR God, I know my failures and . . . How little I am worth . . . But I do ask that You perform . . . This miracle on earth . . . This miracle for someone who . . . Would live a little longer . . . And who could not, without Your help . . . Become the least bit stronger . . . For someone who would serve You, God . . . With heart sincere and true . . . And who would be forever glad . . . And grateful unto You . . . Who is so ill—who needs Your hand . . . Or breath, however lightly . . . To put away his ailments and . . . His troubles so unsightly . . . Yes, he has sinned, as all of us . . . Transgress along our way . . . But please forgive him, God, and grant . . . This miracle today.

Major Added To Military Staff At NE

Maj. Lawrence R. Longfellow has joined the military faculty at Northeast State, Lt. Col. Howard P. Landry, professor of Military Science and Tactics, announced.

The new officer holds the rank of assistant professor of Military Science and Tactics.

Just prior to being assigned to Northeast, Maj. Longfellow was on duty in Okinawa, where he was chief of operations and training division of the Ryukus Command.

He also served in the European theatre during World War II and in Korea. While he was in European action he was awarded the Air Medal.

The major's 16 years of army duty include serving as an instructor for four years at the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla.

Maj. Longfellow, a native of Ohio, is a graduate of Ohio State University. He also has received basic and advanced training at the Artillery and Missile School, Fort Sill.

The officer is married and the father of three children.

West Figures Prominently In Oil Over-Supply

HOUSTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—California and the West Coast figure prominently in 1957 year-end studies of the oil industry's supply and demand problems.

Opponents of oil imports asked federal officials several weeks ago to place California under the voluntary curtailment program that currently applies to all areas east of the Rocky Mountains.

Late statistical reports from the American Petroleum Institute indicate the West Coast is responsible for 45.7 per cent of a 43 million barrel increase in domestic inventories of gasoline, kerosene, heating oil and heavy fuel oil.

For the week ending Dec. 6 domestic stocks of the four principal products exceeded year earlier storage by 43,511,000 barrels. The West Coast's share of the increase totaled 19,923,000 barrels.

Domestic production was 6.8 per cent below year earlier levels, california output had declined only 2.3 per cent.

Crude oil imported the four weeks ending Dec. 6 average 945,800 barrels a day, a decline of less than 1 per cent from the same 1956 period. West Coast crude imports, however, averaged 281,000 barrels daily, a 28.4 per cent increase over 1956.

While the four-week average is considered a more accurate measurement of trends, West Coast imports for the single week ending Dec. 6 averaged 393,300 barrels a day.

Independent operators from California and the Southwest argued in Washington last month that the Presidential Advisory Committee, in exempting the West Coast from the voluntary curtailment quotas, had anticipated that imports there would be only 275,000 barrels a day.

DULLES RETURNS FROM EUROPE—Secretary of State Dulles listens to information from Undersecretary Christian Herter at national airport yesterday. Herter spoke briefly with his boss after Dulles' arrival from Madrid, where he stopped for a talk with Generalissimo Franco following the NATO summit conference in Paris. Dulles told reporter that "peace is somewhat more secure, but continuing effort and sacrifice are required." (AP Wirephoto)

Neville Key Club To Be Featured In Yule Program

Neville High School Key Club members will be featured in a special Christmas program over a local radio station Christmas day from 3 to 4 p.m., A. E. Culpepper, Jr., sponsor of the group, said last night.

The program, which was presented to a student assembly Friday, has been recorded in high fidelity. It is a collection of Christmas stories and songs, which are under the direction of Herbert Gathright, choral director at the school. The stories were acted out in experimental theater form, similar to the play, "Our Town," without the use of stage properties. The program was directed by Culpepper. Marie Nelson is accompanist for the group.

The Christmas program will be carried over radio station KUZN.

Flavor chocolate fudge with ground cinnamon — ½ teaspoon for a 1-pound recipe.

Mrs. B. Lanier Wins Holiday Lighting Test

WINNSBORO (Special) —Mrs. B. T. Lanier won the grand award for the best over-all display in the Winnsboro Home Christmas Lighting contest, which was judged Friday night.

Winners in other divisions, listed in first, second and third place, are given below.

Outside lighting, Mrs. Walter Richardson, Mrs. Cordell Miller and Mrs. Huey Stein.

Door contest, Mrs. James Holmes, Mrs. Brashear Earle and Mrs. C. Nelson.

Window contest, Mrs. B. I. Berry, Mrs. B. S. Landis Jr. and Mrs. Joe Hooper.

Honorable Mention

Named for honorable mention were Mrs. Wallace Pack in the door division; Mrs. T. B. McDuff, window division, and Mrs. Mike Johnston, outside lighting.

Mrs. Kirby Lee, a committee member of the Garden Gate Garden Club, sponsor of the contest, released the winners' names last night.

Judges were from out-of-town.

Johns Brothers Sent To Mental Institutions

RAYVILLE (Special) — The three Johns brothers, held in connection with the brutal slaying of their mother, Mrs. Mary Emma Johns, 76 - year - old widow, Dec. 10, were sent to mental institutions this week, Assistant District Atorney W. R. Coenen has announced.

Nelson Johns, 40, who admitted the slaying, and Archie Johns, 36 have been committed to the institution for the criminally insane at Jackson. Cecil, 36, was sent to the State Hospital for the insane at Pineville.

The brothers will be held for observation, the attorney said, and a lunancy hearing will be held if Nelson and Archie are charged with murder when the Grand Jury convenes in February. The men have been charged with murder in the death of Mrs. Johns.

Mississippi Legion Threatens Ousters

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — Mississippi's American Legion posts have been warned they may be expelled if they dabble officially in racial matters.

Department Adjutant Frank Chambers of Jackson said today this restriction applies to formal affiliation with Citizens Council groups as well as with the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Mississippi's NAACP groups have been working toward integration since the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed public school segregation in May 1954. Citizens Councls were organized by white men to keep segregation in all phases of Mississippi society.

Chambers sad every Legion post in the state has received a written reminder that the Legion constitution prohibits the organization from affiliating with partisan groups.

Some Legion posts have affiliated with NAACP or Citizens Council groups in sponsoring public gatherings at which controversial issues have been aimed.

This resulted in expulsion this week of Jackson's Negro Post 214. Chambers said the post had been warned twice about such activities before its charter was revoked.

Actual revocation, he said, followed a resolution by the city's two white posts, 1 and 110, which have jurisdiction over the Negro post.

Chambers said the resolutions objected to Commander Albert L. Powell identifying himself as a Legion official in making statements on interracial issues, some of them at meetings sponsored by the NAACP.

The adjutant added the Legion considers the NAACP "left wing, if not actually subversive" because "50 per cent of the NAACP directors have long records as affiliates of communist front organizations." He did not identify them.

Powell indicated the Negro post will appeal the expulsion to national Legion officers. He said the state executive committee sought to deny the Negro post freedom of assembly and speech as guaranteed in the U.S. Constitution.

Neither the NAACP nor the Citizens Council is on the U.S. Department of Justice list of subversive organizations.

Earlier this year, then-department Commander Jack Pace of Magee warned Post 214 to "purge its ranks of radical agitators or face expulsion."

Pace said some Negro post commanders had invited radical Negro speakers to address Legion meetings and "strong measures would be taken to put a stop to this."

At that time, he upheld as a public service a joint Citizens Council-American Legion meeting in Jackson at which a New Orleans policeman charged communists had infiltrated some organizations friendly to Negroes.

Pace explained that the American Legion opposes communism and communists and other subversive influences.

Chambers, elaborating upon anti-subversive activities of the Legion, said the state or national departments could expel individual members, or whole posts for subversive activities if the individual posts or state departments do not purge their memberships.

Several Offices In Courthouse Close On Holiday

Several offices in the Ouachita parish courthouse and Monroe Post Office building have announced their Christmas closing hours.

In the courthouse, the offices of Registrar of Voters, Police Jury Association and Retirement System, and the Veteran's Service Officer will be closed Monday through Wednesday, to reopen Thursday morning.

The police jury office will close at noon on Tuesday, as will the District Attorney's office and the Tax Collector's office.

The Sheriff's Department will continue on duty 24 hours each day. However, their office on the third floor will be closed on Wednesday.

The office of the Clerk of Court will be closed on Wednesday.

In the Post Office building, all postal windows will be closed on Wednesday, as on any legal holiday. The office of the U. S. Marshal will be closed throughout the week, and the clerk of court will be closed on Wednesday.

No Late Rush Is Expected By Postoffice

The Monroe Post Office is anticipating no last - minute jam of Christmas mail and expects to have all Christmas cards, letters and parcels delivered by Tuesday night, or early Wednesday morning at the latest.

Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn's office said that all service windows at both the main station and the Louisville Station would open at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning and remain open until 5. If service requires, the windows will remain open later Monday.

Tuesday is expected to see outgoing mail drop off, and plans call for an operation with a skelton crew from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. Not all the windows will be open, but enough will be available to provide any type service needed by the public, postal officials declared.

Kept Open

All but the money order windows remained open until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, instead of closing at noon on the regular Saturday schedule.

Regular deliveries will be made tomorrow and Tuesday, and every effort will be made to "Clean out post offices" by Tuesday night. However, any parcels obviously Christmas gifts, and special deliveries, will be dispatched locally on Christmas morning.

Hathorn said incoming mail will contnue strong through Monday, but a slack - off is expected Tuesday. He said he expected no last-minute deluge.

Police Chief At Clarksdale Gets Support

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP)—After hearing several citizens speak in support of Police Chief H. D. Scherck, the board of mayor and commissioners voted 2-1 today against asking Scherck's resignation.

Commissioner Paul Hunter, who voted to ask Scherck to quit, told the council meeting someone had tried to bribe him not to vote against the chief. He declined to say who made the bribe attempt except to say it was not Scherck himself.

Those speaking up for Scherck included president James Whittington of the auxiliary police, county and city civil defense Chief Charles W. Clark, and attorney Semmes Luckett.

All asked what accusations had been brought against Scherck and were told by the council there are no charges of dishonesty or fraud, only of "irregular procedure" involving purchase of items for private cars of policemen.

Scherck has said tires were purchased for one car and a flashing light for another because the police force does not have enough vehicles and the officers' private cars were used in city work.

Voting for Scherck were Mayor Homer Corley and Commissioner Richard Webster. Webster had said as late as Thursday that he thought Scherck should resign, but said at today's open council meeting that he had new information and could not now in good science ask the chief to quit.

Hunter was asked if the chief's recent divorce was a factor and replied that Scherck's private life had hurt the chief's prestige and expressed belief the public had lost a measure of confidence in Scherck.

MEDICAL BAG

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—While Dr. Jack M. Matthews was doing his Christmas shopping someone stole his medical bag containing $246 worth of drugs and medicine from his car. While he was in the police station making out a report, someone stole $100 worth of the Christmas presents he had just bought.

Effort Is Made To Check Poisons

In an effort to control accidental poisoning, a list of poisons containing thallium sulphate, registered in Louisiana, has been sent to health department sanitarians in all parishes.

The control project is a joint effort of the Louisiana state department of health, and the Louisiana state department of agriculture.

The action was taken following a recent incident of accidental poisoning, caused by a commercial roach poison preparation containing three per cent thallium sulphate.

Cotton States Vote For La. Plan At Meet

DALLAS, Tex., (Special) —The Louisiana Farm Bureau long-range cotton program was approved unanimously in Dallas Friday by Farm Bureau producers from the 17 cotton producing states.

The program was presented by L. L. Lovell, president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau, and Paul Ransom, of Monroe, state cotton chairman. The Farm Bureau leaders ask the American Farm Bureau Board to request Congress to put the program into effect by the 1959 crop year.

Basic principles of the Louisiana program are a support price on cotton at about the current world price, 30 cents a pound for inch and a 32 strict low middling); an acreage allotment that will satisfy the entire domestic and export demand.

This would entail about a 20 per cent increase per farm over the current acreage of 17.3 million acres.

This marked the first time all cotton - producing states have agreed on one program for presentation to Congress, Farm Bureau officials said.

The plan also called for an export subsidy in kind to continue American efforts to regain lost export markets.

Other members of the state committee representing northeast Louisiana, who played a part in developing the plan were: J. B. Filhoil, Jr., Monroe; James Parrish, Girard; J. Pershing Robinson, Winnsboro; John B. McIntosh, Darnell; Ed McDonald, Newellton, and Sam House, Lake Providence.

Election Slated

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP) — The Jefferson Parish Democratic Executive Committee today set Jan. 7 for a primary runoff election for parish president and three council seats in the incoming parish-president type government.

Jan. 28 was set for the general election.

Jules G. Mollere and Charles W. Spencer will be candidates for the president post. In last Tuesday's first primary, Spencer led Mollere, but lacked 492 votes for a clear majority over all opponents.

Asks World Parley On Disarming

stripped of all nuclear weapons in Central Europe.

In Paris, French officials said NATO powers early in January will propose that the foreign ministers meet on disarmament anyway. The proposal will be in the form of replies to Bulganin's letters. The French said they hope the ministers could meet in February or March.

Khrushchev told Parliament the Soviet Union is ready for direct talks with the United States, a proposal rejected by Washington. He said if agreement between the two could be reached without prejudicing the interests of other nations, "good results for peace will be achieved."

"We tell the United States to abandon its policy of positions of strength," he said hoarsely and with emotion. "Let us solve our problems by peaceful means on the basis of equality.

"Let us outlaw war. Let us recognize the status quo—that is the situation existing in the world today with the existence of Socialist (Communist) and capitalist systems. Let us not interfere in each other's affairs.

"We must decide our problems, not by war but by peaceful means. The future must be decided, not by war or rockets or hydrogen bombs but on the basis of which of the two systems gives its people the best life."

Turning to the NATO summit conference, Khrushchev referred to the planned U.S. delivery of intermediate range missiles and nuclear warheads to Western Europe.

"The U.S.S.R. will take all necessary measures to strengthen its national defenses in order to deliver a decisive blow to any aggressor," he said.

"We do not hide the fact that if no solution is found to the disarmament question, we will continue to build modern arms. But we will do it in reasonable proportions."

He said the statement in the NATO communique that the West will never attack the Soviet Union unless attacked "is not badly put." But he added there were other parts of the communique "which have nothing to do with peace."

Khrushchev said he agreed with the NATO proposal to examine all suggestions leading to the relaxation of world tensions and added: "Why can't NATO and the Warsaw Pact countries (of Eastern Europe) agree on such questions?"

Khrushchev praised Norway and Denmark for refusing to accept missile bases and assailed acceptance by Turkey and Italy. Khrushchev said the establishment of missile bases in Turkey, next door to Russia, "would be a catastrophe for the population. The missiles could explode in their hands."

He said Italy could not direct missiles against the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies without firing them over Austria and Yugoslavia. He said this "would violate the sovereignty of these countries.

Khrushchev declared the Soviet Union never could agree to the West's proposal for unification of Germany (by freeing and including East Germany in West Germany, thus eliminating East Germany and in-corporating them both in the aggressive NATO bloc."

Gromyko, who spoke first, concentrated on disarmament.

"Ten years of discussions in the United Nations, which now are terminated, have brought no results," he said.

Gromyko charged the United States, Britain and France "do not want to tie themselves down with restrictions on production of armaments and stockpiling of nuclear weapons.

3 Winnsboro Oil Workers Are Injured

WINNSBORO (Special)—Three Winnsboro oil workers were injured near here last night when the auto in which they were riding rammed into oil drilling equipment on the highway, according to officers.

Hospitalized were C. L. Shipley, 42, John R. Shipley, and Raymond Howard.

Cpl. Dave Chase of the Louisiana State Police said the driver of the wrecked car was blinded by an approaching auto. The 1957 four-door vehicle was demolished, he added.

Two pieces of oil derrick substructure had been unloaded in the highway by A. L. and W. Moore's Trucking Co., the officer said. He said the derrick was 42 feet long, 10 feet wide and nine feet high.

The injured were on their way to work when the auto crashed into the oil derrick substructure about 17 miles northeast of Big Lake Road east of Bayou Mason.

The impact jolted the vehicle sidewise, trapping Raymond Howard and John Shipley. Rescurers were forced to tear off a door to get to Shipley.

The accident occurred at 7 p.m. it was reported.

C. L. Shipley was suffering from a possible broken leg and cuts about the head, chest and arms at Conway Memorial hospital in Monroe last night.

Injuries of Raymond Howard, who also was hospitalized at Conway were undetermined last night.

John R. Shipley was reported "bunged up pretty bad" at Winnsboro Hospital sheriff's deputies said. He was scheduled to be X-rayed last night.

All three men were carried to Winnsboro hospital following the accident, and C. L. Shipley and Raymond Howard were later transferred to Conway in Monroe.

Police Officer Struck By Car, Knocked Down

A monroe police officer directing traffic was knocked to the pavement by a truck at 11 a.m. yesterday at the corner of N. Second and DeSiard streets.

Patrolman G. E. Cowart, 2505 Lee avenue, suffered a bruised right leg and a sprained neck from the mishap, but continued on duty.

The accident occured when Cowart directed David Ray Barr, 19, who was driving a panel delivery truck, to pull his truck from the right to the left lane. The right lane was blocked with traffic, and Barr, who lives at Route 1, West Monroe, stopped the truck across the pedestrian walk in the right lane.

Cowart motioned for him to back up and move into the left lane, and he moved back a short distance, then started forward into the right lane. Barr drove across the pedestrian walk and the policeman was knocked down.

COMPLETED RUN

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Police Chief W. Cleon Skousen told his officers in a memo not to stop mail trucks they see committing routine traffic violations. "Note the license number so a citation can be issued to the driver AFTER he has completed his run," he advised.

Midnight Mass

Members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church will observe mass at midnight Christmas Eve and at 8 and 10 a.m. Christmas Day.

A presentation of the 'Messiah" is also scheduled by the First Baptist Church for 7:15 tonight, and the First Baptist Church in West Monroe is planning special services for 7:30 p.m. Christmas Day.

A candlelighting service with special music will be held by the First Christian Church at 7 p.m. today, and pageants will also be presented at that time.

cure of severe whipworm dysentery.

Dr. Swartzwelder pointed out that many people in the world are infected by more than one of the five parasites. He estimated there are over 1.5 billion infections against which the new drug is active.

During clinical investigation, young and old alike were treated, some with complications such as anemia, malnutrition, cardiac disease, nephrosis and pregnancy with no influence on the tolerance of the drug.

The only reaction to therapy which was observed was vomiting and diarrhea, which the doctors said was not common.

The drug packaged in a specially-coated white tablet, is taken by mouth and treatments average five days.

The action of dithiazanine against intestinal parasites in dogs, cats and mice was discovered by the Eli Lilly Co. laboratory at Indianapolis, Ind. The drug was sent to the medical school for testing.

While parasitic infections are a serious health problem in many sections of the United States, Dean Drye, who also is professor of tropical medicine, pointed out they are of much greater importance in tropical and sub-tropical countries.

He said 97 per cent of the school children in rural areas of Latin America and other tropical countries of the world are infested by one or more of these intestinal parasites.

Part of the recent clinical studies was carried out at LSU's research and training facilities in Latin America, primarily at the hospital San Juan de Dios, Costa Rica.

Other studies were conducted at the State Colony and Training School, Pineville, the Veterans Administration Hospital at New Orleans and New Orleans Charity Hospital.

Cards

Among the many Christmas cards received by members of the News-Star and Morning World were those from O. C. Dawkins and Millard Hollingsworth. Both learned the early rudiments of reporting on the News-Star and each has gained unusual success.

O. C. Dawkins, who by the way is brother of Attorney Joe Dawkins, of Monroe, is one of the editorial writers on the Courier Journal, Louisville, Ky., famed in past years for Marse Henry Watterson, while Millard Hollingsworth is chief editorial writer for the leading newspaper in Detroit, Mich.

Promising

Goodfellows fund promises to reach $4,000 this year and may surpass it. The public in the Twin Cities for years has supported this humanitarian project with complete approval.

The story is current that another project, a considerable like Goodfellows, was proposed here this season. When the plan was disclosed to a local man whose heart and soul for years has been with Goodfellows and their efforts, he declared that it would do no good and would detract from the success of Goodfellows. The project was quickly dropped when the details were made known and given consideration.

This year it appears that Goodfellows are finding more need than ever. Prices for foodstuffs, higher than ever before, have taken toll and reduced many a family to the door of want. We would wish that Goodfellows could expend far more money than is easily possible to raise. As it is, we do the best we can with what can be raised.

Wonders

Add this to the "will wonders never cease" list: Howard Edwards, a local fireman who lives at 1405 Alabama, was waiting to catch a city bus Thursday afternoon. When he took his bus fare from his pocket, he accidentally dropped the pick with which he plays his guitar. Prolonged searching failed to turn it up, so Howard went on his way. The next morning, a lady on her way to town spotted it, took it home with her and was telling her family about finding the object. It didn't take long after that to find the owner — the lady was Mrs. Lillian Edwards, Howard's mother, and she hadn't known about her son's losing the pick.

Testimony recorded in the hearings became the basis for the expulsion of the giant Teamsters Union and the Bakery Workers Union from the AFL-CIC which accused them of being corruption-ridden groups bringing discredit to the labor movement.

stripped of all nuclear weapons in Central Europe.

In Paris, French officials said NATO powers early in January will propose that the foreign ministers' meet on disarmament anyway. The proposal will be in the form of replies to Bulganin's letters. The French said they hope the ministers could meet in February or March.

Khrushchev told Parliament the Soviet Union is ready for direct talks with the United States, a proposal rejected by Washington. He said if agreement between the two could be reached without prejudicing the interests of other nations, "good results for peace will be achieved."

"We tell the United States to abandon its policy of positions of strength," he said hoarsely and with emotion. "Let us solve our problems by peaceful means on the basis of equality.

"Let us outlaw war. Let us recognize the status quo—that is the situation existing in the world today with the existence of Socialist (Communist) and capitalist systems. Let us not interfere in each other's affairs.

"We must decide our problems, not by war but by peaceful means. The future must be decided, not by war or rockets or hydrogen bombs but on the basis of which of the two systems gives its people the best life."

Turning to the NATO summit conference, Khrushchev referred to the planned U.S. delivery of intermediate range missiles and nuclear warheads to Western Europe.

"The U.S.S.R. will take all necessary measures to strengthen its national defenses in order to deliver a decisive blow to any aggressor," he said.

"We do not hide the fact that if no solution is found to the disarmament question, we will continue to build modern arms. But we will do it in reasonable proportions."

He said the statement in the NATO communique that the West will never attack the Soviet Union unless attacked "is not badly put." But he added there were other parts of the communique "which have nothing to do with peace."

Khrushchev said he agreed with the NATO proposal to examine all suggestions leading to the relaxation of world tensions and added: "Why can't NATO and the Warsaw Pact countries (of Eastern Europe) agree on such questions?"

Khrushchev praised Norway and Denmark for refusing to accept missile bases and assailed acceptance by Turkey and Italy. Khrushchev said the establishment of missile bases in Turkey, next door to Russia, "would be a catastrophe for the population. The missiles could explode in their hands."

More Dutch Leave Islands For Holland

By JAMES WILDE

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 21 (AP)—More than 1,200 Dutchmen boarded a ship all decked out for Christmas today and set sail for Holland.

As they boarded the British troopship Captain Cook, the Indonesian government expressed willingness to start negotiations to end its war of nerves with the Netherlands for possession of Dutch West New Guinea.

Six hundred children, 560 women and 50 men—many of them lifelong residents of these islands—will spend Christmas at sea before arriving in Holland, a country few of them know. The ship's dining halls and lounges were festooned in Christmas colors.

Their departure brought to 4,500 the number of Dutch nationals who have left since Indonesia applied the heat in its dispute with Holland over West New Guinea. Officials said applications for exit visas are pouring in from the 46,000 persons who made up Indonesia's Dutch population. A shipload of 700 Dutch left Wednesday. They also are leaving in smaller batches by air.

Many of the Dutch have lived here all their lives and speak Dutch only as their second language. They are leaving under orders by the Indonesian government that nonworking and nonessential Dutch nationals must get out of the country.

CHANGING TIMES

Rev. Young Recalls Football Era Of Past

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The Rev. Z. T. Young of West Monroe is a former Louisiana Tech quarterback who speaks in terms of "mass and tandem" plays and recalls the year the forward pass first became legal.

"Everything has changed except the school colors and the mascot since I graduated in 1906," Young reminisced. Tech used to be called the Louisiana Industrial Institute. But through all the years the mascot has remained the bulldog and the blue and red colors have held their ground.

Since 1926 when he became a Baptist minister. Young has dedevoted his life to the church. Though he retired from the pulpit in 1949, he places his last absence from Sunday School at December 11, 1932. This gives him 25 years attendance record, for which he is justly proud.

After playing on the Bulldog varsity squad in 1903; '04 and '05, Young coached the team for a year in 1906 — after he had received his degree in engineering.

"Those were the years we played teams such as LSU and Tulane," the trim appearing man in his mid - seventies explained. "We had seven games the year I coached, including LSU, Monroe, and Shreveport. The city teams were made up of alumni players from the colleges and were sponsored by the YMCA's here and in Shreveport," Young said.

Pioneer Packers

Adding that he played on the Monroe team during his tour of coaching at Ruston — except in the Monroe - Bul'dog tangle, — Young named David Caldwell and Ernest L. Neville as pioneer packers of the pigskin.

"A full squad included 16 or 17 men in those days of 'iron man' football," the ex - quarterback explained. "The only time a substitution was allowed was when a man on the field was knocked out."

Young recalled his final year of coaching was 1914, at Merryville High School in Beauregard Parish. During World War I, he served in the executive department of the Army YMCA.

Looking through his clippings and photographs, Young brought out a picture of himself with Tech Coach Joe Aillet taken at the 1956 homecoming ceremonies, half - a - century after his own season as Bulldog pilot.

Against the present - day backdrop of specialization, Z. T. Young stands as a reminder of the first half of the present century — when it was not uncommon for an engineering student to play football, then coach it, to put study into practice in the lumber industry, then take a job as a tax collector, and, finally, devote 25 years to the ministry.

Crime Rate Drops As Holiday Nears

Monroe and parish law enforcement officers commented yesterday that the crime rate has dropped within the past few days and the jail resident totals have decreased.

In both the parish and city jails, more than 100 "guests" were lodged a few days ago. Yesterday, only 86 were in parish custody, while 85 were in the Monroe jail.

Possible reason for the slack in crime — Christmas.

REACTION STUDY

Gaither Report To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—The reaction of high government officials to the Gaither Report on America's defense position is now being assembled, the White House said today, and may be considered by President Eisenhower Monday.

This top level review of what still was described as a highly secret document may take place at a meeting of the National Security Council scheduled for 10:30 a.m. (EST) Monday at the White House.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said in a statement dictated to newsmen that while some material from defense and other security agencies is incorporated in the report, its main content consists of analyses, views and recommendations of "eminent men drawn primarily from civil life."

The Washington Post, in a copyrighted story yesterday, said the report "portrays a United States in the gravest danger in its history." It said the report calls for multi-billion-dollar increases in defense budgets through 1970 to catch up with Russian advances in missiles and other areas.

Hagerty said, in response to questions today, that he did not know whether the report or parts of it would be made public. He said he "would agree with" The Washington Post's reference to it as a "top secret report."

Here is the statement Hagerty dictated:

"The report is one of a number of advisory studies on national security matters, which, as you know, the President from time to time requests and receives from many sources.

"Defense and other security agencies of the government made available to the (Gaither) Committee factual material and estimates in their possession bearing on the committee's work, and some of this incorporated in the report.

"The report's main contents consist of analyses, views, and recommendations of the committee members who are eminent men drawn primarily from civil life."

Several Car Wrecks Are Reported Here

A collision at the corner of N. Second and Breard streets yesterday morning put two cars out of commission. Two hours later, a parked car was damaged by a hit-run vehicle.

The first mishap occurred at 10:45 a.m., when a 1957 four - door auto driven south on N. Second street by Mrs. Jessie S. Miles collided with a 1954 car, going west on Breard.

The impact knocked the second car more than a dozen feet, and turned it around in an opposite direction. Driver of the vehicle was Henry L. Hebert of Hebert, La.

Police said that the car driven by Mrs. Miles, of Route Four, Monroe continued for 10 feet after the crash, before it came to a halt.

The right side of the Hebert car, and the left front of the Miles vehicle were badly damaged. Both vehicles were towed away.

At 12:59 p.m., a 1950 car headed north on Seventh street plowed into the back of a car parked in front of 509 Seventh street.

Ida J. Evans, of 509 Seventh, told police that the driver of the other car backed up, and then left the scene.

One other minor accident occurred during the morning, but no injuries were reported.

Solon Wants Floridian In Rights Post

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 21 (AP)—Rep. Cramer (R-Fla) today asked President Eisenhower to apopint a Florida man to the vacancy on the civil rights commission "to provide a balance between the South and other areas of the country."

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of retired Justice Stanley F. Reed.

Cramer said he has urged the White House to name a Floridian or at least some one from the South.

The Republican congressman said he has been assured by President Eisenhower's office staff that his recommendation is being considered.

More Dutch Leave Islands For Holland

By JAMES WILDE

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 21 (AP)—More than 1,200 Dutchmen boarded a ship all decked out for Christmas today and set sail for Holland.

As they boarded the British troopship Captain Cook, the Indonesian government expressed willingness to start negotiations to end its war of nerves with the Netherlands for possession of Dutch West New Guinea.

Six hundred children, 560 women and 50 men—many of them lifelong residents of these islands—will spend Christmas at sea before arriving in Holland, a country few of them know. The ship's dining halls and lounges were festooned in Christmas colors.

Their departure brought to 4,500 the number of Dutch nationals who have left since Indonesia applied the heat in its dispute with Holland over West New Guinea. Officials said applications for exit visas are pouring in from the 46,000 persons who made up Indonesia's Dutch population. A shipload of 700 Dutch left Wednesday. They also are leaving in smaller batches by air.

Many of the Dutch have lived here all their lives and speak Dutch only as their second language. They are leaving under orders by the Indonesian government that nonworking and nonessential Dutch nationals must get out of the country.

Son Of Chrysler Chief Unassuming

FT. HOOD, Tex., Dec. 21 (AP)—The Army has converted an unassuming soldier who already knew plenty about racing cars into one of the maintenance experts who keep its trucks rolling. His father knows considerable about cars, too.

The soldier is Pvt. Nicholas Colbert, 19, of Bloomfield Heights, Mich., a Detroit suburb.

But few acquaintances learned before soldier Nick Colbert finished basic training here this week that he's also a son of Lester L. Colbert, president of the auto industry's giant Chrysler Corp.

Now the younger Colbert quietly has gone his way, taking leave before rejoining the 4th Armored Division for its January move to Germany in the army's Operation Gyroscope.

Before his departure, the youthful private confessed a discovery:

"There's a big difference between souping up your own hot rod racer and maintaining army cars and trucks."

As a boy Nick picked up many an idea about auto mechanics from haunting the Chrysler engineering plant near his home town. He had free access there because of his father. Presumably that should have been a handy stepping stone to a career, but the son had other ideas.

"It's a lot better to go out and get it for yourself," he told officers at this fort before he went on leave.

He thinks it only natural to be fascinated by cars, although not all the Colberts share this preoccupation.

"I am the only one in the family except my father who is interested in automobiles — mean their insides," the soldier said.

Milner Named NAM Director

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — R. E. Dumas Milner, Jackson industrialist and businessman, has been elected Mississippi's state director of the National Assn. of Manufactures.

He succeeds Jameson Jones, president of Corinth Machinery Co. Corinth.

As a member of the NAM board of directors, Milner will help guide the policies of an organization with nearly 22,000 members whose firms produce more than 80 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Milner, 41, won the first special Horatio Alger Award in 1956. He is the owner or leading stockholder of more than a score of enterprises.

Fire Destroys Missile Plans

SUNNYVALE, Calif., (AP)—A mysterious fire inside a large walk-in vault today destroyed top secret missile drawings and records at the Lockheed Missile System plant.

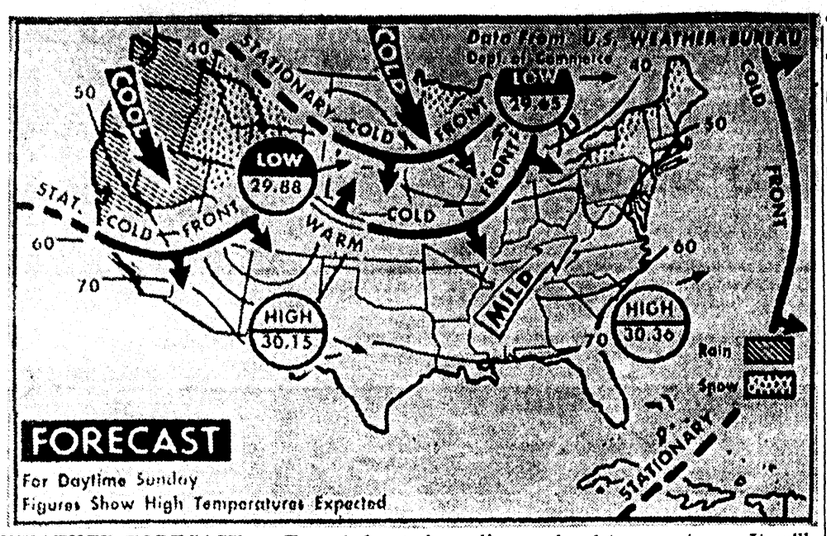
Firemen wearing oxygen masks struggled in dense smoke trying to choke off the smouldering blaze. Smoke filled the sprawling concrete structure. Firemen found the interior a mass of slowly smoldering papers.

Lockheed officials said duplicate copies of the drawings and records are stored at a secret site.

The building is one of four adjacent to the Navy's Moffett Field.

Church Schedules Church Program

DELHI (Special) —The Delhi First Baptist Church will present its annual Christmas program tonight at 7 p.m. under the direction of Jerry Horne, choir director. The program, entitled "The Christmas Story," will consist of a tableaux, with special music by the church choir, consisting of traditional Christmas carols and closing with "The Hallelujah Chorus."



WEATHER FORECAST — Except for light snow scattered through Lakes area and northern Appalachians, most of precipitation in U.S. today is expected to cover the area from Rockies westward, in form of snow or rain depending on local temperatures. It will be cooler over New England, parts of western Lakes and northern Plains and throughout the Pacific coast region, with little change in temperatures expected elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map)

WARNING TO U.S.

Sputniks Tell Ominous Story About Education

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The first executive director of Oklahoma's Frontiers of Science Foundation, now vice-president of Oklahoma State University, offers these comments on the educational situation.)

By ROBERT W. MACVICAR
Written For the United Press

STILLWATER, Okla., Dec. 21 (UP)— Radio transmitters in the two satellites no longer send any message to their Russian originators. They continue, however, to transmit a vital and important message to the American people —a message which is not adequately received or interpreted.

These masses of metal signal to all the world that a great achievement, surpassing anything we are capable of doing, has been made by the scientists and engineers of the Soviet Union. This message is a clear and unmistakable challenge to the scientific and technological dominance which the West, and in particular the United States, has enjoyed for hundreds of years.

It is obvious that Americans must take immediate action to institute a "crash" program in rocket fuels and motors, in guidance systems and in other areas pertinent to the new space age. We must accelerate our program so that we can overtake and surpass the Soviet capabilities in this field.

The direct military threat of the ICBM in Russian hands and not in ours, and the indirect effect of these devices in our foreign relations, demands the fullest possible American effort in this frontier area of modern science and technology.

It is not nearly so obvious, however, that the Russian achievement did not simply result from a program instituted after World War II to gain superiority in rocketry. It is the result of a much longer range plan to train large numbers of highly qualified scientists, engineers, and skilled technicians.

Russian education has developed at an amazing pace since the Bolshevik revolution. All evidence supports the view that the Russian educational system provides a rigorous program with reward for intellectual achievement and penalty for failure. The current Russian leaders have boasted that they intend to surpass us in every area of science and technology as they have in the field of rockets.

In our American democracy, control of the public schools remains at the local level. Some have suggested the present crisis is so grave as to demand a more centralized form of control. I believe, however, we can keep local control and at the same time move toward a more rigorous program in our schools.

Reluctance Of Educators

During the past few decades there has been a reluctance on the part of many educators to require able students to achieve to the level of their ability. While school patrons would not complain, the public which has attempted to provide special programs for the most intelligent has been accused of being undemocratic.

In both public schools and colleges, the pace of learning is often set by the average member of the class. Social pressures, stemming from adult anti-intellectual attitudes, has in many cases discouraged our most able youth.

Most teachers want to do a good job of teaching the exceptionally able youth. To do so requires the full force of public opinion, demanding a more rigorous curriculum for the college-bound student, more homework, and special advanced courses in languages, mathematics, and the sciences. This will cost more money, but money alone will not do the job.

Community by community we must recognize the student who is the good student as we now recognize the high school or college football star. We must "glamorize the eggheads."

I trust Americans are sufficiently alarmed by the message of the Sputniks to make, in time, the necessary funds to accomplish these changes.

Reds Ready To Talk-On Their Terms

MOSCOW, Dec. 21 (AP)—A study of speeches by Nikita Khrushchev and Andrei Gromyko to Parliament today convinced Western diplomats the Soviet Union is ready to talk disarmament only on its own terms.

The diplomats who sat in the visitors gallery as the Communist party secretary and the foreign minister assailed the West said neither said anything particulary new.

One veteran diplomat said their words were largely a restatement of the Soviet Union's policy as expressed in Premier Nikolai Bulganin's letters to Western leaders, even down to the last detail of criticism of NATO's defensive plans.

"Both Soviet speakers left many doors open for fresh negotiations on disarmament," said another Western diplomat. "There are any number of doors. But it is the West which will have to walk in, and there is no indication the Soviet Union is willing to compromise on any issue."

Some Western diplomats saw in Gromyko's proposals for a special U.N. Assembly session to discuss diarmament a Kremlin willingness to negotiate without the presence of Communist China. Red China is not a member of the U.N.

They said on the other hand it is probable that any special international conference as suggested by Gromyko would imply the presence of Peiping's representatives as far as the Soviet Union is concerned. The West is unlikely to accept this.

Several Western diplomats left the Supreme Soviet session convinced the time is not yet ripe for reopening disarmament talks with the Russians.

The winners are determined from candidates of the 128 Kappa Sigma active chapters. Scholarship student and fraternal activities are considered when selecting students to receive the awards.

'Daddy' Can't Use His Name In Court

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP) — Daddy Grace, Washington Negro evangelist, may be "Daddy" to his many followers, but not to U.S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

The question of Bishop C. M. Grace's nickname came up during Grace's federal court trial. He is charged by Mrs. Louvenia Royster of Washington with marrying her in 1923 and then deserting her in 1928 after the birth of a daughter. She's asking for support and alimony.

Mrs. Royster, a former Georgia school teacher, claims Grace was known as John Royster at the time she says they married. Grace denies he ever used the name.

Her attorney, Jesse H. Chessin, asked Mrs. Royster as she testified yesterday if she had seen "Daddy Grace" in 1933 during an evangelist meeting in Waycross, Ga., then her home.

But Judge Holtzoff interrupted.

"You can call him Grace or Royster, but don't call him Daddy," the judge said. "Please don't call people by their nicknames in this court."

The exchange between the judge and lawyer came after Mrs. Royster had stepped from the witness stand, walked to where Grace was sitting and pointed her finger at him.

"That's the man I married," she said. "He's the man."

Frank Yasmer, Grace's attorney, said in his opening remarks Newcomer, Jr. The Church has invited the public to attend.

that he would produce a passport and mementos to show that Grace was on his way to Jerusalem the day Mrs. Royster claims they were married.

Yasmer said also Grace denies Mrs. Royster's allegations of paternity.

Yasmer contended at another point that Mrs. Royster had brought the suit partly because of "widespread publicity" received by Grace.

"I guess I have been ignorant," said the judge. "I never heard about the defendant until yesterday."

The courtroom was packed with Grace's followers. Included in the throng were several of Grace's gold-and-blue uniformed guards.

The bishop sat through the proceedings patiently. Ocassionaly he flicked the three-inch-long fingernails he has cultivated on his left hand. The nails were colored red, white and blue.

The trial is in recess until Monday.

Frank Kennan Found Guilty Of Conspiracy

DANVILLE, Ill., Dec. 21 (AP)—A federal court jury today convicted Frank Kennan, Cook County assessor, of income tax evasion.

Keenan's two sons, Edward, 33, and George, 31, were found innocent of charges of conspiracy in the same case.

Keenan's two brothers, James, 60, of Ojai, Calif., and Mark, 65, of Chicago, were convicted of conspiracy.

Frank Keenan was convicted of eight counts in the 11-count indictment. The penalty could be give several years imprisonment on each count.

Frank Keenan was accused of evading $211,000 in taxes on his income in the 1950-52 period, and the others were accused of conspiring to defraud the government in the tax case.

Son Of Chrysler Chief Unassuming

FT. HOOD, Tex., Dec. 21 (AP)—The Army has converted an unassuming soldier who already knew plenty about racing cars into one of the maintenance experts who keep its trucks rolling. His father knows considerable about cars, too.

The soldier is Pvt. Nicholas Colbert, 19, of Bloomfield Heights, Mich., a Detroit suburb.

But few acquaintances learned before soldier Nick Colbert finished basic training here this week that he's also a son of Lester L. Colbert, president of the auto industry's giant Chrysler Corp.

Now the younger Colbert quietly has gone his way, taking leave before rejoining the 4th Armored Division for its January move to Germany in the army's Operation Gyroscope.

Before his departure, the youthful private confessed a discovery:

"There's a big difference between souping up your own hot rod racer and maintaining army cars and trucks."

As a boy Nick picked up many an idea about auto mechanics from haunting the Chrysler engineering plant near his home town. He had free access there because of his father. Presumably that should have been a handy stepping stone to a career, but the son had other ideas.

"It's a lot better to go out and get it for yourself," he told officers at this fort before he went on leave.

He thinks it only natural to be fascinated by cars, although not all the Colberts share this preoccupation.

"I am the only one in the family except my father who is interested in automobiles — mean their insides," the soldier said.

Milner Named NAM Director

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP)—R. E. Dumas Milner, Jackson industrialist and businessman, has been elected Mississippi's state director of the National Assn. of Manufactures.

He succeeds Jameson Jones, president of Corinth Machinery Co. Corinth.

As a member of the NAM board of directors, Milner will help guide the policies of an organization with nearly 22,000 members whose firms produce more than 80 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Milner, 41, won the first special Horatio Alger Award in 1956. He is the owner or leading stockholder of more than a score of enterprises.

Fire Destroys Missile Plans

SUNNYVALE, Calif., (AP)—A mysterious fire inside a large walk-in vault today destroyed top secret missile drawings and records at the Lockheed Missile System plant.

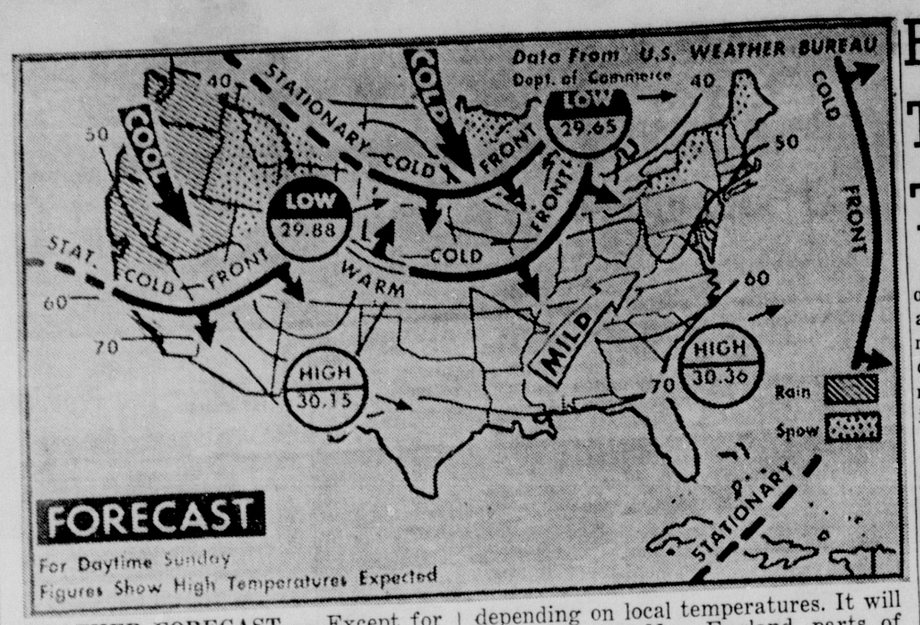
Firemen wearing oxygen masks struggled in dense smoke trying to choke off the smouldering blaze. Smoke filled the sprawling concrete structure. Firemen found the interior a mass of slowly smoldering papers.

Lockheed officials said duplicate copies of the drawings and records are stored at a secret site.

The building is one of four adjacent to the Navy's Moffett Field.

Church Schedules Church Program

DELHI (Special) —The Delhi First Baptist Church will present its annual Christmas program tonight at 7 p.m. under the direction of Jerry Horne, choir director. The program, entitled "The Christmas Story," will consist of a tableaux, with special music by the church choir, consisting of traditional Christmas carols and closing with "The Hallelujah Chorus."



WEATHER FORECAST — Except for light snow scattered through Lakes area and northern Appalachians, most of precipitation in U.S. today is expected to cover the area from Rockies westward, in form of snow or rain depending on local temperatures. It will be cooler over New England, parts of western Lakes and northern Plains and throughout the Pacific coast region, with little change in temperatures expected elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map)

WARNING TO U.S.

Sputniks Tell Ominous Story About Education

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The first executive director of Oklahoma's Frontiers of Science Foundation, now vice-president of Oklahoma State University, offers these comments on the educational situation.)

By ROBERT W. MACVICAR
Written For the United Press

STILLWATER, Okla., Dec. 21 (UP)— Radio transmitters in the two satellites no longer send any message to their Russian originators. They continue, however, to transmit a vital and important message to the American people —a message which is not adequately received or interpreted.

These masses of metal signal to all the world that a great achievement, surpassing anything we are capable of doing, has been made by the scientists and engineers of the Soviet Union. This message is a clear and unmistakable challenge to the scientific and technological dominance which the West, and in particular the United States, has enjoyed for hundreds of years.

It is obvious that Americans must take immediate action to institute a "crash" program in rocket fuels and motors, in guidance systems and in other areas pertinent to the new space age. We must accelerate our program so that we can overtake and surpass the Soviet capabilities in this field.

The direct military threat of the ICBM in Russian hands and not in ours, and the indirect effect of these devices in our foreign relations, demands the fullest possible American effort in this frontier area of modern science and technology.

It is not nearly so obvious, however, that the Russian achievement did not simply result from a program instituted after World War II to gain superiority in rocketry. It is the result of a much longer range plan to train large numbers of highly qualified scientists, engineers, and skilled technicians.

Russian education has developed at an amazing pace since the Bolshevik revolution. All evidence supports the view that the Russian educational system provides a rigorous program with reward for intellectual achievement and penalty for failure. The current Russian leaders have boasted that they intend to surpass us in every area of science and technology as they have in the field of rockets.

In our American democracy, control of the public schools remains at the local level. Some have suggested the present crisis is so grave as to demand a more centralized form of control. I believe, however, we can keep local control and at the same time move toward a more rigorous program in our schools.

Reluctance Of Educators

During the past few decades there has been a reluctance on the part of many educators to require able students to achieve to the level of their ability. While school patrons would not complain, the public which has attempted to provide special programs for the most intelligent has been accused of being undemocratic.

In both public schools and colleges, the pace of learning is often set by the average member of the class. Social pressures, stemming from adult anti-intellectual attitudes, has in many cases discouraged our most able youth.

Most teachers want to do a good job of teaching the exceptionally able youth. To do so requires the full force of public opinion, demanding a more rigorous curriculum for the college-bound student, more homework, and special advanced courses in languages, mathematics, and the sciences. This will cost more money, but money alone will not do the job.

Community by community we must recognize the student who is the good student as we now recognize the high school or college football star. We must "glamorize the eggheads."

I trust Americans are sufficiently alarmed by the message of the Sputniks to make, in time, the necessary funds to accomplish these changes.

Eastland, Fulbright Ask Long-Range Farm Credit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP) — Sens. Eastland (D-Miss) and Fulbright (D-Ark) yesterday called for adequate long-range credit for farmers in their states to meet crop losses from excessive rains.

They told R. B. Tootel, governor of the Farm Credit Administration (FCA) that present credit machinery for farmers and their creditors is inadequate.

The two endorsed a proposal that the old federal mortgage loan program or the federal land bank commissioner loan program be resumed "so that farmers will have available second mortgage and chattel refinancing over a period of years. to enable them to pay their 1957 debts."

Eastland and Fulbright — the latter chairman of the Senate Banking Committee—told Tootel they plan hearings next month on credit legislation and urged him and his advisors to attend.

Continued heavy rains in southern areas have seriously damaged cotton and other crops and resulted in heavy losses to many growers.

Some 59 counties in Mississippi, 52 in Arkansas and some in Missouri and Tennessee have been declared disaster areas by the Agriculture Department. This action makes farmers eligible to seek one year, low interest production loans. Such loans, however, require that creditors sign agreements to the effect they will not press the farmers for payment of various operating debts.

Eastland and Gulbright in a letter to Tootel referred to a report by P. F. Williams, member of the national advisory committee for the FCA fifth district, who outlined the situation confronting farmers in the area.

Williams said he could not see how existing production credit associations could possibly finance the farmers.

"The farmers," he said, "have land payments to make, taxes, implement notes to meet, poison from last year's crops to pay for. In fact, the farmers have innumerable obligations to meet and the production credit associations simply cannot lend them enough money to meet their debts and money with which to produce a crop in 1958."

Eastland and Fulbright said that while the situation in the area is bad "it is not so bad that it cannot be handled by a realistic appraisal of the magnitude of the task, coupled with the realization that the primary need is adequate credit over a sufficient length of time to enable the obligations and losses to be liquidated."

The two senators said they will introduce. early next year an amendment to the small business act to enable the Small Business Administration to extend its disaster loan program to rain-damaged areas.

While this would not be the answer to the problem—since such credit would be extended to small businessmen rather than farmers —the senators said "it would be helpful."

IN ARGENTINA

6-Foot American Finds He's Giant

By BRIAN BELL

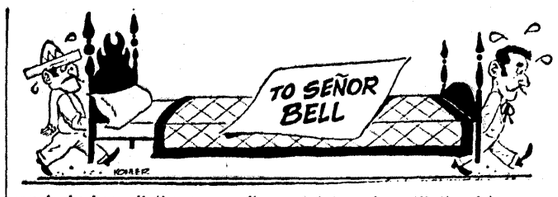
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Throw away your elevator heels and come to Buenos Aires, Shorty. You won't need them here.

This is the city of Lilliputians and woe be it to the 6-footer who ventures out.

There are big, tall Argentines like actor Fernando Lamas but they are few and far between. Most of the men here stand about 5 feet 7; the ladies slightly over 5 feet.

Consequently beds, tables, chairs, buses, awnings and the like are built to this size. And the 6-footer goes around in a perpetual crouch as if he were seeking lost pesos on the sidewalks.

My height is exactly ½ inch over 6 feet — not especially tall by United States standards. But down here I don't fit at all.



The collectivo (small bus) I ride regularly has all the commodious measurements of a foreign sports car. Its roof is built low to the ground. I am built high to the roof. And often the twain do meet.

My good American grey fedora was discarded after two weeks on the collectivo. Its crown was a misshapen mess. And from my lonely heights I twist downward hoping to spot my stop in the gloom. Plaintively I call the street at intervals until the driver mercifully releases me from my medieval cage.

After two weeks of shopping my wife has despaired of finding a bed long enough for a mere 6-foot-½ incher. We are having one made.

The Argentine is long torsoed and short legged. Also he sits up straight at the dining room table, something Americans do not. In restaurants they all appear giants. Then they get to their feet and rise to all of 5 feet 7.

Few eating places or private dining rooms have tables that accommodate long - legged Americans. The transplanted tall ones from the States are getting more and more slouchy in their sitting.

The Argentine women do little to appear tall. Seldom do they wear high heels except on the heaviest of dates. The 5 and 6-inch spikes of the States are virtually unknown.

The short boy in the States who always has trouble finding a date small enough for the big dance could find a large field to pick from here. The tall Americans, of course, don't necessarily suffer going out with the tiny girls in Buenos Aires either. For what they lack in height, they make up in other dimensions.

WORST SINCE WAR

Non-Farm Workers Decline In Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — Non-farm employment in Mississippi showed the greatest loss from October to November for any similar period since World War II.

This was announced today by T. Marx Huff, executive director of the Mississippi Employment Security Commissio. Huff blamed heavy rains in November.

Huff said non-farm employment dropped by 3,400 to 369,400, compared with a 1,200 loss in the similar 1956 period.

Huff said substantial employment losses occurred from October to November in logging and sawmills, food, concrete products, construction, transportation, communication, public utilities, trades and services.

Shipbuilding continued as a bright spot, showing an increase for the eighth straight month.

Manufacturing employment continued slow, with the November estimate of 106,100 down 1,500 from October and 1,600 below a year ago. While seasonal losses are normal for lumber and food, decreases were greater than usual, Huff said. Some cutbacks were seen in meat packing and poultrying processes.

Over the year gains in furniture, stone, clay, glass, metals, machinery and transportation equipment failed to offset large losses in lumber, apparel and chemicals, the report showed.

Non-manufacturing, non - farm employment dropped by 1,900 from October to November, compared with a 700 drop during the similar 1956 period. The November employment estimate of 363,300 is 2,400 below a year ago. Bad weather, with a resultant reduction of cotton crop, was given most blame for the heavy losses.

Government employment moved up 400 during the month as the state Forestry Commission added season workers and the Legislature convened in special session.

Eastland, Fulbright Ask Long-Range Farm Credit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP) — Sens. Eastland (D-Miss) and Fulbright (D-Ark) yesterday called for adequate long-range credit for farmers in their states to meet crop losses from excessive rains.

They told R. B. Tootel, governor of the Farm Credit Administration (FCA) that present credit machinery for farmers and their creditors is inadequate.

The two endorsed a proposal that the old federal mortgage loan program or the federal land bank commissioner loan program be resumed "so that farmers will have available second mortgage and chattel refinancing over a period of years. to enable them to pay their 1957 debts."

Eastland and Fulbright — the latter chairman of the Senate Banking Committee—told Tootel they plan hearings next month on credit legislation and urged him and his advisors to attend.

Continued heavy rains in southern areas have seriously damaged cotton and other crops and resulted in heavy losses to many growers.

Some 59 counties in Mississippi, 52 in Arkansas and some in Missouri and Tennessee have been declared disaster areas by the Agriculture Department. This action makes farmers eligible to seek one year, low interest production loans. Such loans, however, require that creditors sign agreements to the effect they will not press the farmers for payment of various operating debts.

Eastland and Gulbright in a letter to Tootel referred to a report by P. F. Williams, member of the national advisory committee for the FCA fifth district, who outlined the situation confronting farmers in the area.

Williams said he could not see how existing production credit associations could possibly finance the farmers.

"The farmers," he said, "have land payments to make, taxes, implement notes to meet, poison from last year's crops to pay for. In fact, the farmers have innumerable obligations to meet and the production credit associations simply cannot lend them enough money to meet their debts and money with which to produce a crop in 1958."

Eastland and Fulbright said that while the situation in the area is bad "it is not so bad that it cannot be handled by a realistic appraisal of the magnitude of the task, coupled with the realization that the primary need is adequate credit over a sufficient length of time to enable the obligations and losses to be liquidated."

The two senators said they will introduce early next year an amendment to the small business act to enable the Small Business Administration to extend its disaster loan program to rain-damaged areas.

While this would not be the answer to the problem—since such credit would be extended to small businessmen rather than farmers—the senators said "it would be helpful."

IN ARGENTINA

6-Foot American Finds He's Giant

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Throw away your elevator heels and come to Buenos Aires, Shorty. You won't need them here.

This is the city of Lilliputians and woe be it to the 6-footer who ventures out.

There are big, tall Argentines like actor Fernando Lamas but they are few and far between. Most of the men here stand about 5 feet 7; the ladies slightly over 5 feet.

Consequently beds, tables, chairs, buses, awnings and the like are built to this size. And the 6-footer goes around in a perpetual crouch as if he were seeking lost pesos on the sidewalks.

My height is exactly ½ inch over 6 feet — not especially tall by United States standards. But down here I don't fit at all.

The collectivo (small bus) I ride regularly has all the commodious measurements of a foreign sports car. Its roof is built low to the ground. I am built high to the roof. And often the twain do meet.

My good American grey fedora was discarded after two weeks on the collectivo. Its crown was a misshapen mess. And from my lonely heights I twist downward hoping to spot my stop in the gloom. Plaintively I call the street at intervals until the driver mercifully releases me from my medieval cage.

After two weeks of shopping my wife has despaired of finding a bed long enough for a mere 6-foot-½ incher. We are having one made.

The Argentine is long torsoed and short legged. Also he sits up straight at the dining room table, something Americans do not. In restaurants they all appear gi- ants. Then they get to their feet and rise to all of 5 feet 7.

Few eating places or private dining rooms have tables that accommodate long - legged Americans. The transplanted tall ones from the States are getting more and more slouchy in their sitting.

The Argentine women do little to appear tall. Seldom do they wear high heels except on the heaviest of dates. The 5 and 6-inch spikes of the States are virtually unknown.

The short boy in the States who always has trouble finding a date small enough for the big dance could find a large field to pick from here. The tall Americans, of course, don't necessarily suffer going out with the tiny girls in Buenos Aires either. For what the lack in height, they make up in other dimensions.

WORST SINCE WAR

Non-Farm Workers Decline In Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — Non-farm employment in Mississippi showed the greatest loss from October to November for any similar period since World War II.

This was announced today by T. Marx Huff, executive director of the Mississippi Employment Security Commissio. Huff blamed heavy rains in November.

Huff said non-farm employment dropped by 3,400 to 369,400, compared with a 1,200 loss in the similar 1956 period.

Huff said substantial employment losses occurred from October to November in logging and sawmills, food, concrete products, construction, transportation, communication, public utilities, trades and services.

Shipbuilding continued as a bright spot, showing an increase for the eighth straight month.

Manufacturing employment continued slow, with the November estimate of 106,100 down 1,500 from October and 1,600 below a year ago. While seasonal losses are normal for lumber and food, decreases were greater than usual, Huff said. Some cutbacks were seen in meat packing and poultrying processes.

Over the year gains in furniture, stone, clay, glass, metals, machinery and transportation equipment failed to offset large losses in lumber, apparel and chemicals, the report showed.

Non-manufacturing, non - farm employment dropped by 1,900 from October to November, compared with a 700 drop during the similar 1956 period. The November employment estimate of 363,300 is 2,400 below a year ago. Bad weather, with a resultant reduction of cotton crop, was given most blame for the heavy losses.

Government employment moved up 400 during the month as the state Forestry Commission added season workers and the Legislature convened in special session.

Fresh bread crumbs make a moist stuffing, day - old bread a medium - moist dressing and toasted crumbs make a dry crunchy type.

MISSILE PLANT

Know-How Concentration In The Army's Redstone

Editor's Note—A tremendous concentration of know-how and skill goes into the making of the Army's Redstone, America's first medium range missile in full production. In the following article, a reporter permitted a look behind the scenes tells how the weapon is built.

By DWIGHT PITKIN

DETROIT (AP) — Here in the world's automotive center a new kind of factory is developing to meet the challenge of the space age.

Currently it is the production home of the Redstone—the largest and most accurate of our new operational missiles.

The Redstone is being built by Chrysler Corp. in a government-owned plant that covers an area about the size of 50 football fields. At present, only part of the huge plant is in use.

But, as C. A. Brady, operating manager of Chrysler's missile operations says, "it is certainly unique—first, in the ratio of technical people employed, and then we are in unique territory. We don't have a reservoir of experience to call on."

Some valuable experience, of course, has been garnered by Chrysler in executing its multi-million-dollar contract to develop and build missiles for the Army. Chrysler is expected soon to go into mass production of the Jupiter, the Army's intermediate range ballistic missile. One reason it will be in good position for the job is that many parts of the Redstone are interchangeable with Jupiter, sources in Washington said.

Chrysler is the biggest corporation engaged in ballistics missile production, though that business is a comparatively small part of its manufacturing.

The Army isn't saying what the daily missiles output is at the plant here. A tour of the elaborate layout, however, gives the impression that the output is not large.

Making missiles at the present time is not an assembly line job, even at this huge installation 16 miles north of the heart of Detroit.

An engineer-scientist quipped: "The paper used in making preparations to build a missile outweighs the missile."

The weight of the Redstone is kept secret. Its prototype—the German V2—weighed 17 tons at launching.

The giant robots emerging from this plant are made with the precision of fine watches. All parts are tested and retested.

A production supervisor said the goal is "reliability — something that never fails."

This striving for perfection has paid off in performance. The 63-foot-long Redstone now is a tactical weapon in the hands of the troops. It carries a nuclear warhead with accuracy to targets more than 200 miles away.

The current missile work force here is about 4,500, all highly skilled.

Operations boss Brady described the making of missiles as a team project.

By that he meant the missile factory has about 2,000 suppliers throughout the nation, including many small plants in the Detroit area. They in turn have many subcontractors.

As prime contractor for the Army, Chrysler provides engineering services, designs and development, and final assembly.

Basic research for the Redstone was carried on at the Army's Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala. and that's how the missile got its name.

Research and development are continued at the factory.

The Redstone's nose is tested in a huge electric toaster that was developed at the factory. The oven looks like a giant hair dryer and simulates the consuming frictional heat the missile's cone has to withstand.

Entering the main office of the factory, you have the feeling of walking into a large school building. The operations manager reminds you of a college president and his assistants look like the professors—young and scholarly.

A hissing sound comes from an enclosure protected by a wire mesh coat. Technicians are testing the robot's innards under terrific air pressure. If the air chambers or tubings burst, broken metal won't fly all over the place. Chrysler engineers developed the protective device in working out methods of static testing.

In an open space, engineers have what appear to be surveyor's instruments lined up. They are painstakingly checking the tolerance of a section of the tank-like fuselage. Everything must be in true alignment. There is no margin for error.

Workmen wheel the missile sections from one testing and assembly area to another on big dollies. At one stage the sections are painted chartreuse. The final paint is white.

In one area technicians are installing and checking the complicated wiring that makes up the nerves of the robot—electronics at its finest.

Finally the missile is assembled. The main sections are the tail and rocket engine, the fuel tank in the center, and the nose section that will contain the warhead and control unit.

Cradled on a dolly as carefully as a baby the rocket is wheeled into an enclosure for a complete checkup.

PRESIDENT HOME

Ike Briefs Nixon On NATO Meet

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower called in Vice President Nixon yesterday and gave him a 45-minute personal account of this week's NATO talks in Paris.

The conference was not disclosed until hours after it was over.

It was the main business of the day for Eisenhower, back at his desk and faced with massive problems in trying to attain the goal of peace through strength.

Eisenhower had an appointment with Budget Director Percival Brundage but it was postponed in favor of the visit with Nixon.

Within the next few weeks Eisenhower, with the help of Brundage and other advisers, must put together a budget message expected to ask Congress to approve another peacetime record spending budget. It could reach 7 billion dollars or more as the United States tries to meet the challenge of Russian military-scientific advances.

Weighty and sometimes painful decisions must be made on how much to ask for the defense, including scientific and engineering training, for foreign aid — and what domestic programs should be dropped or postponed.

Secretary of Defense McElroy said today the Defense Department will be seeking about another billion for missiles and other things for the fiscal year that will end next June 30.

Defense spending is now going along at about the rate of 8½ billion a year, out of 72 billion in the whole of government spending. Officials have talked of raising the defense share in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 by about two billion to 40 billion or so.

The Washington Post said today in a copyrighted story that a top-secret document given to Eisenhower Nov. 7 calls for far larger increases.

It said this document, prepared by a committee headed by H. Rowan Gaither Jr., former head of the Ford Foundation, describes the United States as in the gravest danger in its history.

To help meet this danger, posed by Russia, the report was said to have recommended a rapidly rising military budget through 1970, reaching in the years 1960 and 1961 a peak outlay of about eight billion dollars a year in additional expenditures over and above the current 8 billion defense outlay.

The conference was not disclosed until hours after it was over.

It was the main business of the day for Eisenhower, back at his desk and faced with massive problems in trying to attain the goal of peace through strength.

Eisenhower had an appointment with Budget Director Percival Brundage but it was postponed in favor of the visit with Nixon.

Within the next few weeks Eisenhower, with the help of Brundage and other advisers, must put together a budget message expected to ask Congress to approve another peacetime record spending budget. It could reach 7 billion dollars or more as the United States tries to meet the challenge of Russian military-scientific advances.

Weighty and sometimes painful decisions must be made on how much to ask for the defense, including scientific and engineering training, for foreign aid — and what domestic programs should be dropped or postponed.

Secretary of Defense McElroy said today the Defense Department will be seeking about another billion for missiles and other things for the fiscal year that will end next June 30.

Defense spending is now going along at about the rate of 8½ billion a year, out of 72 billion in the whole of government spending. Officials have talked of raising the defense share in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 by about two billion to 40 billion or so.

The Washington Post said today in a copyrighted story that a top-secret document given to Eisenhower Nov. 7 calls for far larger increases.

It said this document, prepared by a committee headed by H. Rowan Gaither Jr., former head of the Ford Foundation, describes the United States as in the gravest danger in its history.

To help meet this danger, posed by Russia, the report was said to have recommended a rapidly rising military budget through 1970, reaching in the years 1960 and 1961 a peak outlay of about eight billion dollars a year in additional expenditures over and above the current 8 billion defense outlay.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

A week ago we wrote concerning the recreation program of Monroe, its growth from no program at all to the many-phased undertaking of today. We had at least one interested reader, friend L. P. "Eddie" McLane, Louisiana Tech professor, director of student health service, a former Tech coach, and a man vitally interested in Ruston's youth programs. After reading "Coach" McLane's letter, we decided to pass it on to show what Ruston is doing for its boys and girls.

The letter:

"Dear Paul:

"I have just read your column of yesterday (last Sunday). In my opinion this is one of the finest things that you have done in a long time.

"We began our park and recreation program (at Ruston) in 1943. As you recall this was during World War II. We had 31 so called juvenile delinquency cases in five weeks. Incidentally, I do not call them juvenile delinquency problems, I call them parental delinquency problems.

"The late Mr. T. L. James Sr., president of T. L. James Company, appropriated $50,000 and 54 individuals appropriated $100 each to start the program. As you know, we are a small college town and our city fathers, at that time, did not have the money to run this program. The city judge was nice enough to say we had cleared up the problem before the summer was over.

"The Louisiana Foundation, as it was chartered in 1943, was joined by the city in 1948 in running this program. In 1952 the people of our little city voted a 2 mill tax for the maintenance of this program and a 1 mill tax for the construction of a colored swimming pool.

"During 1956 the citizens of Ruston raised $25,000 to build a recreation center. This building is 100 x 50. This center is located immediately to the rear of the high school stadium and on the high school grounds. On the weekends, during the school year, we operate this recreation center for the high schol students and one for the junior high school students in our downtown Junior High School. We also operate a colored recreation center which is about the same size as the white youth center. They have the same facilities that the white children have. In addition to the colored swimming pool, the city gave the park and recreation board 26 acres to be used as play fields for the colored youngsters. In the summer these centers are open from 3 to 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 10 at night.

"We begin our baseball program at the age of 7. The 'Biddy' League is youngsters from 7-8, the 'Midget' League is from 9-10, the 'Little' League is 11-12, the 'Pony' League is 13-14, and the 'Buddy' League is 15-16. We have 7 teams in the North Louisiana Buddy League and they let me serve as president. These youngsters play 2 games each week. The league is composed of Jonesboro, Hodge, Ruston, Dubach, Bernice, Farmerville and Sterlington.

"We have a softball league for 'old men.' They play 4 nights each week during June, July and August. We have a tennis program and a wonderful arts and crafts program. The Red Cross runs the swimming program. During the winter months we have a boy working on the grounds of 5 elementary schools. We have 5 girls working with a group of over 500 Girl Scouts at the Girl Scout Center.

"You may wonder how we operate on such a small amount of money. We pay our majors here at Tech 75 cents per hour to work in this program. We are, in a way, using this program as a laboratory for our majors in health and physical education.

"We are mighty proud of our program. The city of Shreveport has a wonderful program. They spend almost $400,000 per year.

"You have wonderful schools, churches, and homes in the city of Monroe. Jack Hesketh has done a wonderful job with the facilities that he has had at hand but, Paul, your schools, homes, and churches need some help in keeping these youngsters off the streets. We believe that a good recreation program will fill this need. Do not let those boys and girls down.

"Sincerely yours

"L. P. McLane, professor

"Director Student Health Service."

Thank you, Coach, but, as you probably know by now, Monroe property owners last Tuesday decided Monroe's kids are not worth a proposed $1,650,000 bond issue for expansion of existing recreation facilities. It was like telling the growing boy he has to wear last year's pants even if they are a size too small and he's ready to pop out at the seams. Maybe some day we'll find us a T. L. James by another name.

Memo to football fans in Tallulah and Delhi: The writeups on your football games Friday night arrived too late to go in our first edition so we're reprinting them in today's area edition. Our Tallulah correspondent, Bob White, phoned yesterday and begged us to get all the Trojan fans off his back by reporting that he tried for an hour and seven minutes to get a phone call in on the game before succeeding.

While we're at it, congratulations to the Trojans and the Bears.

IN CARROUSEL

Tennessee Beats LSU For Third

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 21 (AP)—Charlie Scott, sub forward for Tennessee, made only one point tonight, but it was a big one, giving the Volunteers a 63-62 victory over Louisiana State in the third place battle of the Carrousel Basketball Tournament.

Scott's foul shot with 52 seconds to go decided the game between the Southeastern Conference teams.

Louisiana Tech met Alabama for the championship.

Clemson wrapped up the consolation title, or fifth place, with a 71-66 victory over Bucknell and Lafayette laced Davidson 65-46 to take seventh place.

LSU, down by 10 points early in the first half, cut the Tennessee lead to 37-34 at the half and then shot ahead 46-45 with 14:32 left of the last half.

Tennessee spent the next 13 minutes chasing the Tigers, drawing even three times, but never going ahead until big Gene Tormohlen dropped two free throws with 1:24 to go, making it 62-60.

Scott made his first foul toss good and missed the second. Wayne Monson hit for two LSU freethrows to finish the scoring. The Bayou Bengals got the ball with seven seconds left, but couldn't get off a shot before the final horn.

Tennessee had gone six minutes without a point midway of the last half, playing without Capt. Leon Ammerman, who was withdrawn after he drew his fourth personal.

Capt. Dom Merle of LSU led all scorers with 23 points. Tormohlen had 21 points and as many rebounds to lead the Vols.

Clemson hit an amazing 68.8 per cent of its first half shots to take a 49-34 halftime lead over Bucknell. Ed Brinkley was the chief gunner in the breathtaking display as he dropped eight of 10 shots.

Clemson at one time led by 19 points but Bucknell began picking away and, with Clemson suddenly losing its touch, the lead was narrowed to three points 65-62, with 4:20 to go.

Then the Tigers made it certain with five points in a minute on a foul by Doug Hoffman and layup baskets by Don Carver and Brinkley. It was Brinkley's only basket of the last half.

Clemson finished with a 54.5 shooting mark, hitting 30 of 55. Vince Yockel was the leader with 21 points and Brinkley followed with 18. Ellis Harley'u 19 points and 15 by Jack Flanegan were high for Bucknell.

Davidson's loss to Lafayette was its ninth straight in three years of Carrousel play.

Lafayette, in its best showing of the tournament, after upset losses to Louisiana State and Clemson, hit 45.9 per cent of its shots again Davidson's 31.7.

4-MINUTE MILERS

Lincoln Winner Over Jungwirth

By RICHARD VOUMARD

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 21 (UP)—Mervyn Lincoln of Australia won a battle of four-minute milers from Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia today in 4:05.7.

Lincoln, running his usual tactical race, roared from behind with a 55.7-second last lap at Olympic Park to beat John Murray of South Melbourne by 18 yards. hind, in 4:08.4. Murray's time was 4:07.7.

Jungwirth, making his last appearance of an Australian tour, finished third, another five yards behind, in 4:08.4. Murray's time was 4:07.7.

The meet was watched by American tennis star Herb Flam and a disappointingly small crowd of 1,200.

In other events, Kevin Gosper, an Australian Olympian who ran for Michigan State, won the quarter miler in 47.5 seconds, only a half second off his national record. Hector Hogan, who shares the world record for the 100-yard dash, won his specialty.

Flam, dropped from the U.S. Davis Cup challenge round team because of nervousness and insomnia, passed up a chance to watch his tennis buddies practice in favor of a visit to the track meet.

The 28-year-old tennis campaigner from Beverly Hills, Calif., sitting with a United Press sports writer, enjoyed the track meet immensely and was relaxed throughout. Flam was impressed by Lincoln's winning sprint in the mile despite a strong headwind in the stretch.

"Boy, that's running," Flam said. "Lincoln sure is in form."

Jungwirth, winding up a tour which proved both an artistic and financial loss, also had kind words for Lincoln.

"I really wanted to make fast time but I just couldn't match Lincoln's sprint," Jungwirth said. "I can only blame an attack of the Asian flu for my poor showing during this tour."

Jungwirth tried to set the early pace but finally gave way to John Murray, an Australian club runner. Then Lincoln took over midway through the last lap and pulled away.

Lincoln's best mile was a 3:59.0 effort here last March. Jungwirth ran 3:59.1 last July at London but placed only third to Derek Ibbotson of England and Ron Delany of Ireland. Ibbotson set a world record of 3:57.2 in that race.

Jungwirth also holds the world record for 1,500 meters with a 3:38.1 clocking in his homeland seven days before his fast London mile.

Bullin Nips Happy Guy At Fair Grounds

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Bullin, a stretch scorcher from the J. H. Homan Stable, boomed out of the pack at the final turn and nipped long-short Happy Guy by a scant nose today in the $10,000 Yuletide Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Last horse out of the gate in the 14-horse field, Bullin picked his spots at the head of the stretch and battled Happy Guy the final eighth of a mile. Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Booray took the show spot.

A lukewarm favorite of the crowd of 11,580 that turned out in bright, springlike weather, Bullin returned $7, 4.80 and 2.80. Happy Guy, from the H. G. Bockman stable, paid $22.40 and 880 and Booray returned $3.60.

Bullin had his work cut out when the bulky field left the barrier in the five and one-half furlong dash for two-year-olds.

The victory was worth $6,500 to Homan, who lives in Cincinnati. It was his seventh triumph in 16 starts. Turner Catledge, managing editor of The New York Times, aided in presenting a trophy to Homan.

Bullin's time over the fast track was 1:06, one second off the track record.

Joe W. Brown's Fanciful Miss scored a two-length victory in the six-furlong secondary feature. Jockey J. R. Adams brought the 3-year-old daughter of King Dorsett up on the outside and she was two lengths to the good at the finish. Winning her fifth of the year in 31 starts, Fanciful Miss returned $7.20.

The daily double was $336.40 with Jim Cloud ($8) winning the first and Dunnwood, longest price entry in the field at $93 taking the second.

Betting on the nine-race card totaled $603,391.

Only One New Opponent For Hog Gridders

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 21 (AP)—The University of Arkansas today announced a 10-game football schedule for 1958 with only one change of opponents from the past season.

Hardin-Simmons returns to the Porker slate Nov. 8 at Little Rock, replacing the 1957 opening opponent, Oklahoma State.

The lineup of games, however, differs radically for the Razorbacks' traditional schedule. The Hogs have always played a couple of intersectional games before opening play in the rugged Southwest Conference.

In 1958, Arkansas opens with a league game, meeting Baylor in Little Rock.

The altered alignment, the first appreciable change since 1932, was made to accommodate Rice, which scheduled a game with Army on the traditional Arkansas date. Rice was moved into the Baylor spot, the fourth game on the card, Oct. 11.

The complete schedule:

Sept. 20 — Baylor at Little Rock; 27, Tulsa at Fayetteville.

Oct. 4 — Texas Christian at Fort Worth; 11, Rice at Fayetteville; 18, Texas at Austin; 25, Mississippi at Little Rock.

Nov. 1 — Texas A&M at College Station; 8, Hardin-Simmons at Little Rock; 15, Southern Methodist at Fayetteville; 22 Texas Tech at Lubbock.

SPORTS

Rebels Loaded With Backs In North-South

By FRANK EIDGE JR.
United Press Sports Writer

MIAMI, Dec. 21 (UP)— Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech's Bowl master, will have some outstanding talent at his disposal as head coach for the Southerners in the annual Shrine College All-Star football tilt in the Orange Bowl Christmas Night.

In Southern backfields this season there were none faster than the likes of N.C. State's touchdown twins, Dick Christy and Dick Hunter, Florida's Jim Rountree and LSU's Jimmy Taylor. And Auburn fullback Billy Atkins gives the grits-and-gravy boys power.

Meanwhile, Yankee Coaches Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State and Ray Eliot of Illinois will field nine of their own best players.

From Caugherty's own Michigan State Spartans come quarterback Jim Ninowski, ends Dave Kaiser and Bob Jewett, center Dan Currie and Guard Joe Carruthers.

Deliot brought halfback Dale Smith, fullback Ray Nitschke, tackle Paul Adams and end Rod Hanson with him from the Illini eleven.

The game is sure to lend fuel to the arguments on whether the Big 10 or the Dixie Conferences field the best teams. Three Michigan players, including quarterback James Van Pelt, and Purdue halfback Kenneth Mikes round out 13 big-tenners on the Yankee's 24-man roster.

When you add end Dick Prendergast and halfback Dick Lynch from Notre Dame, Daugherty and Eliot can call on a lot of power.

The North line excluding 173-pound Iowa State guard Bob Commings, averages better than 204 pounds per man.

Dodd has somewhat lighter linemen, but they are tall and lean, just the way he likes them.

Because of the caliber of the players, these annual clashes have produced surprisingly good football despite only a week of practicing beforehand.

With Van Pelt and Ninowski in the play-calling slots, Daugherty made no secret he is going to order plenty of passing off Michigan State's style of multiple offense. The pair have greatly impressed the bevy of pro-team scouts hanging around the training camps.

Clemente Signs Pittsburgh Pact

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said today they have received a signed contract for the 1958 season from outfielder Roberto Clemente, increasing to five the number of Pirates signed for next year.

Clemente was troubled with a back ailment most of last season and played in only 111 games compared to 147 the previous season. His batting average also suffered last year, dropping from .311 in 1956 to .253.

WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Alabama Defeats Louisiana Tech, 63-42, In Carrousel

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (Special))— Louisiana Tech, the surprise team of the Carrousel Basketball Tournament, was defeated, 63-42, in the championship battle of the meet Saturday night by Alabama.

Led by Leonard Caplin with 19 points and Jim Fulmer with 16 markers, Alabama led almost the entire game. The Crimson Tide held a 31-21 halftime advantage and the Tech Bulldogs could not get within 10 points the entire last half.

Tech's Canines, who upset the University of Tennessee, 68-61, Friday to advance to the finals, were led by center Jackie Moreland who hit for 14 points, the only Bulldog player to get into the double figures. Next high was J. W. Mercer with nine.

Tech got off to a 1-0 lead on a free throw made but that was the only time in the entire contest that the Bulldogs were ahead. After five minutes of play it was Alabama 6, Tech 4.

Mercer's field goal gave the Bulldogs a brief 6-6 tie. However Alabama was not to be denied and built up the lead to a dozen points just before halftime.

An all-tournament team named following the battle included Tech's sensational freshman center Jackie Moreland of Minden.

After a few days rest, the Tech cagers will see action in another tournament the Louisiana Invitational Tourney at Shreveport Thursday through Saturday. The Bulldogs will meet Hardin - Simmons University in first round play on Thursday.

Arkansas State Dumps Northeast

JONESBORO, Ark. (Special) — Powerful Arkansas State led all the way to rout Northeast State, 81-50, in a basketball game here last night.

Arkansas State, who defeated Southeastern Conference Mississippi earlier this week, jumped into an early 4-0 lead and never let the Indians from Northeast get close. The halftime score was 34-16 with the Arkansas team on top.

The win was the fifth of the season for Arkansas State against only two losses. The defeat was the fourth, and by far, the most decisive, of the year for Northeast. The Indians have won three.

Three players scored in the double figures for the winners as both teams substituted freely. Ralph Childs was tops with 14 with Jim Bowman close behind with 13. Norman Vickers got 10.

Guard Bob Patterson was again top man for Northeast, putting in 14 points. Nobody else scored in the double figures for Northeast. Billy May, one of the Gulf States Conference's top scorers, was held to only two points.

Lenny Fant's Northeast cagers will take a short break until after Christmas and return to action on Dec. 27 in the East Texas Baptist Tournament at Marshall, Texas.

Jena Awards 16 Letters To Grid Players

JENA, La., (Special) — Sixteen varsity lettermen, three managerial lettermen and 16 "B" team lettermen were named this week by Coach Billy Jarrell, Jena high school head football coach, and Coach James Berry, assistant.

The 1957 Jena Giants went through their worst seasons, winning only one game while dropping nine, including a forfeit of the last game to Pineville, handing the District 3-AA crown to the Rebels.

On the face of things, the future looks brighter for the Giants who lose only six seniors from this year's squad. However, the losses all come from the first team and will leave gaping holes to be filled during the 1958 campaign, according to Coach Jarrell.

Senior lettermen named by the coaches were Jimmy Aldredge, Jerry Collins, Dickie Brasher, Jerry Stevens, Carroll Bradford and Buddy Willis.

Aldredge, high - scoring back and outstanding player of District 3-AA in the 1956 campaign when he was one of the top scorers in the state, was permanent captain of the 1957 team. Collins played some offensive ball but was used primarily on defense. Brasher came up from last year's "B" team to be one of Jena's best ground gainers this past season.

In the line, Stevens, pocket - size guard, leaves one of the biggest holes to be filled in forward wall which was unusually light this past season. Bradford capably held down one of the tackle posts and Willis, end, who missed most of 1956 contact work, came into his own this season. He also was the team's kickoff man and extra - point kicker.

Returning next year for another season will be the following 1957 lettermen: Ronnie Tullos, David Tarver, Carlee Manchester, Leland Brown and Ed Williams in the backfield, and Tony McDonald, Richard Buckhalter, Leland Ganey, Larry Whatley and Casey Boyett in the line.

The varsity lettermen will be backed up by the following 1957 "B" team lettermen: Bob Randall, Earl Peavy, Glen Poole, Donald Davis, Don Mears, John Mears, James D. Currington, Buford Phillips, Clifton Tarver, Don Renfrow, Don Valentine, Curtis Phillips, Steve Campbell, Fred Williamson, Rand Greer and Bill Murphy.

ANGLING CLUB FOR YOUTHS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Beach Anglers and Boating Club has organized a junior auxiliary for youths between the ages of 14 and 17.

The club plans supervised trips, teaching of various subjects and films.

Subjects taught will include proper use and handling of all types of fishing tackle, care and making of lures, proper use of baits for certain fish and conservation.

Hubcap Takes Dade County At Tropical

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP) — The Elkcam Stables, Hubcap, overlooked by the crowd of 10,512 in favor of the more highly-regarded juvenile pair of Bolero U. and Jimmer, showed plenty of speed today in scoring a front-running two-length victory in the $11,675 Dade Count Handicap at Tropical Park.

Counter Spy, representing the Wheatley Stable, made a determined bid in the stretch run, but had to settle for second place, finishing a scant head before Volero U., owned by John A. Nerud. It was only a nose farther back to Greek Chief, who in turn finished a nose in front of Jimmer, the 8 to 5 favorite. Bolero U. was the second choice at 3 to 1 .

Hubcap, taking the lead at the start of the six furlong spin, responded well to Sammy Boulmetis' urging and stayed on top all the way. Entering the stretch, Hubcap, a brown gelding, led by two lengths and easily fought off Counter Spy, Bolero U., Greek Chief and Jimmer.

Carrying 117 pounds, Hubcap sprinted the distance in 1:10 4-5 over a fast strip and rewarded his backers with a $10.10, $5.20 and $4.40 payoff. It was the horse's second straight win and fourth in 14 starts, and it was worth $8,175. Hubcap's earnings now stand at 40,325.

MORAN MEETS OMAR

Barney Vs. Laye For State Crown

Charley Laye returns to Monroe tomorrow night to defend his disputed Louisiana heavyweight wrestling championship against the challenge of West Monroe's Bill Barney in the main event at Kallio's Arena.

Laye will be defending his title for the first time since he had his title belt confiscated by Athletic Commissioner Dave Silverstein for using "very unfair tactics" against Farmer Jones two weeks ago.

Veteran grappler "Sailor" Moran will meet Prince Omar, who returns to the local wrestling scene after an absence of about two years, in the night's semi-final clash.

The championship bout will be over the 90-minute or less route and the semi-final will have an hour limit. Both matches will be two-out-of-three falls. Lloyd Scarborough, a popular ring official here for many years, will referee the night's bouts.

Barney, a veteran of many a grappling war, most of them on the local mat, will be getting his first crack at the state title and is determined to use his chance to good advantage. Bill has been doing quite well lately and whipped former state champion Phil Brummett in his last fight here a couple of weeks ago,

Barney fought Laye several weeks ago in Charley's first bout on his latest swing around the southern circuit. Laye won the match, two falls to one.

Moran, who was introduced to local wrestling fans by promoter winner of last week's Brummett-Jones bout but had to settle for Omar instead. Moran hails from Kansas City, Missouri and is an experienced and dangerous wrestler.

Prince Omar says he is definitely after the state championship and an impressive victory over Morgan would make him one of the top contenders. By the same token, a Moran win would put the sailor high in the standing of contenders for the crown.

Dizzy Dean To Quit TV; 'Enjoy Life'

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP) — Dizzy Dean says he plans to quit in 1958 his $62,500-a-year job as CBS broadcaster of the major leagues' "Game of the Week."

Dean's three-year contract expires at the end of the 1958 season and since he will be 47 on Jan. 15 he wants to make next season his last "because I believe the time to live is between 45 and 60."

"If ever I'm going to enjoy life, it's my time now," said the former St. Louis Cardinal fireballer.

He owns a grapefruit ranch in Phoenix, Ariz. It's a five-acre deal and last year yielded 3,000 crates, just enough to keep "Ol' Diz" busy in his spare time.

Here to appear on Dinah Shore's television program tomorrow night, Diz remarked he will get more for that one appearance than he did for his first entire year in the majors, when he won 18 games.

Well known for his TV renditions of the "Wabash Cannonball," Diz may confound his watchers tomorrow night on TV when he gives forth with "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Diz, in an expansive holiday mood, had some trenchant comment on Los Angeles and Little League baseball.

He said he doubts that the Dodgers will find Los Angeles a bonanza and that this big area has to have a winner, or else.

"They'll set records the first two or three years, but the novelty will get them out if the team goes bad and isn't a winner."

He cited the New York Giants, whose attendance fell to 600,000 in an 11,000,000 territory, and said there is no use trying to push bad baseball down the fans' throats.

The Dodgers, says Diz, are an old club "and while they have the best pitching in the league I don't give them much chance to beat out Milwaukee or St. Louis."

Little League baseball, he said rushes boys along too fast, and he feels they should wait until they are at least 14 before plunging into do-or-die competition. He feels it is bad for the youngsters to have their hearts broken at 12 because they fail to make the team.

Cardinals Sign Eddie Kasko To $10,000 Contract

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21 (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals today announced the signing of third baseman Eddie Kasko for the 1958 baseball season at a salary of about $10,000.

Kasko, now working as a clothing salesman in Richmond, Va., batted .273 for the Cards last year. He originally was a shortstop but was sent to third base in place of Ken Boyer, switched to centerfield.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

A week ago we wrote concerning the recreation program of Monroe, its growth from no program at all to the many-phased undertaking of today. We had at least one interested reader, friend L. P. "Eddie" McLane, Louisiana Tech professor, director of student health service, a former Tech coach, and a man vitally interested in Ruston's youth programs. After reading "Coach" McLane's letter, we decided to pass it on to show what Ruston is doing for its boys and girls.

The letter:

"Dear Paul:

"I have just read your column of yesterday (last Sunday). In my opinion this is one of the finest things that you have done in a long time.

"We began our park and recreation program (at Ruston) in 1943. As you recall this was during World War II. We had 31 so called juvenile delinquency cases in five weeks. Incidentally, I do not call them juvenile delinquency problems, I call them parental delinquency problems.

"The late Mr. T. L. James Sr., president of T. L. James Company, appropriated $50,000 and 54 individuals appropriated $100 each to start the program. As you know, we are a small college town and our city fathers, at that time, did not have the money to run this program. The city judge was nice enough to say we had cleared up the problem before the summer was over.

"The Louisiana Foundation, as it was chartered in 1943, was joined by the city in 1948 in running this program. In 1952 the people of our little city voted a 2 mill tax for the maintenance of this program and a 1 mill tax for the construction of a colored swimming pool.

"During 1956 the citizens of Ruston raised $25,000 to build a recreation center. This building is 100 x 50. This center is located immediately to the rear of the high school stadium and on the high school grounds. On the weekends, during the school year, we operate this recreation center for the high schol students and one for the junior high school students in our downtown Junior High School. We also operate a colored recreation center which is about the same size as the white youth center. They have the same facilities that the white children have. In addition to the colored swimming pool, the city gave the park and recreation board 26 acres to be used as play fields for the colored youngsters. In the summer these centers are open from 3 to 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 10 at night.

"We begin our baseball program at the age of 7. The 'Biddy' League is youngsters from 7-8, the 'Midget' League is from 9-10, the 'Little' League is 11-12, the 'Pony' League is 13-14, and the 'Buddy' League is 15-16. We have 7 teams in the North Louisiana Buddy League and they let me serve as president. These youngsters play 2 games each week. The league is composed of Jonesboro, Hodge, Ruston, Dubach, Bernice, Farmerville and Sterlington.

"We have a softball league for 'old men.' They play 4 nights each week during June, July and August. We have a tennis program and a wonderful arts and crafts program. The Red Cross runs the swimming program. During the winter months we have a boy working on the grounds of 5 elementary schools. We have 5 girls working with a group of over 500 Girl Scouts at the Girl Scout Center.

"You may wonder how we operate on such a small amount of money. We pay our majors here at Tech 75 cents per hour to work in this program. We are, in a way, using this program as a laboratory for our majors in health and physical education.

"We are mighty proud of our program. The city of Shreveport has a wonderful program. They spend almost $400,000 per year.

"You have wonderful schools, churches, and homes in the city of Monroe. Jack Hesketh has done a wonderful job with the facilities that he has had at hand but, Paul, your schools, homes, and churches need some help in keeping these youngsters off the streets. We believe that a good recreation program will fill this need. Do not let those boys and girls down.

"Sincerely yours

"L. P. McLane, professor

"Director Student Health Service."

Thank you, Coach, but, as you probably know by now, Monroe property owners last Tuesday decided Monroe's kids are not worth a proposed $1,650,000 bond issue for expansion of existing recreation facilities. It was like telling the growing boy he has to wear last year's pants even if they are a size too small and he's ready to pop out at the seams. Maybe some day we'll find us a T. L. James by another name.

Memo to football fans in Tallulah and Delhi: The writeups on your football games Friday night arrived too late to go in our first edition so we're reprinting them in today's area edition. Our Tallulah correspondent, Bob White, phoned yesterday and begged us to get all the Trojan fans off his back by reporting that he tried for an hour and seven minutes to get a phone call in on the game before succeeding.

While we're at it, congratulations to the Trojans and the Bears.

Tennessee Beats LSU For Third

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 21 (AP)—Charlie Scott, sub forward for Tennessee, made only one point tonight, but it was a big one, giving the Volunteers a 63-62 victory over Louisiana State in the third place battle of the Carrousel Basketball Tournament.

Scott's foul shot with 52 seconds to go decided the game between the Southeastern Conference teams.

Louisiana Tech met Alabama for the championship.

Clemson wrapped up the consolation title, or fifth place, with a 71-66 victory over Bucknell and Lafayette laced Davidson 65-46 to take seventh place.

LSU, down by 10 points early in the first half, cut the Tennessee lead to 37-34 at the half and then shot ahead 46-45 with 14:32 left of the last half.

Tennessee spent the next 13 minutes chasing the Tigers, drawing even three times, but never going ahead until big Gene Tormohlen dropped two free throws with 1:24 to go, making it 62-60.

Scott made his first foul toss good and missed the second. Wayne Monson hit for two LSU freethrows to finish the scoring. The Bayou Bengals got the ball with seven seconds left, but couldn't get off a shot before the final horn.

Tennessee had gone six minutes without a point midway of the last half, playing without Capt. Leon Ammerman, who was withdrawn after he drew his fourth personal.

Capt. Dom Merle of LSU led all scorers with 23 points. Tormohlen had 21 points and as many rebounds to lead the Vols.

Clemson hit an amazing 68.8 per cent of its first half shots to take a 49-34 halftime lead over Bucknell. Ed Brinkley was the chief gunner in the breathtaking display as he dropped eight of 10 shots.

Clemson at one time led by 19 points but Bucknell began picking away and, with Clemson suddenly losing its touch, the lead was narrowed to three points 65-62, with 4:20 to go.

Then the Tigers made it certain with five points in a minute on a foul by Doug Hoffman and layup baskets by Don Carver and Brinkley. It was Brinkley's only basket of the last half.

Clemson finished with a 54.5 shooting mark, hitting 30 of 55. Vince Yockel was the leader with 21 points and Brinkley followed with 18. Ellis Harley'u 19 points and 15 by Jack Flanegan were high for Bucknell.

Davidson's loss to Lafayette was its ninth straight in three years of Carrousel play.

Lafayette, in its best showing of the tournament, after upset losses to Louisiana State and Clemson, hit 45.9 per cent of its shots again Davidson's 31.7.

4-MINUTE MILERS

Lincoln Winner Over Jungwirth

By RICHARD VOUMARD

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 21 (UP)—Mervyn Lincoln of Australia won a battle of four-minute milers from Stanislav Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia today in 4:05.7.

Lincoln, running his usual tactical race, roared from behind with a 55.7-second last lap at Olympic Park to beat John Murray of South Melbourne by 18 yards. hind, in 4:08.4. Murray's time was 4:07.7.

Jungwirth, making his last appearance of an Australian tour, finished third, another five yards behind, in 4:08.4. Murray's time was 4:07.7.

The meet was watched by American tennis star Herb Flam and a disappointingly small crowd of 1,200.

In other events, Kevin Gosper, an Australian Olympian who ran for Michigan State, won the quarter miler in 47.5 seconds, only a half second off his national record. Hector Hogan, who shares the world record for the 100-yard dash, won his specialty.

Flam, dropped from the U.S. Davis Cup challenge round team because of nervousness and insomnia, passed up a chance to watch his tennis buddies practice in favor of a visit to the track meet.

The 28-year-old tennis campaigner from Beverly Hills, Calif., sitting with a United Press sports writer, enjoyed the track meet immensely and was releaxed throughout. Flam was impressed by Lincoln's winning sprint in the mile despite a strong headwind in the stretch.

"Boy, that's running," Flam said. "Lincoln sure is in form."

Jungwirth, winding up a tour which proved both an artistic and financial loss, also had kind words for Lincoln.

"I really wanted to make fast time but I just couldn't match Lincoln's sprint," Jungwirth said. "I can only blame an attack of the Asian flu for my poor showing during this tour."

Jungwirth tried to set the early pace but finally gave way to John Murray, an Australian club runner. Then Lincoln took over midway through the last lap and pulled away.

Lincoln's best mile was a 3:59.0 effort here last March. Jungwirth ran 3:59.1 last July at London but placed only third to Derek Ibbotson of England and Ron Delany of Ireland. Ibbotson set a world record of 3:57.2 in that race.

Jungwirth also holds the world record for 1,500 meters with a 3:38.1 clocking in his homeland seven days before his fast London mile.

Bullin Nips Happy Guy At Fair Grounds

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21 (AP)—Bullin, a stretch scorcher from the J. H. Homan Stable, boomed out of the pack at the final turn and nipped long-short Happy Guy by a scant nose today in the $10,000 Yuletide Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Last horse out of the gate in the 14-horse field, Bullin picked his spots at the head of the stretch and battled Happy Guy the final eighth of a mile. Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Booray took the show spot.

A lukewarm favorite of the crowd of 11,580 that turned out in bright, springlike weather, Bullin returned $7, 4.80 and 2.80. Happy Guy, from the H. G. Bockman stable, paid $22.40 and 880 and Booray returned $3.60.

Bullin had his work cut out when the bulky field left the barrier in the five and one-half furlong dash for two-year-olds.

The victory was worth $6,500 to Homan, who lives in Cincinnati. It was his seventh triumph in 16 starts. Turner Catledge, managing editor of The New York Times, aided in presenting a trophy to Homan.

Bullin's time over the fast track was 1:06, one second off the track record.

Joe W. Brown's Fanciful Miss scored a two-length victory in the six-furlong secondary feature. Jockey J. R. Adams brought the 3-year-old daughter of King Dorsett up on the outside and she was two lengths to the good at the finish. Winning her fifth of the year in 31 starts, Fanciful Miss returned $7.20.

The daily double was $336.40 with Jim Cloud ($8) winning the first and Dunnwood, longest price entry in the field at $93 taking the second.

Betting on the nine-race card totaled $603,391.

Only One New Opponent For Hog Gridders

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 21 (AP)—The University of Arkansas today announced a 10-game football schedule for 1958 with only one change of opponents from the past season.

Hardin-Simmons returns to the Porker slate Nov. 8 at Little Rock, replacing the 1957 opening opponent, Oklahoma State.

The lineup of games, however, differs radically for the Razorbacks' traditional schedule. The Hogs have always played a couple of intersectional games before opening play in the rugged Southwest Conference.

In 1958, Arkansas opens with a league game, meeting Baylor in Little Rock.

The altered alignment, the first appreciable change since 1932, was made to accommodate Rice, which scheduled a game with Army on the traditional Arkansas date. Rice was moved into the Baylor spot, the fourth game on the card, Oct. 11.

The complete schedule:

Sept. 20 — Baylor at Little Rock; 27, Tulsa at Fayetteville.

Oct. 4 — Texas Christian at Fort Worth; 11, Rice at Fayetteville; 18, Texas at Austin; 25, Mississippi at Little Rock.

Nov. 1 — Texas A&M at College Station; 8, Hardin-Simmons at Little Rock; 15, Southern Methodist at Fayetteville; 22 Texas Tech at Lubbock.

Rebels Loaded With Backs In North-South

By FRANK EIDGE JR.
United Press Sports Writer

MIAMI, Dec. 21 (UP)— Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech's Bowl master, will have some outstanding talent at his disposal as head coach for the Southerners in the annual Shrine College All-Star football tilt in the Orange Bowl Christmas Night.

In Southern backfields this season there were none faster than the likes of N.C. State's touchdown twins, Dick Christy and Dick Hunter, Florida's Jim Rountree and LSU's Jimmy Taylor. And Auburn fullback Billy Atkins gives the grits-and-gravy boys power.

Meanwhile, Yankee Coaches Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State and Ray Eliot of Illinois will field nine of their own best players.

From Caugherty's own Michigan State Spartans come quarterback Jim Ninowski, ends Dave Kaiser and Bob Jewett, center Dan Currie and Guard Joe Carruthers.

Deliot brought halfback Dale Smith, fullback Ray Nitschke, tackle Paul Adams and end Rod Hanson with him from the Illini eleven.

The game is sure to lend fuel to the arguments on whether the Big 10 or the Dixie Conferences field the best teams. Three Michigan players, including quarterback James Van Pelt, and Purdue halfback Kenneth Mikes round out 13 big-tenners on the Yankee's 24-man roster.

When you add end Dick Prendergast and halfback Dick Lynch from Notre Dame, Daugherty and Eliot can call on a lot of power.

The North line excluding 173-pound Iowa State guard Bob Commings, averages better than 204 pounds per man.

Dodd has somewhat lighter linemen, but they are tall and lean, just the way he likes them.

Because of the caliber of the players, these annual clashes have produced surprisingly good football despite only a week of practicing beforehand.

With Van Pelt and Ninowski in the play-calling slots, Daugherty made no secret he is going to order plenty of passing off Michigan State's style of multiple offense. The pair have greatly impressed the bevy of pro-team scouts hanging around the training camps.

Clemente Signs Pittsburgh Pact

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said today they have received a signed contract for the 1958 season from outfielder Roberto Clemente, increasing to five the number of Pirates signed for next year.

Clemente was troubled with a back ailment most of last season and played in only 111 games compared to 147 the previous season. His batting average also suffered last year, dropping from .311 in 1956 to .253.

WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Alabama Defeats Louisiana Tech, 63-42, In Carrousel

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (Special))—Louisiana Tech, the surprise team of the Carrousel Basketball Tournament, was defeated, 63-42, in the championship battle of the meet Saturday night by Alabama.

Led by Leonard Caplin with 19 points and Jim Fulmer with 16 markers, Alabama led almost the entire game. The Crimson Tide held a 31-21 halftime advantage and the Tech Bulldogs could not get within 10 points the entire last half.

Tech's Canines, who upset the University of Tennessee, 68-61, Friday to advance to the finals, were led by center Jackie Moreland who hit for 14 points, the only Bulldog player to get into the double figures. Next high was J. W. Mercer with nine.

Tech got off to a 1-0 lead on a free throw made but that was the only time in the entire contest that the Bulldogs were ahead. Afer five minutes of play it was Alabama 6, Tech 4.

Mercer's field goal gave the Bulldogs a brief 6-6 tie. However Alabama was not to be denied and built up the lead to a dozen points just before halftime.

An all-tournament team named following the battle included Tech's sensational freshman center Jackie Moreland of Minden.

After a few days rest, the Tech cagers will see action in another tournament the Louisiana Invitational Tourney at Shreveport Thursday through Saturday. The Bulldogs will meet Hardin - Simmons University in first round play on Thursday.

Arkansas State Dumps Northeast

JONESBORO, Ark. (Special) — Powerful Arkansas State led all the way to rout Northeast State, 81-50, in a basketball game here last night.

Arkansas State, who defeated Southeastern Conference Mississippi earlier this week, jumped into an early 4-0 lead and never let the Indians from Northeast get close. The halftime score was 34-16 with the Arkansas team on top.

The win was the fifth of the season for Arkansas State against only two losses. The defeat was the fourth, and by far, the most decisive, of the year for Northeast. The Indians have won three.

Three players scored in the double figures for the winners as both teams substituted freely. Ralph Childs was tops with 14 with Jim Bowman close behind with 13. Norman Vickers got 10.

Guard Bob Patterson was again top man for Northeast, putting in 14 points. Nobody else scored in the double figures for Northeast. Billy May, one of the Gulf States Conference's top scorers, was held to only two points.

Lenny Fant's Northeast cagers will take a short break until after Christmas and return to action on Dec. 27 in the East Texas Baptist Tournament at Marshall, Texas.

Jena Awards 16 Letters To Grid Players

JENA, La., (Special) — Sixteen varsity lettermen, three managerial lettermen and 16 "B" team lettermen were named this week by Coach Billy Jarrell, Jena high school head football coach, and Coach James Berry, assistant.

The 1957 Jena Giants went through their worst seasons, winning only one game while dropping nine, including a forfeit of the last game to Pineville, handing the District 3-AA crown to the Rebels.

On the face of things, the future looks brighter for the Giants who lose only six seniors from this year's squad. However, the losses all come from the first team and will leave gaping holes to be filled during the 1958 campaign, according to Coach Jarrell.

Senior lettermen named by the coaches were Jimmy Aldredge, Jerry Collins, Dickie Brasher, Jerry Stevens, Carroll Bradford and Buddy Willis.

Aldredge, high - scoring back and outstanding player of District 3-AA in the 1956 campaign when he was one of the top scorers in the state, was permanent captain of the 1957 team. Collins played some offensive ball but was used primarily on defense. Brasher came up from last year's "B" team to be one of Jena's best ground gainers this past season.

In the line, Stevens, pocket - size guard, leaves one of the biggest holes to be filled in forward wall which was unusually light this past season. Bradford capably held down one of the tackle posts and Willis, end, who missed most of 1956 contact work, came into his own this season. He also was the team's kickoff man and extra - point kicker.

Returning next year for another season will be the following 1957 lettermen: Ronnie Tullos, David Tarver, Carlee Manchester, Leland Brown and Ed Williams in the backfield, and Tony McDonald, Richard Buckhalter, Leland Ganey, Larry Whatley and Casey Boyett in the line.

The varsity lettermen will be backed up by the following 1957 "B" team lettermen: Bob Randall, Earl Peavy, Glen Poole, Donald Davis, Don Mears, John Mears, James D. Currington, Buford Phillips, Clifton Tarver, Don Renfrow, Don Valentine, Curtis Phillips, Steve Campbell, Fred Williamson, Rand Greer and Bill Murphy.

ANGLING CLUB FOR YOUTHS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Beach Anglers and Boating Club has organized a junior auxiliary for youths between the ages of 14 and 17.

The club plans supervised trips, teaching of various subjects and films.

Subjects taught will include proper use and handling of all types of fishing tackle, care and making of lures, proper use of baits for certain fish and conservation.

Hubcap Takes Dade County At Tropical

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP) — The Elkcam Stables, Hubcap, overlooked by the crowd of 10,512 in favor of the more highly-regarded juvenile pair of Bolero U. and Jimmer, showed plenty of speed today in scoring a front-running two-length victory in the $11,675 Dade Count Handicap at Tropical Park.

Counter Spy, representing the Wheatley Stable, made a determined bid in the stretch run, but had to settle for second place, finishing a scant head before Volero U., owned by John A. Nerud. It was only a nose farther back to Greek Chief, who in turn finished a nose in front of Jimmer, the 8 to 5 favorite. Bolero U. was the second choice at 3 to 1 .

Hubcap, taking the lead at the start of the six furlong spin, responded well to Sammy Boulmetis' urging and stayed on top all the way. Entering the stretch, Hubcap, a brown gelding, led by two lengths and easily fought off Counter Spy, Bolero U., Greek Chief and Jimmer.

Carrying 117 pounds, Hubcap sprinted the distance in 1:10 4-5 over a fast strip and rewarded his backers with a $10.10, $5.20 and $4.40 payoff. It was the horse's second straight win and fourth in 14 starts, and it was worth $8,175. Hubcap's earnings now stand at 40,325.

MORAN MEETS OMAR

Barney Vs. Laye For State Crown

Charley Laye returns to Monroe tomorrow night to defend his disputed Louisiana heavyweight wrestling championship against the challenge of West Monroe's Bill Barney in the main event at Kallio's Arena.

Laye will be defending his title for the first time since he had his title belt confiscated by Athletic Commissioner Dave Silverstein for using "very unfair tactics" against Farmer Jones two weeks ago.

Veteran grappler "Sailor" Moran will meet Prince Omar, who returns to the local wrestling scene after an absence of about two years, in the night's semi-final clash.

The championship bout will be over the 90-minute or less route and the semi-final will have an hour limit. Both matches will be two-out-of-three falls. Lloyd Scarborough, a popular ring official here for many years, will referee the night's bouts.

Barney, a veteran of many a grappling war, most of them on the local mat, will be getting his first crack at the state title and is determined to use his chance to good advantage. Bill has been doing quite well lately and whipped former state champion Phil Brummett in his last fight here a couple of weeks ago.

Barney fought Laye several weeks ago in Charley's first bout on his latest swing around the southern circuit. Laye won the match, two falls to one.

Moran, who was introduced to local wrestling fans by promoter winner of last week's Brummett-Jones bout but had to settle for Omar instead. Moran hails from Kansas City, Missouri and is an experienced and dangerous wrestler.

Prince Omar says he is definitely after the state championship and an impressive victory over Morgan would make him one of the top contenders. By the same token, a Moran win would put the sailor high in the standing of contenders for the crown.

Dizzy Dean To Quit TV; 'Enjoy Life'

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP) — Dizzy Dean says he plans to quit in 1958 his $62,500-a-year job as CBS broadcaster of the major leagues' "Game of the Week."

Dean's three-year contract expires at the end of the 1958 season and since he will be 47 on Jan. 15 he wants to make next season his last "because I believe the time to live is between 45 and 60."

"If ever I'm going to enjoy life, it's my time now," said the former St. Louis Cardinal fireballer.

He owns a grapefruit ranch in Phoenix, Ariz. It's a five-acre deal and last year yielded 3,000 crates, just enough to keep "Ol' Diz" busy in his spare time.

Here to appear on Dinah Shore's television program tomorrow night, Diz remarked he will get more for that one appearance than he did for his first entire year in the majors, when he won 18 games.

Well known for his TV renditions of the "Wabash Cannonball," Diz may confound his watchers tomorrow night on TV when he gives forth with "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Diz, in an expansive holiday mood, had some trenchant comment on Los Angeles and Little League baseball.

He said he doubts that the Dodgers will find Los Angeles a bonanza and that this big area has to have a winner, or else.

"They'll set records the first two or three years, but the novelty will get them out if the team goes bad and isn't a winner."

He cited the New York Giants, whose attendance fell to 600,000 in an 11,000,000 territory, and said there is no use trying to push bad baseball down the fans' throats.

The Dodgers, says Diz, are an old club "and while they have the best pitching in the league I don't give them much chance to beat out Milwaukee or St. Louis."

Little League baseball, he said rushes boys along too fast, and he feels they should wait until they are at least 14 before plunging into do-or-die competition. He feels it is bad for the youngsters to have their hearts broken at 12 because they fail to make the team.

Cardinals Sign Eddie Kasko To $10,000 Contract

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21 (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals today announced the signing of third baseman Eddie Kasko for the 1958 baseball season at a salary of about $10,000.

Kasko, now working as a clothing salesman in Richmond, Va., batted .273 for the Cards last year. He originally was a shortstop but was sent to third base in place of Ken Boyer, switched to centerfield.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

Most of us newcomers forget sometimes to look back and thank those who have helped make our local bowling what it is today. Maurice and Ella Johnson are two familiar figures we can never forget—sponsors, competitors and leaders for better bowling since 1946.

Ella launched her career of ten pins with the old News-Star team in '46. The next year found her knocking 'em down for Russell Cleaners. It wasn't until 1949 that the crackerjack Clover Leaf Dairy women's team was formed.

Ella Cash, Freddie DeCelle, Rosie Joiner and Norma Brown were chosen to team with Ella. Four years in a row the girls copped the league crown and three times they were city champions.

Among their prizes was the Clyde Nash Trophy, the Robert Ervin Award, the Silverstein Award and Howard Brother's Roving Trophy. The Roving Trophy was given to any team that won the crown three times. There were numerous other trophies won by this fine team.

When the new Bowling Center opened, Freddie De Celle retired and her place on the team was ably filled by Margie Pitts.

An oddity of the team is the different types of balls thrown. Ella and Rosie Joiner throw big benders while teammates Ella Cash and Margie Pitts depend on back up balls. Norma Brown, who usually bowls in the anchor position, throws a slight hook.

In the Ladies League this year, Ella's Clover Leaf team is currently on a hot winning streak and are but three and one-half points out of first place.

Maurice has sponsored four men's teams. The Clover Leaf Farm's team has been captained by Bill Bennett, John Savage, and at the present, Casey Jones.

Casey, this year, has his team on the top of the Kegler League standings. The team is made up of bowlers E. B. Peddy, Walter Cash, Luke Coonrod, Sonny Durham, Mutt Carroll and Jones.

Hats off to Maurice and Ella Johnson—champions in more ways than one.

In case you are wondering who has the highest averages in the Ladies Leagues, here they are—Norma Brown, 172; Myrtle Draughn, 170; Ethel Lancaster, 159; Ora Lee Johnston, 158; Peggy Grigsby, 154; Ella Cash, 153; Colleen Dent, 153; June Baker, 153; Daisy Creighton, 151; Erma Peddy, 151; Rosie Joiner, 148; and Bennie Mallery, 148.

The highest individual game (233) and the highest individual series (593) both were tossed by Norma Brown.

The women's high team game (912) is held by Spatafora Pharmacy. High team series belongs to Howard Griffin (2531).

The top men bowlers are as follows: Sonny Durham, 183; E. B. Peddy, 180; Robert Creighton, 180; Russell Bates, 180; Luke Coonrod, 179; Red Holley, 178; Ernest Carter, 178; Theo Finkbeiner, 177; Cecil Moore, 177; Bud Lyons, 177; and Jerry Higgins, 177.

Russell Bates holds high single game, a fat 259. Tommy Higgins, high individual series, 668.

Royal Feed and Seed have registered high team game, 1143, and Longview Equipment have had the best pinfall in team series, 3148.

SPARE STUFF

John Lacy, who does his bowling for Southwest Gas, bowled himself a patch winning triplet award —three games of 171.

Robert LeBaube of St. Louis rolled 12 strikes in one game on November 26, but unfortunately qualified only for an ABC 11-in-a-row award. The 168 average office worker opened his third game with a gutterball—then threw 12 consecutive strikes for 290. The first of the 12 strikes, of course, was counted only as a spare.

A near reverse of this was performed recenty by policeman Bob Decker in Detroit. He rolled 11 strikes in a row, then threw a gutterball. That pressure is rough—isn't it, Bob?

ROLLS FIRST 700 SERIES

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Miss Eloise Greenbauer realized her first 700 series for the Fanatorium Majors. Her scores were 224, 236 and 246 for a 706 total. A former softball pitcher, Eloise has been with the Majors for five seasons. Last season she rolled a 685 series. Her average for the last three years has been between 185 and 190.

BROWN LEADS VOTING

Y. A. Title Named On UP All-Professional Squad

By EARL WRIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (UP)—Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns today became the first rookie ever to lead the voting for the annual United Press national football league all-star team. Brown received 27 votes for full-back and two for halfback, collecting 29 of a possible 31 votes for the 1947 team. The mythical team campaign in the 11 league cities. Brown, one of the few All-American players ever to make an outstanding showing as a first-year professional, won the league rushing title with 942 yards. He averaged 4.7 yards on 202 rushes. and set a single-game rushing high of 27 yards against the Los Angeles Rams Nov. 24.

Brown, a 230-pounder from Syracuse University and Manhasset, N. Y., ran for nine touchdowns and scored on a pass reception for another. His touchdown total was topped only by Lenny Moore, who scored 11 for the Baltimore Colts.

The San Francisco Forty-Niners placed four men on the all-star team, while the Detroit Lions and New York Giants each won three berths.

Y. A. Tittle of the Forty-Niners edged John Unitas of Baltimore for the quarterback post by one vote. San Francisco also placed end Billy Wilson on the offensive platoon while tackle Leo Nomellini and linebacker Marv Matuszak of the Forty-Niners made the defensive unit.

Defense will be Detroit's strong point Sunday in the western division playoff against San Francisco and the Lions placed linebacker Joe Schmidt, halfback Yale Lary and safetyman Jack Christiansen on the defensive unit.

Tackle Roosevelt Brown and halfback Frank Gifford of the Giants won offensive spots while teammate Andy Robustelli won a defensive end berth.

Cleveland, Baltimore, the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers each filled two berths. Besides Jim Brown, Lou Groza of the Browns won an offensive tackle spot, Baltimore placed end Gino Marchetti and tackle Art Donovan on the defensive team. The Bears placed center George Strickland on offensive and linebacker Bill George on defense. Billy Howton, an offensive end, and safetyman Bobby Dillon of the Packers won berths.

TEAM ENJOYS REST

MacKay Expected To Meet Aussies

By ERIC RIEL
United Press Sports Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 22 (Sunday) — (UP)—The United States Davis Cup tennis team enjoyed a day of rest today as Billy Talbert, the non - playing captain, made it almost definite that Barry MacKay would play against Australia.

The 22-year-old MacKay, a 6-3, husky lad from Dayton, Ohio, was expected to pair with 34-year-old Vic Seixas of Philadelphia for singles in the challenge round against Australia here Dec. 26-28.

Talbert still seemed undecided about his doubles team although it appeared sure that he would choose from among Seixas, MacKay and 44-year-old Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla.

Talbert singled out MacKay for praise as the Americans enjoyed their last day of rest before playing the heavily favored Aussies.

"MacKay is near peak form now and doesn't need any hard work," Talbert said. "The others are approaching top form although I still want them a little sharper."

MacKay, who won the U.S. intercollegiate title for the University of Michigan, never has seen a Davis Cup challenge round, let alone play in one. He also has little international experience. But he has a sharp power game and unlimited confidence which could cause trouble for the Aussies.

Should Talbert decide to pass up MacKay for singles, his only other available men are Mulloy and Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, Holmberg. only 19, has even less experience than MacKay. Mulloy, who shares the Wimbledon doubles championship with Budge Patty, could not be expected to play three hard matches in three days at his age.

Mulloy's listless performance in doubles against Belgium in the interzone final last week could bench him entirely for the challenge round. In that case, Seixas would pair with MacKay in doubles and those two would play all five matches in the three day series. However, a Seixas-Mulloy team seemed most likely.

Georgia-Florida Baseball League Loses Franchise

LESLIE, Ga., Dec. 21 (AP)—The Georgia - Florida League president has been notified by the Colony City Baseball Club, Inc. that it cannot continue operation of the Fitzgerald franchise in 1958.

In a statement issued through the league office here today, president W. T. Anderson said the Colony City organization has served notice on him that it would like to place the franchise back in Fitzgerald, if possible.

However, Anderson said if it cannot be placed in Fitzgerald, the organization wants to offer the franchise to some other city.

The president also said the Fitzgerald organization said it has already signed a working agreement with Baltimore for 1958 and understands that Baltimore would be willing to go into any other city that meets approval of the Georgia - Florida League.

Cities which might be interested in the Fitzgerald franchise were listed by Anderson as Douglas, Dublin, and Hazlehurst, Ga., and Tallahassee, Fla.

NINE GRID FOES

DENVER (AP) — The Air Force Academy's 1958 football team will play nine rivals, beginning with a game at Detroit University on Sept. 27. Buck Shaw's eleven then meets Iowa, Colorado State, Stanford, Utah, Denver, Wyoming, New Mexico and Colorado.

George Pupich led the 1957 team in scoring with 27 points on two touchdowns, 12 points after touchdown and one field goal. He missed only two extra point attempts.

Pettit Scores 51 In Record Contest

DETROIT, Dec. 21 (AP)—Bob Pettit scored 51 points as the St. Louis Hawks set an all-time league scoring record by defeating the Syracuse Nationals, 146-136 in the first game of a national basketball association doubleheader before 5,000 at Olympia stadium tonight.

Cincinnati met Detroit in the nightcap.

Several league records were broken by the two teams. They surpassed by 17 points the previous high for two teams in a single game, which was 265 set by St. Louis and New York in 1956. Their combined totals of 145 at the half and 206 points at the third period also smashed existing league marks.

Syracuse's losing total also was an NBA record for the most points scored by a loser.

It was the highest scoring night of the season for the sharp-shooting Pettit. He previously had dumped in 45 points in one game.

St. Louis, which won its seventh straight to maintain its lead in the Western Division, trailed the Nats into the final period and managed to tie the score at 116-116 with seven and a half minutes left. Then they went in front to stay behind the shooting of Pettit, Cliff Hagan and Ed Macauley.

The game was marred by two technical fouls against Syracuse player-coach Paul Seymour who eventually was chased from the bench by referee Ernie Heft after threatening referee Dick Powers.

Center John Kerr scored 33 points and forward Dolph Schayes, 35 for the Nats. Hagan was runnerup in scoring to Pettit with 28.

Forrestal Gets Washington TD Club Grid Award

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Tom Forrestal, Navy's 20-year - old quarterback who led the Middies to eight victories and one tie in 10 games the past season, today was named winner of the touchdown club of Washington's award to the outstanding area college player of the year.

General chairman Arthur (Dutch Bergman of the club said Forrestal was chosen by a unanimous vote of the seven-man board of former college stars.

Other nominees in the final balloting were: last season's award winner, Jim Bahktiar, University of Virginia fullback; Mike Sommers, George Washington University halfback; Bob Reifsnyder, Navy lineman; and Ed Cooke, co-captain of the University of Maryland.

Forrestal will receive the award at the 23rd annual Touchdown Club banquet Jan. 11, at which other club honors will be presented to the nation's outstanding football stars.

'Gooey Going' Forecast For Lions-49ers Playoff Game

BY HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21 (UP)—The rains came to San Francisco today and the forecast is "gooey going" when the Forty Niners tangle with the Detroit Lions in the play-off game Sunday for the western division championship of the National Professional Football League.

Despite the inclement weather, a sell-out of nearly 60,000 fans is kick-off time, 3 p.m. cst. There will be national television (CBS), but a local blackout for 150 miles.

While the game rates as strictly a toss-up in the minds of both Coach George Wilson of Detroit and Frankie Albert of San Francisco, the gamblers have taken a different view. They have installed the Forty Niners as three and one-half point favorites.

"It should be an even-up game," says Albert. "It all depends on who gets the breaks." Wilson concurred.

It is Wilson's opinion, however, that the wet going will aid the San Francisco club.

"With two 'heavy' runners like Gene Babb and Joe Perry in the lineup," said Wilson, "the Forty Niner ground attack ought to be stronger than ours."

He failed to elaborate on the statement or to discuss why San Francisco's men should run better in the mud than his own famed ball-pacers, Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy and John Henry Johnson. Johnson is a former local boy who has seen plenty of rain in the winter.

Most observers believe that the game will be decided via the air waves. One thing the mud may do is to make Tobin Rote, Detroit quarterback, stay in the "pocket." Rote, second highest ground-gainer on the Lion squad, is noted as a pass-run option performer and he may find the slippery footing makes it tough to escape tacklers if he leaves the "cup."

On the other hand, Forty Niner quarterback Y. A. Tittle, already more-or-less immobilized by injuries as far as running is concerned, had planned to stay in the "cup" anyway.

The Detroit team that will start on the offensive will be missing three of its regulars. Charley Ane, veteran tackle, will be sidelined by leg injuries and his place taken by rookie Ken Russell, who weighs as much as Ane, but lacks the experience. Gene Gedman, the regular left-half, also is sidelined with injuries and in his spot probably will go end Jim Doran. That will move end David Middleton up to the left end spot. The other regular, quarterback Bobby Layne, is out for the year, of course, with a broken leg.

Meanwhile, San Francisco will be at its strongest for the game. There even is hope that the great offensive guard, returns to duty after weeks on the side-lines.

PARK FOR O'MALLEY

A Sports Letter To Santa Claus

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) — What some sports celebrities would like to find in their Christmas stockings Wednesday morning:

Walter O'Malley — A ball park in which to house his transplanted Dodgers with facilities for parking 15 million automobiles, preferably not in the Pacific Ocean.

Ted Williams — The American League's Most Valuable Player trophy many baseball fans felt he deserved.

Bill Talbert — An airmail package containing Ham Richardson and Dick Savitt that would enable the Americans to give the Australians a better fight for the Davis Cup.

Willie Shoemaker — An invitation to ride one of the better horses in the 1958 Kentucky now that the finish line has been marked more distinctly.

Casey Stengel — A secret report on how his Yankees can beat Lew Burdette if they should meet up again with Milwaukee's star righthander.

Tommy Loughran — A reminder that even when $64,000 isn't involved, women have all the right answers . . . Accompanied by a "Thank you" note from Tony Galento.

Fred Haney — A report of another fine move by the Milwaukee management which gave the Chicago cubs the Rush act in Colorado Springs earlier this month.

Archie Moore — A boxing rule raising the light heavyweight limit to 225 pounds that would terminate his extensive dieting for each title fight.

Tug Wilson — A rule banning from Olympic competition gymnastics and Greco - Roman wrestling, the sports that enabled the Russians to finish on top of the United States in Australia.

Nippy Jones — A few cases of shoe polish to replace those he used for the Braves in the World Series.

Bud Wilkinson — Announcement that Oklahoma's loss to Notre Dame would be deleted from the records, resulting in the continuation of the Sooners' amazing college winning streak.

Robin Roberts — A new pitch to replace his fading fastball that helped result in 40 losses over the last two seasons after winning at least 20 games for six straight years.

Billy Martin — The money he requested from Kansas City for being part of the big player deal with Detroit . . . Also a Christmas card from George Weiss.

Frank Shaughnessy — A congressional order prohibiting major league baseball clubs from televising in minor league territories on Sundays.

Floyd Patterson — A "name" contender who would enable him to cash in on a lucrative outdoor title bout next summer.

Horace Stoneham — An invention that would do away with fog.

Cookie Lavagetto and Danny Murtaugh— Several bottles of aspirin.

Al Aucoin On All-Scholastic SEC Squad

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 21—Eight schools are represented on the 1958 Southeastern Conference All - Scholastic team chosen annually by the American Peoples Encyclopedia.

Two scholars were bonafide All-America field selections, End Jimmy Phillips of Auburn and Tackle-Guard Bill Johnson of Tennessee, which proves, says the encyclopedia editor, Carroll Chouinard, that "many football players perform just as spectacularly in the classroom as they do on the field."

Phillips and Johnson are high B students in education and business administration respectively.

Other members of the All-SEC teams, majoring in engineering (3), agriculture (2), pre-med (1), pre-dentistry (1) geology (1) and business administration (1) are:

End — Jim Urbaniak, Kentucky, A, pre-med)

Tackle — Al Aucoin, LSU (B-plus, geology)

Guards — Jimmy Dodd, Miss. State (A, engineering) and Foster Watkins, Georgia Tech (A, engineering)

Center — Jack Benson, Miss. State (B, plus, agriculture)

Backs — Lloyd Nix, Auburn (B, plus, pre-dentistry); Leroy Reed, Mississippi (A, engineering); Jimmy Orr, Georgia (B-plus, business administraton) and Stockton Atkins, Tennessee (B-plus, agriculture)

Urbaniak, Dodd, Watkins, and Reed are A students.

Commissioner Bernie Moore and all 12 SEC athletic directors cooperated with the American Peoples Encyclopedia in selecting the team. Similar teams are chosen in each major conference except the Pacific Coast circuit.

Every SEC member was represented on the first team except Tulane, Florida, Alabama and Vanderbilt. All except Tulane had men on the honorable-mention list (Star players with B or better averages).

POWELL EXPRESS

POWELL, Wyo. (AP) — College football coaches are beating a path to the door of Eddie Kawano, who led Powell to 11 consecutive victories and the Wyoming class A football championship last fall.

Kawano, a 160 - pound scatback, scored 186 points and passed for four touchdowns. He rolled up 1,489 yards rushing, an average of more than nine yards per carry.

Athlete Gets 5th Sports Letter At 4-Sport School

HALEYVILLE, Ala., Dec. 21 (AP) —The awarding of five letters to Jimmy Christopher at Haleyville High School's football banquet caused quite a stir.

The school in this northwest Alabama community has only four sports.

Christopher, 5-11, 170 pounds, was a halfback on the football team, a forward on the basketball team, and cleanup batter on the baseball team.

He also threw the discus on the track team.

Coach Herman Scott announced at the banquet:

"As you know, last June Jimmy turned 20 and was no longer eligible to participate in high school sports.

"But, it gives me great pleasure to present him his fifth letter — as a cheerleader."

DETROIT, Dec. 21 (AP)—Bob Pettit scored 51 points as the St. Louis Hawks set an all-time league scoring record by defeating the Syracuse Nationals, 146-136 in the first game of a national basketball association doubleheader before 5,000 at Olympia stadium tonight.

Cincinnati met Detroit in the nightcap.

Several league records were broken by the two teams. They surpassed by 17 points the previous high for two teams in a single game, which was 265 set by St. Louis and New York in 1956. Their combined totals of 145 at the half and 206 points at the third period also smashed existing league marks.

Syracuse's losing total also was an NBA record for the most points scored by a loser.

It was the highest scoring night of the season for the sharp-shooting Pettit. He previously had dumped in 45 points in one game.

St. Louis, which won its seventh straight to maintain its lead in the Western Division, trailed the Nats into the final period and managed to tie the score at 116-116 with seven and a half minutes left. Then they went in front to stay behind the shooting of Pettit, Cliff Hagan and Ed Macauley.

The game was marred by two technical fouls against Syracuse player-coach Paul Seymour who eventually was chased from the bench by referee Ernie Heft after threatening referee Dick Powers.

Center John Kerr scored 33 points and forward Dolph Schayes, 35 for the Nats. Hagan was runnerup in scoring to Pettit with 28.

Forrestal Gets Washington TD Club Grid Award

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Tom Forrestal, Navy's 20-year - old quarterback who led the Middies to eight victories and one tie in 10 games the past season, today was named winner of the touchdown club of Washington's award to the outstanding area college player of the year.

General chairman Arthur (Dutch Bergman of the club said Forrestal was chosen by a unanimous vote of the seven-man board of former college stars.

Other nominees in the final balloting were: last season's award winner, Jim Bahktiar, University of Virginia fullback; Mike Sommers, George Washington University halfback; Bob Reifsnyder, Navy lineman; and Ed Cooke, co-captain of the University of Maryland.

Forrestal will receive the award at the 23rd annual Touchdown Club banquet Jan. 11, at which other club honors will be presented to the nation's outstanding football stars.

'Gooey Going' Forecast For Lions-49ers Playoff Game

BY HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21 (UP)—The rains came to San Francisco today and the forecast is "gooey going" when the Forty Niners tangle with the Detroit Lions in the play-off game Sunday for the western division championship of the National Professional Football League.

Despite the inclement weather, a sell-out of nearly 60,000 fans is kick-off time, 3 p.m. cst. There will be national television (CBS), but a local blackout for 150 miles.

While the game rates as strictly a toss-up in the minds of both Coach George Wilson of Detroit and Frankie Albert of San Francisco, the gamblers have taken a different view. They have installed the Forty Niners as three and one-half point favorites.

"It should be an even-up game," says Albert. "It all depends on who gets the breaks." Wilson concurred.

It is Wilson's opinion, however, that the wet going will aid the San Francisco club.

"With two 'heavy' runners like Gene Babb and Joe Perry in the lineup," said Wilson, "the Forty Niner ground attack ought to be stronger than ours."

He failed to elaborate on the statement or to discuss why San Francisco's men should run better in the mud than his own famed ball-pacers, Howard (Hopalong) Cassidy and John Henry Johnson. Johnson is a former local boy who has seen plenty of rain in the winter.

Most observers believe that the game will be decided via the air waves. One thing the mud may do is to make Tobin Rote, Detroit quarterback, stay in the "pocket." Rote, second highest ground-gainer on the Lion squad, is noted as a pass-run option performer and he may find the slippery footing makes it tough to escape tacklers if he leaves the "cup."

On the other hand, Forty Niner quarterback Y. A. Tittle, already more-or-less immobilized by injuries as far as running is concerned, had planned to stay in the "cup" anyway.

The Detroit team that will start on the offensive will be missing three of its regulars. Charley Ane, veteran tackle, will be sidelined by leg injuries and his place taken by rookie Ken Russell, who weighs as much as Ane, but lacks the experience. Gene Gedman, the regular left-half, also is sidelined with injuries and in his spot probably will go end Jim Doran. That will move end David Middleton up to the left end spot. The other regular, quarterback Bobby Layne, is out for the year, of course, with a broken leg.

Meanwhile, San Francisco will be at its strongest for the game. There even is hope that the great offensive guard, returns to duty after weeks on the side-lines.

PARK FOR O'MALLEY

A Sports Letter To Santa Claus

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) — What some sports celebrities would like to find in their Christmas stockings Wednesday morning:

Walter O'Malley — A ball park in which to house his transplanted Dodgers with facilities for parking 15 million automobiles, preferably not in the Pacific Ocean.

Ted Williams — The American League's Most Valuable Player trophy many baseball fans felt he deserved.

Bill Talbert — An airmail package containing Ham Richardson and Dick Savitt that would enable the Americans to give the Australians a better fight for the Davis Cup.

Willie Shoemaker — An invitation to ride one of the better horses in the 1958 Kentucky now that the finish line has been marked more distinctly.

Casey Stengel — A secret report on how his Yankees can beat Lew Burdette if they should meet up again with Milwaukee's star righthander.

Tommy Loughran — A reminder that even when $64,000 isn't involved, women have all the right answers . . . Accompanied by a "Thank you" note from Tony Galento.

Fred Haney — A report of another fine move by the Milwaukee management which gave the Chicago cubs the Rush act in Colorado Springs earlier this month.

Archie Moore — A boxing rule raising the light heavyweight limit to 225 pounds that would terminate his extensive dieting for each title fight.

Tug Wilson — A rule banning from Olympic competition gymnastics and Greco - Roman wrestling, the sports that enabled the Russians to finish on top of the United States in Australia.

Nippy Jones — A few cases of shoe polish to replace those he used for the Braves in the World Series.

Bud Wilkinson — Announcement that Oklahoma's loss to Notre Dame would be deleted from the records, resulting in the continuation of the Sooners' amazing college winning streak.

Robin Roberts — A new pitch to replace his fading fastball that helped result in 40 losses over the last two seasons after winning at least 20 games for six straight years.

Billy Martin — The money he requested from Kansas City for being part of the big player deal with Detroit . . . Also a Christmas card from George Weiss.

Frank Shaughnessy — A congressional order prohibiting major league baseball clubs from televising in minor league territories on Sundays.

Floyd Patterson — A "name" contender who would enable him to cash in on a lucrative outdoor title bout next summer.

Horace Stoneham — An invention that would do away with fog.

Cookie Lavagetto and Danny Murtaugh— Several bottles of aspirin.

Al Aucoin On All-Scholastic SEC Squad

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 21—Eight schools are represented on the 1958 Southeastern Conference All - Scholastic team chosen annually by the American Peoples Encyclopedia.

Two scholars were bonafide All-America field selections, End Jimmy Phillips of Auburn and Tackle-Guard Bill Johnson of Tennessee, which proves, says the encyclopedia editor, Carroll Chouinard, that "many football players perform just as spectacularly in the classroom as they do on the field."

Phillips and Johnson are high B students in education and business administration respectively.

Other members of the All-SEC teams, majoring in engineering (3), agriculture (2), pre-med (1), pre-dentistry (1) geology (1) and business administration (1) are:

End — Jim Urbaniak, Kentucky, A, pre-med)

Tackle — Al Aucoin, LSU (B-plus, geology)

Guards — Jimmy Dodd, Miss. State (A, engineering) and Foster Watkins, Georgia Tech (A, engineering)

Center — Jack Benson, Miss. State (B, plus, agriculture)

Backs — Lloyd Nix, Auburn (B, plus, pre-dentistry); Leroy Reed, Mississippi (A, engineering); Jimmy Orr, Georgia (B-plus, business administraton) and Stockton Atkins, Tennessee (B-plus, agriculture)

Urbaniak, Dodd, Watkins, and Reed are A students.

Commissioner Bernie Moore and all 12 SEC athletic directors cooperated with the American Peoples Encyclopedia in selecting the team. Similar teams are chosen in each major conference except the Pacific Coast circuit.

Every SEC member was represented on the first team except Tulane, Florida, Alabama and Vanderbilt. All except Tulane had men on the honorable-mention list (Star players with B or better averages).

POWELL EXPRESS

POWELL, Wyo. (AP) — College football coaches are beating a path to the door of Eddie Kawano, who led Powell to 11 consecutive victories and the Wyoming class A football championship last fall.

Kawano, a 160 - pound scatback, scored 186 points and passed for four touchdowns. He rolled up 1,489 yards rushing, an average of more than nine yards per carry.

Athlete Gets 5th Sports Letter At 4-Sport School

HALEYVILLE, Ala., Dec. 21 (AP)—The awarding of five letters to Jimmy Christopher at Haleyville High School's football banquet caused quite a stir.

The school in this northwest Alabama community has only four sports.

Christopher, 5-11, 170 pounds, was a halfback on the football team, a forward on the basketball team, and cleanup batter on the baseball team.

He also threw the discus on the track team.

Coach Herman Scott announced at the banquet:

"As you know, last June Jimmy turned 20 and was no longer eligible to participate in high school sports.

"But, it gives me great pleasure to present him his fifth letter — as a cheerleader."

GATOR BOWL TOPS

Bowl Season Hits Stride This Week With 4 Games

By FRANK LITSKY
United Press Sports Writer

The college football bowl season hits its stride next week with four games topped by the Gator Bowl battle between Texas A&M and Tennessee.

The vital statistics:

Wednesday—North favored by one point over the South in the Shrine Game at the Miami Orange Bowl. (No TV; Mutual Radio at 7:05 p.m. CST).

Saturday—Texas A&M favored by three points over Tennessee in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. (CBS TV at 12:45 p.m. CST.)

Saturday—Gray favored by two points over the Blue at Montgomery, Ala. (NBC TV and Radio at 12:45 p.m. CST).

Saturday—East favored by nine points over the West in the Shrine game at San Francisco. (NBC TV and Radio at 3:45 p.m. CST.)

The Gator Bowl game will mark Paul (Bear) Bryant's farewell to Texas A&M. Before he leaves two days later to take over as head coach at Alabama. His Aggie team (8-2 this year) features Player-of-the-Year John Crow at halfback, Charlie Krueger at tackle and a 15-pound-per-man advantage in the line. But the Aggies also are shy on reserves and lost the last two games of the season because their grinding ground game had left their iron men too tired.

Tennessee, 7-3 this season but 3-7 in previous bowl appearances, operates out of a traditional single wing. Tailback Bobby Gordon, the key man, is a fine runner, fair passer and superb punter. Tennessee used the punt—especially a quick kick—as an offensive weapon. Its backs are seasoned and its line especially adept at blocking.

Five members of the United Press All-America team will play for the East in the San Francisco Shrine game. They are halfback Walt Kowalczyk of Michigan State, ends Jimmy Phillips of Auburn and Jim Gibbons of Iowa and tackles Alex Karras of Iowa and Lou Michaels of Kentucky.

While East Coach Rip Engle of Penn State probably will stick to the ground, West Coach Jack Curtice of Utah readily concedes he will use a wide-open passing attack. His quarterbacks, all good passers, are Jack Douglas of Stanford, Tom Flores of College of Pacific and Joe Francis, who played tailback in Oregon State's single wing offense.

The North South game shapes up as a tight match between ground attacks. The North, coached by Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State and laden with Big Ten stars, includes quarterback Jim Ninowski, end Dave Kaiser and center Dan Currie of Michigan State, fullback Chuck Shea of Stanford and end Dick Lasse of Syracuse. Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, coaching the South, can call on All-American center Don Stephenson of Georgia Tech, halfback Dick Christy of North Carolina State and fullbacks Jimmy Taylor of Louisiana State and Billy Atkins of Auburn.

Murray Warmath of Minnesota and Andy Pilney of Tulane, rival coaches for the Blue-Gray game, have well-balanced offenses. The Gray will rely on quarterback Ken Ford of Hardin-Simmons, leading passer in the nation, through the air and Phil King, a 6-4 halfback from Vanderbilt, on the ground. The Blue has fullback Larry Krutko of West Virginia for running and three passing quarterbacks in Dan Nolan of Lehigh and Bobby Cox and Dick Larson, both from Minnesota.

Latest odds for the major bowl games on New Year's Day show Ohio State favored over Oregon by 19 points in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.; Oklahoma over Duke by 10 in the Orange Bowl at Miami; Navy over Rice by one point in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas; and Mississippi over Texas by one point in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

AT VICKSBURG

Pros Favored In Mississippi Cup

VICKSBURG, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — The 12-man professional team will be favored in the sixth annual Mississippi Cup Matches at the Vicksburg Country Club Friday and Saturday.

The matches pit 12-man teams of leading amateurs and pros of the state against each other.

On Friday all play will be doubles, or best ball, competition featuring two-man teams of pros versus two-man teams of amateurs. Saturday, a dozen singles matches will be run off.

The pros have won each time in the series' five year history but the amateurs have made it close.

Johnny Revolta of Gulf Hills, former PGA champion and now winter pro at Gulf Hills, is captain of the pro team by virtue of his victory in this year's open tournament. H. P. Childress of Vicksburg, state amateur king, heads the play-for-fun contingent.

Revolta and Childress will get together Friday morning to arrange pairings.

With Revolta on the pro team they are Roy Pope, Gulf Hills; Davis Love, Hattiesburg; Frank Steidle, Biloxi; Nelson Giddens, Jackson Country Club; Scott McCool, Gulf Hills; Bill Davis, Meridian; L.V. Dukes, Clarksdale; Norman Bryant, Jackson Colonial; host pro John Stahl, Vicksburg; Vic Odom, Tupelo, and E.D. (Sonny) Guy, Jackson Municipal.

On the amateur team with Childress are B.F. (Sec) Wilson, Laurel; B.B. Bowen, Shelby; John (Kayo) Dottley, Vicksburg; Maynard Craft, Jackson; Jim Coleman, Jackson; Mickey Bellande, Biloxi; Giles Peresich, Biloxi; Jim Pegues, Greenwood; Lewis Culley Jr., Jackson; Walter Johnson, Jackson, and the Rev. Seth Granberry, Vicksburg.

Season's Greetings

Thirty-Four Demons Given Grid Letters

NATCHITOCHES, Dec. 19 (Special)—Thirty - four Northwestern State College gridmen, two managers and the student trainer were awarded "letters" for their participation in N S C's 1957 football season, in which the Demons finished with a 7-2 record and shared the Gulf States Conference championship with McNeese State and Louisiana Tech.

Here is the list as reported by head football coach and athletic director here this week:

IN HOLIDAY BOWL

Pittsburg Beats Hillsdale, 27-26

By ROBERT S. McNEILL

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP)— Pittsburg (Kan.) Teachers won the NAIA small college football title today by handing Hillsdale (Mich.) its first defeat in 34 starts, 27-26, in the first annual Holiday Bowl.

The Pittsburg Gorillas, punching their "ball control" attack through the line with hard running backs, had to fight off a desperate aerial attack by Hillsdale in the second half which almost resulted in a deadlock.

Charles Norris, a shifty halfback, ran across two scores for Pittsburg and end Paul Crandel caught two passes from quarterback John Matous for the other two. Bill Samuels kicked three out of four extra points for Pittsburg, including the point after the fourth touchdown which was the margin of victory. The two teams were tied 20-20 in the third quarter.

For Hillsdale, quarterback Doug Maison sneaked for one touchdown and passed for three others. Halfback Walt Poe caught two of the touchdown tosses and fullback Earl O'Shaughnessy gathered in the other before a crowd of about 8,000.

An attempted conversion by Wayne O'Shaugnessy in the fourth period was wide and left Hillsdale behind one point.

Pittsburg opened the game with a ground attack that rocked the Dales. Three breaks helped the Kansans push across three first period touchdowns.

Pittsburg took Hillsdale's first kick, a short one, on the Dales' 35 and six plays later Norris bucked over from the one. Minutes later, one of Maison's passes was intercepted by Poe on the Hillsdale 35. It took only four plays to move the ball to the 10, from where Norris ran it over.

Recovers Poe Fumble

Pittsburg's last score in the first period came when fullback John Ewing recovered a Poe fumble on the Hillsdale 30. Matous passed to Crandel for the score.

The Dales drove 67 yards for their first score with Maison completing several passes to end Jim Raynolds, Poe and end Jerry Tailor. Maison capped the drive by sneaking over from the one-foot mark.

Norris recovered a fumble on the Hillsdale 40 and with Maison throwing seven straight passes, Hillsdale scored its second touchdown with one minute and 16 seconds to go in the half. Poe took the final Maison pass for 52 yards in the end zone.

Hillsdale tied the game 20-20 in the third period when a Matous fumble was recovered by taylor on the Pittsburg six. Three plays later Maison passed to Poe for the score.

Score by periods:

Hillsdale	0	13	7	6	—26
Pittsburg	20	0	7	0	—27

Hillsdale scoring: Touchdowns, Maison (2, run); Poe 2 (2, pass from Maison; 10, pass from Maison); O'Shaughnessy (14, pass from Maison). Conversions, O'Shaughnessy 2.

Pittsburg scoring: Touchdowns, Norris 2 (1, run) 12, run); Crandel (one, pass from Matous; 20, pass from Matous). Conversions, Samuels 3.

AT FARMERVILLE

Marion Boys, Host Girls Win Tourney

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special)—Farmerville girls and Marion boys won the championships of the Farmerville Basketball Tournament here last night with final victories over Downsville girls and Bastrop boys.

The host girls slipped by Downsville in a tight, low scoring game, 29-28, and Marion whipped Bastrop easily in the boys finals, 67-42.

Linville girls took third place in the tournament with a forfeit consolation win over Bonita and Summerfield boys topped Farmerville 50-40, for third place among the boys. Bailey had 16 to pace the Summerfield team and Long had 14 for Farmerville.

Andrews poured in 24 points to pace Marion to their championship with Jefferies leading the losing Bastrop outfit with 12. Marion was safely in the lead at halftime, 35-27.

Downsville rallied from an 18-15 halftime deficit but still fell to Farmerville girls by one point in the girls finals. Wade led the winners with 13 points and Terrell had 11 for the losers.

Bastrop boys gained the finals with a 55-46 semi-final win over Farmerville with Burks putting in 12 points for Bastrop and Long getting 23 for the losers. Marion defeated Summerfield, 36-27, in the other boys semi-final with Andrews leading with 19 and Moss and Ledbetter getting 8 for the losers.

Downsville girls downed Linville, 42-27, in the only girls semi-final game played yesterday. Hamilton had 21 for Downsville and Ford 13 for Linville.

At the conclusion of the tourney, Sportsmanship Awards were presented to the Bernice girls team and to the Summerfield boys.

West Squad Loses Tackle Bob Oliver

STANFORD, Calif., Dec. 21 (UP) — The West team for the Shrimp game lost tackle Bob Oliver of Baylor today when his wife was involved in a serious auto accident and Oliver had to return to his home in Abilene, Tex.

His place will be taken by guard Don Manoukian of Stanford. Floyd Peters of San Francisco State, who had been listed as a guard, will move over to tackle.

The team went through a normal workout today and spent some time watching movies of last year's game. There will be no workout Sunday as the players will be attending the pro game between the San Francisco Forty Niners and the Detroit Lions.

Ohio Staters In California For Bowl Date

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 21 (UP)—Ohio State's Western Conference champion footballers — numbering 43 strong — dropped out of hazy skies in a chartered DC-7 today a Burbank Air Terminal to begin California practices for their Jan. 1 Rose Bowl date with Oregon.

The OSU contingent arrived at 1 p.m. P.S.T. more than an hour behind schedule. Their Oregon opponents were to arrive later in the day, also by plane.

The full Buckeye complement totaled 44, the allowable limit under the Rose Bowl rules. However, the Bucs ace left halfback, Don Clark, continued to favor a groin injury and his playing status remained questionable.

As Woody Hayes, his coaching assistants and players marched down the ramp, they were welcomed by a shower of oranges, California variety, tossed by Tournament of Roses Queen Trudy Wood, her royal court of princesses, tournament officials sand some 200 other well wishers.

Hayes, who stepped from the plane with a smile and a pleasant word for the horde of reporters on hand to greet him, was a switch from the taciturn Hayes of the 1954 OSU Rose Bowl team.

He shook hands with all the Rose Bowl officials and members of the press and told them that he believed "we have a club equally as good as the 1954 team."

Lew Burdette To Receive Special Writer's Award

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 21 (AP) — Lew Burdette, Braves pitching star of the 1957 World Series, will receive a special award from the Milwaukee chapter of the Baseball writers Assn. of America at the group's annual Diamond Dinner Jan. 30.

The 31 - year - old righthander who became the first pitcher in 37 years to start and win three series games — and the first since Babe Ruth in 1918 to turn in 20 consecutive scoreless innings — will come to Milwaukee to receive a plaque at the dinner.

His special award, only the second such ever made by the Milwaukee writers, is in addition to the regular most valuable player citation which this year was voted to Henry Aaron.

MYRT IS ON THE PINS

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Myrt DeFily registered 15 straight strikes when she turned in a 300 game in the mixed doubles bowling competition at Highland Center. She had ended her previous game with three straight strikes. The 300 game helped her attain a three - game series of 673. It was her fifth 600 series in succession.

Tech Athletes To Be Busy Over Holidays

RUSTON, La. Special) — Several Louisiana Tech athletes will be busy during the Christmas vacation engaged in basketball, football and track action.

The Bulldog basketballers will participate in the Louisiana Invitational Tournament at Shreveport, Dec. 26-28.

Tech's outstanding tackle, senior Tommy Hinton of Ruston, is to be a member of the Southern squad for the annual Blue-Gray football classic at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28.

Freshman Pat Garrett of Ruston will compete in the 100 yard dash at the Sugar Bowl Track Meet, New Orleans, on Dec. 29.

In first round action of the Louisiana Invitational Tourney, the Tech quintet will go up against Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, Tex., at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 26 Other teams entered in the meet are Tennessee Tech, Mississippi Southern, West Texas State, Northwestern State, The Citadel, and Centenary College.

The first Tech player ever to participate in the annual Blue-Gray game, Tommy Hinton has been a standout in the Bulldog line the past four years. Following the grid season, during which Tech tied for the Gulf States Conference title, Hinton was named to two All-GSC teams and to Williamson's Mid - Bracket All-American first team

He was selected to All-Conference first teams by the Associated Press and by the Louisiana Sports Writers' Association. He was the only unanimous choice of the sports writers. This marked Hinton's third straight season to make the All-Gulf States Conference first team.

Late information from the Williamson Rating System reveals that Hinton was the only Gulf States Conference gridder to land a spot on Williamson's first three teams. The 230 pounder received the second highest number of votes of any player to make the Williamson All-American rating.

James McCabe, Tech junior quarterback from Minden, also received honorable mention for Williamson's team.

Pat Garrett, who had an outstanding track record at Ruston High School, set two State AA prep records last spring when he ran the 100 yards in 9.5 seconds and the 220 yards in 20.7 seconds.

Hinton is scheduled to arrive at Montgomery, Ala., Saturday Dec. 21) to begin workouts with the Southern squad. Garrett is to leave for New Orleans on Dec. 27.

Blue-Gray Passing Stars Get Workout

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 21 (AP)—Rival coaches gave their highly rated passing stars a workout today as 48 college all-stars went through their first practice for next Saturday's Blue-Gray game.

The Northerners spent the afternoon working solely on pass plays, with Bob Cox and Dick Larson of Minnesota and Dan Nolan of Lehigh doing the throwing. Nolan made the Associated Press Little All-America this year.

Yankee coaches headed by Minnesota's Murray Warmath apparently are stressing an aerial game to match the accuracy of the South's top quarterback, Ken Ford of Hardin-Simmons. Ford was the nation's No. 1 passer this year.

Ford and Gene Newton of Tulane took turns on the firing line as the Rebels ran through pass plays mixed with rushing scrimmage. Among the receivers was Chattanooga's end Howard Clark.

Both squads will run through daily pratice rounds until game time.

The Southerners started their workouts minus their head coach, Andy Pilney of Tulane. Pilney arrived here yesterday, but left immediately because of the death of his mother in Chicago. He is expected to return about Tuesday.

Running the squad in his absence are coaches Sammy Baugh of Hardin-Simmons and Earle Edwards of North Carolina State.

Helping Warmath with the Yankees are Don Faurot, Missouri's athletic director and former head coach, and Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue.

THREE SIGN WITH CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21 (UP)—Third baseman Eddie Kasko and two others have signed contracts with the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1958 season, General Manager Bing Devine announced today. Also signed were pitching newcomer Phil Clark and Negro outfielder Curtis Flood.

Bob Zuppke In Weaker Shape

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 21 (AP)—Bob Zuppke, former football coach at the University of Illinois, was reported in weaker condition today.

Dr. John B. Christie, his physician, said Zuppke "still is conscious and is taking some nourishment but his condition is quite serious.

Zuppke, 78, is in a hospital with high blood pressure and a related heart ailment and a prostate gland condition.

GATOR BOWL TOPS

Bowl Season Hits Stride This Week With 4 Games

By FRANK LITSKY
United Press Sports Writer

The college football bowl season hits its stride next week with four games topped by the Gator Bowl battle between Texas A&M and Tennessee.

The vital statistics:

Wednesday—North favored by one point over the South in the Shrine Game at the Miami Orange Bowl. (No TV; Mutual Radio at 7:05 p.m. CST).

Saturday—Texas A&M favored by three points over Tennessee in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. (CBS TV at 12:45 p.m. CST.)

Saturday—Gray favored by two points over the Blue at Montgomery, Ala. (NBC TV and Radio at 12:45 p.m. CST).

Saturday—East favored by nine points over the West in the Shrine game at San Francisco. (NBC TV and Radio at 3:45 p.m. CST.)

The Gator Bowl game will mark Paul (Bear) Bryant's farewell to Texas A&M. Before he leaves two days later to take over as head coach at Alabama. His Aggie team (8-2 this year) features Player-of-the-Year John Crow at halfback, Charlie Krueger at tackle and a 15-pound-per-man advantage in the line. But the Aggies also are shy on reserves and lost the last two games of the season because their grinding ground game had left their iron men too tired.

Tennessee, 7-3 this season but 3-7 in previous bowl appearances, operates out of a traditional single wing. Tailback Bobby Gordon, the key man, is a fine runner, fair passer and superb punter. Tennessee used the punt—especially a quick kick—as an offensive weapon. Its backs are seasoned and its line especially adept at blocking.

Five members of the United Press All-America team will play for the East in the San Francisco Shrine game. They are halfback Walt Kowalczyk of Michigan State, ends Jimmy Phillips of Auburn and Jim Gibbons of Iowa and tackles Alex Karras of Iowa and Lou Michaels of Kentucky.

While East Coach Rip Engle of Penn State probably will stick to the ground, West Coach Jack Curtice of Utah readily concedes he will use a wide-open passing attack. His quarterbacks, all good passers, are Jack Douglas of Stanford, Tom Flores of College of Pacific and Joe Francis, who played tailback in Oregon State's single wing offense.

The North South game shapes up as a tight match between ground attacks. The North, coached by Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State and laden with Big Ten stars, includes quarterback Jim Ninowski, end Dave Kaiser and center Dan Currie of Michigan State, fullback Chuck Shea of Stanford and end Dick Lasse of Syracuse. Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, coaching the South, can call on All-American center Don Stephenson of Georgia Tech, halfback Dick Christy of North Carolina State and fullbacks Jimmy Taylor of Louisiana State and Billy Atkins of Auburn.

Murray Warmath of Minnesota and Andy Pilney of Tulane, rival coaches for the Blue-Gray game, have well-balanced offenses. The Gray will rely on quarterback Ken Ford of Hardin-Simmons, leading passer in the nation, through the air and Phil King, a 6-4 halfback from Vanderbilt, on the ground. The Blue has fullback Larry Krutko of West Virginia for running and three passing quarterbacks in Dan Nolan of Lehigh and Bobby Cox and Dick Larson, both from Minnesota.

Latest odds for the major bowl games on New Year's Day show Ohio State favored over Oregon by 19 points in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.; Oklahoma over Duke by 10 in the Orange Bowl at Miami; Navy over Rice by one point in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas; and Mississippi over Texas by one point in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

AT VICKSBURG

Pros Favored In Mississippi Cup

VICKSBURG, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — The 12-man professional team will be favored in the sixth annual Mississippi Cup Matches at the Vicksburg Country Club Friday and Saturday.

The matches pit 12-man teams of leading amateurs and pros of the state against each other.

On Friday all play will be doubles, or best ball, competition featuring two-man teams of pros versus two-man teams of amateurs. Saturday, a dozen singles matches will be run off.

The pros have won each time in the series' five year history but the amateurs have made it close.

Johnny Revolta of Gulf Hills, former PGA champion and now winter pro at Gulf Hills, is captain of the pro team by virtue of his victory in this year's open tournament. H. P. Childress of Vicksburg, state amateur king, heads the play-for-fun contingent.

Revolta and Childress will get together Friday morning to arrange pairings.

With Revolta on the pro team they are Roy Pope, Gulf Hills; Davis Love, Hattiesburg; Frank Steidle, Biloxi; Nelson Giddens, Jackson Country Club; Scott McCool, Gulf Hills; Bill Davis, Meridian; L.V. Dukes, Clarksdale; Norman Bryant, Jackson Colonial; host pro John Stahl, Vicksburg; Vic Odom, Tupelo, and E.D. (Sonny) Guy, Jackson Municipal.

On the amateur team with Childress are B.F. (Sec) Wilson, Laurel; B.B. Bowen, Shelby; John (Kayo) Dottley, Vicksburg; Maynard Craft, Jackson; Jim Coleman, Jackson; Mickey Bellande, Biloxi; Giles Peresich, Biloxi; Jim Pegues, Greenwood; Lewis Culley Jr., Jackson; Walter Johnson, Jackson, and the Rev. Seth Granberry, Vicksburg.

Thirty-Four Demons Given Grid Letters

NATCHITOCHES, Dec. 19 (Special)—Thirty - four Northwestern State College gridmen, two managers and the student trainer were awarded "letters" for their participation in N S C's 1957 football season, in which the Demons finished with a 7-2 record and shared the Gulf States Conference championship with McNeese State and Louisiana Tech.

Here is the list as reported by head football coach and athletic director here this week:

IN HOLIDAY BOWL

Pittsburg Beats Hillsdale, 27-26

By ROBERT S. McNEILL

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP)— Pittsburg (Kan.) Teachers won the NAIA small college football title today by handing Hillsdale (Mich.) its first defeat in 34 starts, 27-26, in the first annual Holiday Bowl.

The Pittsburg Gorillas, punching their "ball control" attack through the line with hard running backs, had to fight off a desperate aerial attack by Hillsdale in the second half which almost resulted in a deadlock.

Charles Norris, a shifty halfback, ran across two scores for Pittsburg and end Paul Crandel caught two passes from quarterback John Matous for the other two. Bill Samuels kicked three out of four extra points for Pittsburg, including the point after the fourth touchdown which was the margin of victory. The two teams were tied 20-20 in the third quarter.

For Hillsdale, quarterback Doug Maison sneaked for one touchdown and passed for three others. Halfback Walt Poe caught two of the touchdown tosses and fullback Earl O'Shaughnessy gathered in the other before a crowd of about 8,000.

An attempted conversion by Wayne O'Shaugnessy in the fourth period was wide and left Hillsdale behind one point.

Pittsburg opened the game with a ground attack that rocked the Dales. Three breaks helped the Kansans push across three first period touchdowns.

Pittsburg took Hillsdale's first kick, a short one, on the Dales' 35 and six plays later Norris bucked over from the one. Minutes later, one of Maison's passes was intercepted by Poe on the Hillsdale 35. It took only four plays to move the ball to the 10, from where Norris ran it over.

Recovers Poe Fumble

Pittsburg's last score in the first period came when fullback John Ewing recovered a Poe fumble on the Hillsdale 30. Matous passed to Crandel for the score.

The Dales drove 67 yards for their first score with Maison completing several passes to end Jim Raynolds, Poe and end Jerry Tailor. Maison capped the drive by sneaking over from the one-foot mark.

Norris recovered a fumble on the Hillsdale 40 and with Maison throwing seven straight passes, Hillsdale scored its second touchdown with one minute and 16 seconds to go in the half. Poe took the final Maison pass for 52 yards in the end zone.

Hillsdale tied the game 20-20 in the third period when a Matous fumble was recovered by tailor on the Pittsburg six. Three plays later Maison passed to Poe for the score.

Score by periods:
Hillsdale	0	13	7	6	—26
Pittsburg	20	0	7	0	—27

Hillsdale scoring: Touchdowns, Maison (2, run); Poe 2 (2, pass from Maison; 10, pass from Maison); O'Shaughnessy (14, pass from Maison). Conversions, O'Shaughnessy 2.

Pittsburg scoring: Touchdowns, Norris 2 (1, run) 12, run); Crandel (one, pass from Matous; 20, pass from Matous). Conversions, Samuels 3.

AT FARMERVILLE

Marion Boys, Host Girls Win Tourney

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special)—Farmerville girls and Marion boys won the championships of the Farmerville Basketball Tournament here last night with final victories over Downsville girls and Bastrop boys.

The host girls slipped by Downsville in a tight, low scoring game, 29-28, and Marion whipped Bastrop easily in the boys finals, 67-42.

Linville girls took third place in the tournament with a forfeit consolation win over Bonita and Summerfield boys topped Farmerville 50-40, for third place among the boys. Bailey had 16 to pace the Summerfield team and Long had 14 for Farmerville.

Andrews poured in 24 points to pace Marion to their championship with Jefferies leading the losing Bastrop outfit with 12. Marion was safely in the lead at halftime, 35-27.

Downsville rallied from an 18-15 halftime deficit but still fell to Farmerville girls by one point in the girls finals. Wade led the winners with 13 points and Terrell had 11 for the losers.

Bastrop boys gained the finals with a 55-46 semi-final win over Farmerville with Burks putting in 12 points for Bastrop and Long getting 23 for the losers. Marion defeated Summerfield, 36-27, in the other boys semi-final with Andrews leading with 19 and Moss and Ledbetter getting 8 for the losers.

Downsville girls downed Linville, 42-27, in the only girls semi-final game played yesterday. Hamilton had 21 for Downsville and Ford 13 for Linville.

At the conclusion of the tourney, Sportsmanship Awards were presented to the Bernice girls team and to the Summerfield boys.

Ohio Staters In California For Bowl Date

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 21 (UP)—Ohio State's Western Conference champion footballers — numbering 43 strong — dropped out of hazy skies in a chartered DC-7 today a Burbank Air Terminal to begin California practices for their Jan. 1 Rose Bowl date with Oregon.

The OSU contingent arrived at 1 p.m. P.S.T. more than an hour behind schedule. Their Oregon opponents were to arrive later in the day, also by plane.

The full Buckeye complement totaled 44, the allowable limit under the Rose Bowl rules. However, the Bucs ace left halfback, Don Clark, continued to favor a groin injury and his playing status remained questionable.

As Woody Hayes, his coaching assistants and players marched down the ramp, they were welcomed by a shower of oranges, California variety, tossed by Tournament of Roses Queen Trudy Wood, her royal court of princesses, tournament officials sand some 200 other well wishers.

Hayes, who stepped from the plane with a smile and a pleasant word for the horde of reporters on hand to greet him, was a switch from the taciturn Hayes of the 1954 OSU Rose Bowl team.

He shook hands with all the Rose Bowl officials and members of the press and told them that he believed "we have a club equally as good as the 1954 team."

West Squad Loses Tackle Bob Oliver

STANFORD, Calif,, Dec. 21 (UP) — The West team for the Shrimp game lost tackle Bob Oliver of Baylor today when his wife was involved in a serious auto accident and Oliver had to return to his home in Abilene, Tex.

His place will be taken by guard Don Manoukian of Stanford. Floyd Peters of San Francisco State, who had been listed as a guard, will move over to tackle.

The team went through a normal workout today and spent some time watching movies of last year's game. There will be no workout Sunday as the players will be attending the pro game between the San Francisco Forty Niners and the Detroit Lions.

Lew Burdette To Receive Special Writer's Award

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 21 (AP) — Lew Burdette, Braves pitching star of the 1957 World Series, will receive a special award from the Milwaukee chapter of the Baseball writers Assn. of America at the group's annual Diamond Dinner Jan. 30.

The 31 - year - old righthander who became the first pitcher in 37 years to start and win three series games — and the first since Babe Ruth in 1918 to turn in 20 consecutive scoreless innings — will come to Milwaukee to receive a plaque at the dinner.

His special award, only the second such ever made by the Milwaukee writers, is in addition to the regular most valuable player citation which this year was voted to Henry Aaron.

MYRT IS ON THE PINS

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Myrt DeFily registered 15 straight strikes when she turned in a 300 game in the mixed doubles bowling competition at Highland Center. She had ended her previous game with three straight strikes. The 300 game helped her attain a three - game series of 673. It was her fifth 600 series in succession.

Tech Athletes To Be Busy Over Holidays

RUSTON, La. Special) — Several Louisiana Tech athletes will be busy during the Christmas vacation engaged in basketball, football and track action.

The Bulldog basketballers will participate in the Louisiana Invitational Tournament at Shreveport, Dec. 26-28.

Tech's outstanding tackle, senior Tommy Hinton of Ruston, is to be a member of the Southern squad for the annual Blue-Gray football classic at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 28.

Freshman Pat Garrett of Ruston will compete in the 100 yard dash at the Sugar Bowl Track Meet, New Orleans, on Dec. 29.

In first round action of the Louisiana Invitational Tourney, the Tech quintet will go up against Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, Tex., at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 26 Other teams entered in the meet are Tennessee Tech, Mississippi Southern, West Texas State, Northwestern State, The Citadel, and Centenary College.

The first Tech player ever to participate in the annual Blue-Gray game, Tommy Hinton has been a standout in the Bulldog line the past four years. Following the grid season, during which Tech tied for the Gulf States Conference title, Hinton was named to two All-GSC teams and to Williamson's Mid - Bracket All-American first team

He was selected to All-Conference first teams by the Associated Press and by the Louisiana Sports Writers Association. He was the only unanimous choice of the sports writers. This marked Hinton's third straight season to make the All-Gulf States Conference first team.

Late information from the Williamson Rating System reveals that Hinton was the only Gulf States Conference gridder to land a spot on Williamson's first three teams. The 230 pounder received the second highest number of votes of any player to make the Williamson All-American rating.

James McCabe, Tech junior quarterback from Minden, also received honorable mention for Williamson's team.

Pat Garrett, who had an outstanding track record at Ruston High School, set two State AA prep records last spring when he ran the 100 yards in 9.5 seconds and the 220 yards in 20.7 seconds.

Hinton is scheduled to arrive at Montgomery, Ala., Saturday Dec. 21) to begin workouts with the Southern squad. Garrett is to leave for New Orleans on Dec. 27.

LSU Professor Gives His Views Of Business Recession

By DR. S. L. M'DONALD

(Editor's Note: The author is associate professor and head of the Louisiana State University department of finance, and has an enviable reputation in his field for careful, authoritative analysis. Several of his business forecasts have been published in the "Business Scope," published by Harvard University professors.)

There is no longer any question of whether we shall have a business recession. We are now experiencing one! Latest reports indicate that industrial production fell another two per cent from October to November and is now about six per cent below the peak reached a year ago this month. Layoffs are widely reported, and unemployment, while still less than five per cent of the labor force, has reached levels sufficient to cause some concern. Business plans for capital expenditure in 1958 are being revised downward. The Federal Reserve System has officially reversed its recent policy of anti-inflationary credit restraint and now seeks to encourage and facilitate borrowing and spending by business and consumers.

So the real question is, just how severe and lengthy will the present recession turn out to be?

A part of the answer lies in the character of the recent boom. It began in 1954 on a wave of home building and consumer buying, supported by personal tax reductions and a rapid expansion of credit on easy terms. Then, stimulated by growing demand, military stockpiling and tax law revisions, business expenditures on new plants and equipment took over as the main driving force in the boom. Capital expenditures reached record levels in 1956, leveled off, and in combination with rising government spending and unusually large exports, sustained the level of production into the spring of 1957.

Thereafter, signs of trouble began to accumulate. New orders for machine tools and structural steel—two important indicators of future spending for capital expansion—sagged well below shipments and kept on falling. In July, the stock market went into a sharp decline. After August, steel production dropped almost weekly, and excess capacity in other industries gradually developed. By November, when a decline in personal income and consumer spending was reported, the signs were pretty clear.

Boom Explained

What had happened? Basically, the boom was a capital expansion boom. We added enormously to our productive capacity from 1955 through 1957, and at a rate which was in excess of the rate at which demand for output was growing. This past year, the new capacity was progressively made available for use in production. In the process it became apparent that further industrial expansion for a time would be costly and unwise. So now we must wait a while for demand to "grow up" to our productive capacity before new capital expansion on a large scale—and our accustomed economic growth—can be resumed.

Credit Easier

That is part of the answer to our question. The recession must be long enough for demand to grow up to the point that businessmen are willing to risk expanding capacity again. The remainder of the answer starts with another question: What are the foreseeable sources of growing demand for output, especially when many people are losing their jobs and others are becoming more hesitant to make major purchases?

Dr. S. L. McDonald

First, we can be reassured to some extent by the so-called "built-in stabilizers," such as unemployment insurance, the high safety and liquidity of consumers' savings, and the heavy reliance of the federal government upon income taxes. The last means that when business activity declines, the government's tax take from us is reduced more than proportionately, even though nominal rates remain the same.

This is particularly significant for business tax liabilites, although personal income taxes, based on a progressive rate structure, are also subject to disproportionate reductions in a business recession. The presence of these "built-in stabilizers" enables us to be reasonably confident that, as in 1948-49 and 1953-54, the recession will not at once begin to feed upon itself in a vicious spiral of lower incomes, lower spending and lower incomes.

WALL STREET VISIT

Santa Returning, But Pack Lighter

NEW YORK (AP)—Santa Claus is coming back to Wall Street this year but his pack won't be as heavy.

Many firms will distribute the traditional Christmas bonus but a majority admit it will be smaller than last year. The Street has been havng its woes throughout 1957.

In fact, a trend toward getting away from the whole idea of the boss playing Kris Kringle is growing in the financial district.

Some of the biggest brokerage houses have set up other plans, not related to yuletide, for sharing the profit with employes.

The big one with the big name—Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane—stopped paying a Christmas bonus in 1955 when the firm's fiscal year was changed to end on Feb. 28. A bonus is paid in the spring.

A recruit to this idea this year in Bache & Co., another big house. Their fiscal year has been changed to end on Jan. 31 and a distribution will be made after that date. Previously, Bache has paid a bonus at Christmas.

Harris, Upham & Co. has a profit-sharing plan under which employes get a percentage of the profits after the end of the fiscal year, which ends Aug. 31. Says a partner: "It's not how the boss feels the week before Christmas that determines the payment."

The really lush Christmas in Wall Street came in 1955. That was the year of the biggest volume on the stock exchange since the end of World War II. Some of the smaller houses reportedly paid out a year's salary to some fortunate employes.

Last year payments generally were cut back as volume sank to 556,284,172 shares from 609,602,291 shares in 1955. (The 1955 volume was the largest since 1933.)

There's never been any compilation on how much money goes out in bonuses but Street habitues are sure it runs into the millions. Some of the larger houses with branches around the country are believed to distribute a million or more themselves.

Sputnik Top Toy For Reds' Pagan Holiday

By DONALD R. SHANOR

MUNICH, Germany (UP) — Twenty-five thousand little Sputniks will circle under Christmas trees in Communist East Germany this year.

East German factories have been just as busy turning out Nativity scenes and wooden figures of Santa Claus. But they are for export to the West only.

Throughout the Communist world, the propaganda machines are working hard to obscure the Christian origin of the holiday and turn it into a day of pagan praise to Communism. Christmas toys are an important part of this campaign.

The earth satellite, current trump card in Communist propaganda, is being produced by East German toy factories on a rush basis.

More Sputniks doubtless would be on the market in the other Soviet bloc nations but for bureaucratic production tangles in the state toy shops.

Strict Controls Enforced

In Czechoslovakia, toy production is subject to strict government controls and is planned a year in advance. The October launching of the Sputnik apparently caught the planners by surprise and there was no time to shift gears and have Sputniks ready for Christmas.

Polish children will also be Sputnik-less. The traditional teddy bears and dolls are the most popular toys there. Mechanical toys are also much in demand but are hard to get.

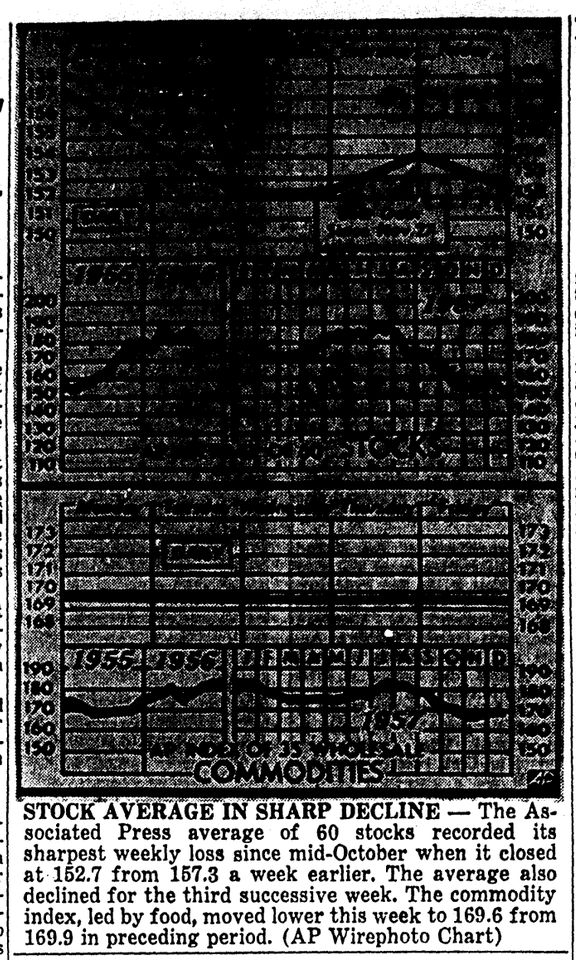
Communist Yugoslavia, well-armed neighbor of the Soviet bloc, reflects its defense-mindedness in its selection of toys. There are toy rifles, tanks, armored cars, fighter planes, and drums. There are more toys than ever in Belgrade shop windows this season, and more will be sold. The government has promised an extra month's salary as a Christmas bonus to all state employes.

Militaristic Ban Over

East Germany also has its share of lead soldiers and their weapons, after banning "militaristic" toys for more than a decade after world War II.

Hungarian and Romanian toys are simple carvings that carefully avoid the Christmas theme.

East Germany, Romania and Bulgaria place great emphasis on children's books as Christmas presents, but the fairy tales must follow the party line. The sleeping beauty in the East German version, for example, is rescued by a handsome young party activist rather than a prince.



STOCK AVERAGE IN SHARP DECLINE — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks recorded its sharpest weekly loss since mid-October when it closed at 152.7 from 157.3 a week earlier. The average also declined for the third successive week. The commodity index, led by food, moved lower this week to 169.6 from 169.9 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

WALL STREET

Pre-Christmas Cheer Lacking

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) —Little pre-Christmas cheer was evident in Wall Street this week, as the stock market had its worst slump since the week ended Oct. 12.

That was the week Sputnik I shook the nation's confidence and there also was bad economic news.

This week it was mainly poor reports from business and industry and glum forecasts for the first half of 1958.

Quoted values of stocks were slashed $5,784,000,000, based on the drop in The Associated Press average, bringing the total value of the listed stocks down to something over 195 billions.

A number of leading steels, motors and rails touched new lows for the year. Among steelmakers, the descent was unanjmous. The drop was accompanied by another decline in the industry's operating rate and a forecast of future reductions.

U.S. Steel broke 50 as it scraped bottom for '57, General Motors, the giant of its industry, also sank to a new low for the year. So did Chrysler, Ford and Studebaker.

The hapless rails demonsrated that their strong one-day rally of the previous week meant little as they continued to reach new lows for this year, and, in fact, for the past three years. Another drop in rail carloadings was reported.

The big economic indicators all pointed downward, repeating last week's story. The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production was down for the third straight month.

Friday's news that Chrysler planned to shut down its Detroit area assembly plants beginningng next week was a hard punch for an area assembly plants beginning next week was a hard punch for an uncertain market to take. The market fell, helped on its downward movement by a miscellany of other depressing reports.

The five most active issues this week were Bethlehem Steel off 2¼ at 34½, Standard Oil (New Jersey), off 1⅛ at 49, Chrylser off 6⅞ at 54½, General Motors, off 1⅛ at 33¾ and U.S. Steel off 1⅞ at 49⅜.

Corporate bonds continued to improve this week, their sixth consecutive week on the upside. U.S. government bonds edged modestly higher in very light dealings.

BUSINESS WEEK

Fog Of Gloom Moving Around

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—The fog of gloom shrouding the nation's business lifted at a couple of spots this week and thickened in several others.

The Christmas shopping season roared to a climax in a blaze of artificial light. Shoppers, no longer hesitant, fought their way into jam-packed department stores and suburban shopping centers. Consumption of electricity smashed all prior records as merchants from Fifth Avenue to Main Street turned on the Christmas lights.

Stores in New York City were fast regaining the ground lost during a crippling subway strike. In Chicago Hughston M. McBain, chairman of Marshall Field & Co., said December sales at the big store should set a new high and "our entire November-December business may well exceed last year's figures." Montgomery Ward & Co. announced a new weekly record in mail order sales.

Away from the bright lights of Main Street, Christmas cheer was tinged with pessimism.

Layoffs were in prospect for thousands of workers producing cement, automobiles, typewriters, television sets and textiles.

Chrysler Corp., announcing a drastically curtailed production schedule, ordered a two-week holiday shutdown of its DeSoto and Dodge divisions in the Detroit area and a one-week closing of its Plymouth and Chrysler division plants. The announced reason: to bring production into better balance with dealer inventories.

Ford reported new layoffs at Mahwah, N.J. Chevrolet, still producing under forced draft, edged past Ford in the 1957 production derby after setting a new weekly high of nearly 45,000 cars, but Ford still led in sales.

Despite higher production by Chevrolet and Rambler, total passenger car output this week was down nearly 10 per cent from a year ago. Production for the year passed the six million mark, but Detroit sources said there was little hope it would reach the announced 1957 goal of 6,200,000.

Steel output — estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute at 1,739,000 tons — was the lowest in three years for a strike-free week. Steel scrap prices moved up for the first time in months, but this was due to foreign demand rather than any increase in domestic operations.

The oil industry scaled down its demand forecasts. Texas made a further cut in the state's "allowable" oil production for January.

The railroads reported at 15.9 per cent drop in freight carloadings from a year ago and asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a new round of freight rate increases averaging three per cent. This would be on top of the 15 per cent boost granted by the ICC last August.

After a dismal performance, stocks rallied briskly late in the week on expectations that federal reserve officials would make new moves to ease credit. When nothing happened, the stock market bogged down again.

The government's index of consumer prices, which leveled off in October, moved higher again last month. Practically all the increase, however, was due to higher price tags on newly introduced 1958 cars. Compared to October, the November index was up four-tenths of one per cent. This means that approximately one million workers in the steel, aluminum, meat packing and other industries will get wage hikes on Jan. 1 ranging from one to five cents an hour. Under union contracts their wage scales are geared to the cost-of-living index.

Food prices were down three-tenths of one per cent last month. In January food costs are expected to move up a bit, but prices of autos, appliances and clothing should be lower. Used car prices are trending lower now.

What's the outlook for 1958? There were several forecasts this week, ranging from the depths of despair to cautious optimism, and you could take your pick. Here's one by Secrtary of Labor Mitchell: there will be a "cyclical economic adjustment" next year with more unemployment, more strikes but no serious recession, and business should turn up around the middle of the year.

Even more optimistic was George Cline Smith, vice president of F. W. Dodge Corp. The chief reason business is declining, he said, is that Russia's Sputnik and President Eisenhower's stroke "scared the pants off us." He said a pickup in construction will bolster the economy next year.

Cotton Price Mixed

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—Cotton futures prices followed a zigzag course this week and closed mixed. Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished at prices ranging from $1.50 a bale lower to 15 cents higher than a week ago.

Much of the softness in the first four trading days was attributed to hedge selling against purchases of government-held cotton from the Commodity Credit Croporation for unrestricted use.

Some selling also stemmed from renewed pressure in Washington for lower support levels and increased acreage. Both these eventualities seemed doomed, however, after Rep. Cooley (D-NC) reported there is "no prospect" of any substantial change in farm legislation during the next session of Congress.

Following Cooley's statement, futures firmed on increased price fixing and short covering.

Traders were keenly interested in a Census Bureau report Friday that ginnings in the first 12 days of December totaled 1,166,000 bales, a new high for that period. For the season through Dec. 12, 9,201,000 bales have been ginned.

The large amount ginned in December changed the ideas of some traders who previously felt the current crop would fall below the government's latest estimate of 10,900,000 bales.

Also attracting attention was a government report that U.S. mills had used 656,000 bales of the staple in the four weeks from Nov. 3 to Nov. 30. This compared with an earlier estimate of 650,000 by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau.

Domestic consumption of cotton in November averaged 32,800 bales a day, indicating a steady rate of use instead of the decline that normally takes place at this time.

Store Sales Down Third Week In Row

DALLAS, Dec. 21 (UP) — Department store sales in the 11th Federal Reserve District were down for the week ended Dec. 14 for the third straight week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas reported today.

Sales for the week ended Dec. 14 were off 4 per cent compared with a similar period last year. Fort Worth noted an 8 per cent decline, Houston and San Antonio each 6 per cent and Dallas and El Paso each 1 per cent.

However, sales for the year continued to hold up with a 2 per cent gain from Dec. 1, 1956 to Dec. 14, 1957 compared with the same period last year.

Stock Markets Slate Closing

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) —All American and foreign security and commodity markets close Wednesday for Christmas.

A number of U.S. commodity markets will get an early start on the holiday by suspending operations after half a day's work Tuesday, the day before Christmas.

Scheduled for early closing Tuesday (all Eastern Standard time):

New York — Produce (1 p.m.) cottonseed oil and soybean oil (1 p.m.), commodity (noon), cotton (12:30 p.m.), wool (noon), and coffee and sugar (noon) exchanges.

Chicago — Board of Trade (1 p.m.)

New Orleans — Cotton Exchange (12:30 p.m.).

32 Parishes Report 1957 Manufacturing Expansion

BATON ROUGE (Special) —Exactly half of Louisiana's 64 parishes, led by East Baton Rouge, shared in Louisiana's $239,259,513 industrial development in 1957.

Curt Siegelin, executive director of the Louisiana Department of Commerce and Industry, today released a parish-by-parish breakdown on the year's manufacturing expansion in which 32 parishes shared

Siegelin said the investment of more than $239 million represents 51 new plants which came to Louisiana during the year, and 89 additions to existing industries. Altogether, these industries created 5,010 new jobs.

East Baton Rouge Leads

East Baton Rouge took the industrial lead from Calcasieu parish which finished third in total investments. But, Iberville parish led all parishes in number of new jobs created and ranked second in investment by industries.

East Baton Rouge recorded $49,941,317 in investments on nine new plants and 23 additions, which created 477 new jobs. Iberville's 710 new jobs came with one new plant and one addition which represent total investments of $43,571,401.

Calcasieu parish, which finished first in 1956 expansion, fell to third spot this year with $36,141,285 invested by three new plants and four additions. The parish added 170 new manufacturing jobs during 1957

Fourth among the parishes is Plaquemines, where $31,838,585 was invested in two new plants, which created 668 new jobs, second only to Iberville in number of jobs created by industry in 1957.

St. Charles parish ranks fifth in manufacturing expansion for the year. A total of $24,240,100 was invested by a new plant and an addition and 384 new jobs were added. Ascension parish got three new plants employing 122 and investing $12,962,445 to place sixth among the parishes in industrial development.

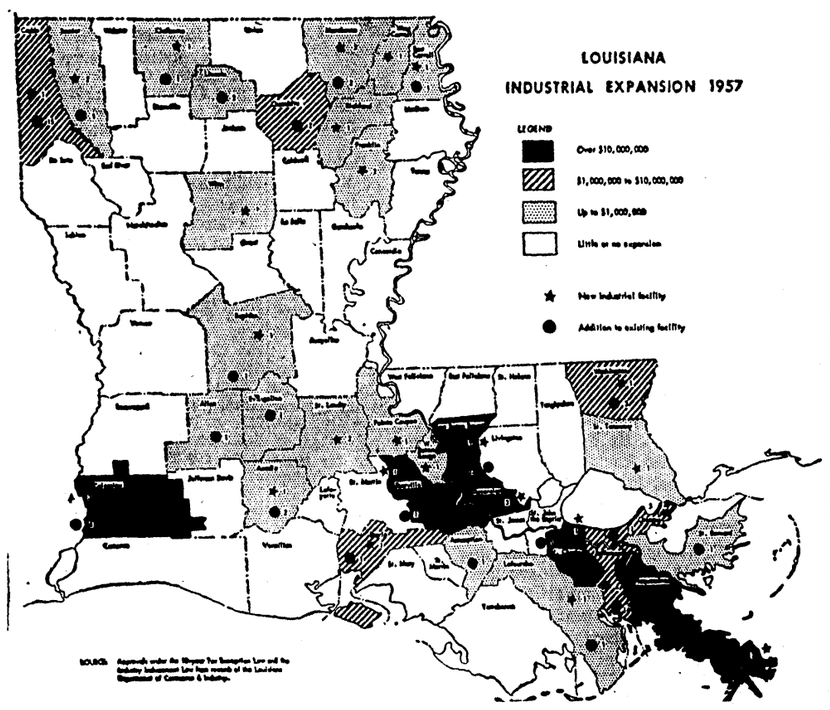
Other Parishes

Other parishes where manufacturing increases were noted, in order of investment totals and listings number of new plants, additions and jobs created, are as follows:

Caddo, $9,943,347, 1, 15, 323; Washington $8,377,764, 1, 3, 238; Jefferson, $5,921,432, 4, 14, 411; Orleans $4,714,955, 5, 11, 478; Ouachita $3,622,000, 0, 2, 240; Iberia, $2,220,219, 1, 1, 80; Morehouse, $930,110, 2, 2, 33; Bossier, $397,582, 2, 1, 90.

East Carroll, $606,951, 1, 1, 115; Pointe Coupee, $534,376, 1, 0, 7; Lincoln $429,522, 0, 2, 12; Acadia $384,730, 1, 2, 22; Winn, $358,200 1, 0, 50; Lafourche, $259,189, 1, 1, 15; Claiborne $220,553, 1, 1, 58; Franklin, $194,188, 2, 0, 24; Evangeline, $174,500, 0, 1, 20.

Rapides $162,900 1, 1, 10; Allen, $151,185, 0, 1, 29; West Carroll, $125,000, 1, 0, 50; St Tammany $124,810 1, 0, 25; St. Landry $100,697, 2, 0, 18; West Baton Rouge $49,022, 1, 0, 10; Assumption $30,366, 0, 1, 1; Richland $17,639, 1, 0, 110; St. Bernard, $14,143, 0, 1, 10.



MAP OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT—Louisiana registered more than $239 million in new and expanding industry during the year 1957. The above map compiled by the Department of Commerce and Industry indicates the parishes which led in this expansion and number of new industrial facilities and additions to existing plants in each parish which showed industrial gains. Thirty-two of the 64 parishes shared in the year's industrial development.

NEW LA. INDUSTRY

Chemical And Oil Firms Set Pace

BATON ROUGE, Dec. 21 (AP)—Chemical and petroleum products plants accounted for more than half Louisiana's $239,259,513 in new industry for 1957, the State Department of Commerce and Industry reported yesterday.

Executive director Curt Siegelin said $174,722,615 was invested and 1,938 of the total 5,010 new jobs created by Louisiana's 1957 industrial expansion were in the chemical and petroleum products field.

Next highest total came in metals and metal products plants, with $34,822,775 invested to create 1,381 new jobs.

Siegelin said the surge of chemical expansion is taking place primarily along the Mississippi River between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, where several more new plants are expected during 1958.

More than 30 million of the total in metals and metal products is accounted for by the first nickel-cobalt refinery, which will be built along the Mississippi River south of New Orleans by Cuban-American Nickel Co.

Combined with aluminum plants already operating or under construction in the area, Siegelin said Louisiana will develop a reputation as a producer of primary metals.

Siegelin said paper and paper products ranked third in new industry this year, with $13,902,023 invested to create 534 new jobs. He predicted this field would continue to expand.

Some $10,401,246 was invested in stone, clay and glass products during 1957 to create 200 new jobs.

Other major gains for 1957 were: Food and similar products, $2,637,213 and 354 new jobs; machinery and transportation equipment production, $1,159,958 and 279 new jobs; textile products, $930,495 and 207 new jobs.

Bear Surprises Trouble Grains

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture this week came up with several bearish surprises that resulted in large liquidation of grain futures on the Board of Trade.

Government forecasts which placed final production of 1957 wheat and corn at much larger totals than estimates of a month ago came as a complete surprise to the grain trade. Another surprise was the USDA's estimate of the 1958 winter wheat crop, which was around 150 million bushels larger than private estimates.

As a result wheat ended the week 2⅛ to 6¼ cents a bushel lower than Friday a week ago. Corn was down 1⅛ to 2⅞, oats declined ¼ to 1i, rye dipped ¼ TO ¾, and soybeans ended a hundred pounds higher.

BRIEFS BUSINESS

Bonuses

A total of $35,000 in Christmas bonuses will be distributed bp Gordon's Quality Jewelers this week to the firm's 600 employes. Gordon's employees in 45 stores throughout seven southern states will benefit according to their length of service. Gordon's in Monroe is located at 202 DeSiard St.

Appointment

William M. Selvidge, formerly District Land Man in the Carter Oil Company's Shreveport office, has been named division land man for the company's southern division operations. He will replace Rhea J. Smith, who is retiring Jan. 1. Lester A. Farmer has been appointed staff assistant to Selvidge.

Champions

Two Newellton men who were among 100 of the nation's outstanding conservation-minded farmers and ranchers have just returned home after colleeting their reward for being named national soil conservation champions.

The local winners were Versie Segers, Jr., and Jack Mabray, selected on the basis of achievement in soil conservation work. They were among the winners of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's tenth annual soil conservation awards program covering the fiscal year 1956-1957. The grand award was a week's vacation trip to the Wigwam, a luxurious guest resort on Goodyear Farms at Litchfield, Ariz.

ACTIVE MEMBER

Terzia Lumber & Hardware, Inc. has become an active member of the Home Improvement Council, according to Fensky Terzia, president.

One of the major purposes of the Council, according to Terzia, is to help local families vizualize ways they can make their homes more comfortable, more convenient, more attractive to live in and easier to maintain.

"In becoming a member of the council," Terzia said, "my company has pledged to be of helpful service to every homeowner, no matter what his home improvement need."

LSU Professor Gives His Views Of Business Recession

By DR. S. L. M'DONALD

(Editor's Note: The author is associate professor and head of the Louisiana State University department of finance, and has an enviable reputation in his field for careful, authoritative analysis. Several of his business forecasts have been published in the "Business Scope," published by Harvard University professors.)

There is no longer any question of whether we shall have a business recession. We are now experiencing one! Latest reports indicate that industrial production fell another two per cent from October to November and is now about six per cent below the peak reached a year ago this month. Layoffs are widely reported, and unemployment, while still less than five per cent of the labor force, has reached levels sufficient to cause some concern. Business plans for capital expenditure in 1958 are being revised downward. The Federal Reserve System has officially reversed its recent policy of anti-inflationary credit restraint and now seeks to encourage and facilitate borrowing and spending by business and consumers.

So the real question is, just how severe and lengthy will the present recession turn out to be?

A part of the answer lies in the character of the recent boom. It began in 1954 on a wave of home building and consumer buying, supported by personal tax reductions and a rapid expansion of credit on easy terms. Then, stimulated by growing demand, military stockpiling and tax law revisions, business expenditures on new plants and equipment took over as the main driving force in the boom. Capital expenditures reached record levels in 1956, leveled off, and in combination with rising government spending and unusually large exports, sustained the level of production into the spring of 1957.

Thereafter, signs of trouble began to accumulate. New orders for machine tools and structural steel—two important indicators of future spending for capital expansion—sagged well below shipments and kept on falling. In July, the stock market went into a sharp decline. After August, steel production dropped almost weekly, and excess capacity in other industries gradually developed. By November, when a decline in personal income and consumer spending was reported, the signs were pretty clear.

Boom Explained

What had happened? Basically, the boom was a capital expansion boom. We added enormously to our productive capacity from 1955 through 1957, and at a rate which was in excess of the rate at which demand for output was growing. This past year, the new capacity was progressively made available for use in production. In the process it became apparent that further industrial expansion for a time would be costly and unwise. So now we must wait a while for demand to "grow up" to our productive capacity before new capital expansion on a large scale—and our accustomed economic growth—can be resumed.

Credit Easier

That is part of the answer to our question. The recession must be long enough for demand to grow up to the point that businessmen are willing to risk expanding capacity again. The remainder of the answer starts with another question: What are the foreseeable sources of growing demand for output, especially when many people are losing their jobs and others are becoming more hesitant to make major purchases?

Dr. S. L. McDonald

First, we can be reassured to some extent by the so-called "built-in stabilizers," such as unemployment insurance, the high safety and liquidity of consumers' savings, and the heavy reliance of the federal government upon income taxes. The last means that when business activity declines, the government's tax take from us is reduced more than proportionately, even though nominal rates remain the same.

This is particularly significant for business tax liabilites, although personal income taxes, based on a progressive rate structure, are also subject to disproportionate reductions in a business recession. The presence of these "built-in stabilizers" enables us to be reasonably confident that, as in 1948-49 and 1953-54, the recession will not at once begin to feed upon itself in a vicious spiral of lower incomes, lower spending and lower incomes.

Sputnik Top Toy For Reds' Pagan Holiday

By DONALD R. SHANOR

MUNICH, Germany (UP) — Twenty-five thousand little Sputniks will circle under Christmas trees in Communist East Germany this year.

East German factories have been just as busy turning out Nativity scenes and wooden figures of Santa Claus. But they are for export to the West only.

Throughout the Communist world, the propaganda machines are working hard to obscure the Christian origin of the holiday and turn it into a day of pagan praise to Communism. Christmas toys are an important part of this campaign.

The earth satellite, current trump card in Communist propaganda, is being produced by East German toy factories on a rush basis.

More Sputniks doubtless would be on the market in the other Soviet bloc nations but for bureaucratic production tangles in the state toy shops.

Strict Controls Enforced

In Czechoslovakia, toy production is subject to strict government controls and is planned a year in advance. The October launching of the Sputnik apparently caught the planners by surprise and there was no time to shift gears and have Sputniks ready for Christmas.

Polish children will also be Sputnik-less. The traditional teddy bears and dolls are the most popular toys there. Mechanical toys are also much in demand but are hard to get.

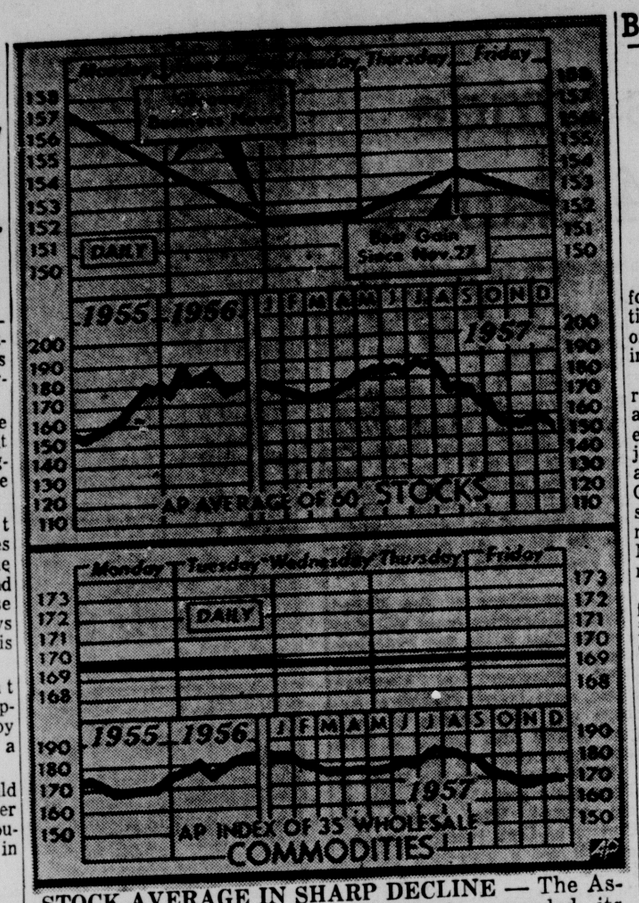
Communist Yugoslavia, well-armed neighbor of the Soviet bloc, reflects its defense-mindedness in its selection of toys. There are toy rifles, tanks, armored cars, fighter planes, and drums. There are more toys than ever in Belgrade shop windows this season, and more will be sold. The government has promised an extra month's salary as a Christmas bonus to all state employes.

Militaristic Ban Over

East Germany also has its share of lead soldiers and their weapons, after banning "militaristic" toys for more than a decade after world War II.

Hungarian and Romanian toys are simple carvings that carefully avoid the Christmas theme.

East Germany, Romania and Bulgaria place great emphasis on children's books as Christmas presents, but the fairy tales must follow the party line. The sleeping beauty in the East German version, for example, is rescued by a handsome young party activist rather than a prince.



STOCK AVERAGE IN SHARP DECLINE — The Associated Press average of 60 stocks recorded its sharpest weekly loss since mid-October when it closed at 152.7 from 157.3 a week earlier. The average also declined for the third successive week. The commodity index, led by food, moved lower this week to 169.6 from 169.9 in preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

BUSINESS WEEK

Fog Of Gloom Moving Around

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—The fog of gloom shrouding the nation's business lifted at a couple of spots this week and thickened in several others.

The Christmas shopping season roared to a climax in a blaze of artificial light. Shoppers, no longer hesitant, fought their way into jam-packed department stores and suburban shopping centers. Consumption of electricity smashed all prior records as merchants from Fifth Avenue to Main Street turned on the Christmas lights.

Stores in New York City were fast regaining the ground lost during a crippling subway strike. In Chicago Hughston M. McBain, chairman of Marshall Field & Co., said December sales at the big store should set a new high and "our entire November-December business may well exceed last year's figures." Montgomery Ward & Co. announced a new weekly record in mail order sales.

Away from the bright lights of Main Street, Christmas cheer was tinged with pessimism.

Layoffs were in prospect for thousands of workers producing cement, automobiles, typewriters, television sets and textiles.

Chrysler Corp., announcing a drastically curtailed production schedule, ordered a two-week holiday shutdown of its DeSoto and Dodge divisions in the Detroit area and a one-week closing of its Plymouth and Chrysler division plants. The announced reason: to bring production into better balance with dealer inventories.

Ford reported new layoffs at Mahwah, N.J. Chevrolet, still producing under forced draft, edged past Ford in the 1957 production derby after setting a new weekly high of nearly 45,000 cars, but Ford still led in sales.

Despite higher production by Chevrolet and Rambler, total passenger car output this week was down nearly 10 per cent from a year ago. Production for the year passed the six million mark, but Detroit sources said there was little hope it would reach the announced 1957 goal of 6,200,000.

Steel output — estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute at 1,739,000 tons — was the lowest in three years for a strike-free week. Steel scrap prices moved up for the first time in months, but this was due to foreign demand rather than any increase in domestic operations.

The oil industry scaled down its demand forecasts. Texas made a further cut in the state's "allowable" oil production for January.

The railroads reported at 15.9 per cent drop in freight carloadings from a year ago and asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a new round of freight rate increases averaging three per cent. This would be on top of the 15 per cent boost granted by the ICC last August.

After a dismal performance, stocks rallied briskly late in the week on expectations that federal reserve officials would make new moves to ease credit. When nothing happened, the stock market bogged down again.

The government's index of consumer prices, which leveled off in October, moved higher again last month. Practically all the increase, however, was due to higher price tags on newly introduced 1958 cars. Compared to October, the November index was up four-tenths of one per cent. This means that approximately one million workers in the steel, aluminum, meat packing and other industries will get wage hikes on Jan. 1 ranging from one to five cents an hour. Under union contracts their wage scales are geared to the cost-of-living index.

Food prices were down three-tenths of one per cent last month. In January food costs are expected to move up a bit, but prices of autos, appliances and clothing should be lower. Used car prices are trending lower now.

What's the outlook for 1958? There were several forecasts this week, ranging from the depths of despair to cautious optimism, and you could take your pick. Here's one by Secrtary of Labor Mitchell: there will be a "cyclical economic adjustment" next year with more unemployment, more strikes but no serious recession, and business should turn up around the middle of the year.

Even more optimistic was George Cline Smith, vice president of F. W. Dodge Corp. The chief reason business is declining, he said, is that Russia's Sputnik and President Eisenhower's stroke "scared the pants off us." He said a pickup in construction will bolster the economy next year.

WALL STREET VISIT

Santa Returning, But Pack Lighter

NEW YORK (AP)—Santa Claus is coming back to Wall Street this year but his pack won't be as heavy.

Many firms will distribute the traditional Christmas bonus but a majority admit it will be smaller than last year. The Street has been havng its woes throughout 1957.

In fact, a trend toward getting away from the whole idea of the boss playing Kris Kringle is growing in the financial district.

Some of the biggest brokerage houses have set up other plans, not related to yuletide, for sharing the profit with employes.

The big one with the big name—Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane—stopped paying a Christmas bonus in 1955 when the firm's fiscal year was changed to end on Feb. 28. A bonus is paid in the spring.

A recruit to this idea this year in Bache & Co., another big house. Their fiscal year has been changed to end on Jan. 31 and a distribution will be made after that date. Previously, Bache has paid a bonus at Christmas.

Harris, Upham & Co. has a profit-sharing plan under which employes get a percentage of the profits after the end of the fiscal year, which ends Aug. 31. Says a partner: "It's not how the boss feels the week before Christmas that determines the payment."

The really lush Christmas in Wall Street came in 1955. That was the year of the biggest volume on the stock exchange since the end of World War II. Some of the smaller houses reportedly paid out a year's salary to some fortunate employes.

Last year payments generally were cut back as volume sank to 556,284,172 shares from 609,602,291 shares in 1955. (The 1955 volume was the largest since 1933.)

There's never been any compilation on how much money goes out in bonuses but Street habitues are sure it runs into the millions. Some of the larger houses with branches around the country are believed to distribute a million or more themselves.

WALL STREET

Pre-Christmas Cheer Lacking

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) —Little pre-Christmas cheer was evident in Wall Street this week, as the stock market had its worst slump since the week ended Oct. 12.

That was the week Sputnik I shook the nation's confidence and there also was bad economic news.

This week it was mainly poor reports from business and industry and glum forecasts for the first half of 1958.

Quoted values of stocks were slashed $5,784,000,000, based on the drop in The Associated Press average, bringing the total value of the listed stocks down to something over 195 billions.

A number of leading steels, motors and rails touched new lows for the year. Among steelmakers, the descent was unanimous. The drop was accompanied by another decline in the industry's operating rate and a forecast of future reductions.

U.S. Steel broke 50 as it scraped bottom for '57, General Motors, the giant of its industry, also sank to a new low for the year. So did Chrysler, Ford and Studebaker.

The hapless rails demonsrated that their strong one-day rally of the previous week meant little as they continued to reach new lows for this year, and, in fact, for the past three years. Another drop in rail carloadings was reported.

The big economic indicators all pointed downward, repeating last week's story. The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production was down for the third straight month.

Friday's news that Chrysler planned to shut down its Detroit area assembly plants beginningng next week was a hard punch for an area assembly plants beginning next week was a hard punch for an uncertain market to take. The market fell, helped on its downward movement by a miscellany of other depressing reports.

The five most active issues this week were Bethlehem Steel off 2¼ at 34½, Standard Oil (New Jersey), off 1⅛ at 49, Chrylser off 6⅞ at 54½, General Motors, off 1⅛ at 33¾ and U.S. Steel off 1⅞ at 49⅜.

Corporate bonds continued to improve this week, their sixth consecutive week on the upside. U.S. government bonds edged modestly higher in very light dealings.

Cotton Price Mixed

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—Cotton futures prices followed a zigzag course this week and closed mixed. Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished at prices ranging from $1.50 a bale lower to 15 cents higher than a week ago.

Much of the softness in the first four trading days was attributed to hedge selling against purchases of government-held cotton from the Commodity Credit Croporation for unrestricted use.

Some selling also stemmed from renewed pressure in Washington for lower support levels and increased acreage. Both these eventualities seemed doomed, however, after Rep. Cooley (D-NC) reported there is "no prospect" of any substantial change in farm legislation during the next session of Congress.

Following Cooley's statement, futures firmed on increased price fixing and short covering.

Traders were keenly interested in a Census Bureau report Friday that ginnings in the first 12 days of December totaled 1,166,000 bales, a new high for that period. For the season through Dec. 12, 9,201,000 bales have been ginned.

The large amount ginned in December changed the ideas of some traders who previously felt the current crop would fall below the government's latest estimate of 10,900,000 bales.

Also attracting attention was a government report that U.S. mills had used 656,000 bales of the staple in the four weeks from Nov. 3 to Nov. 30. This compared with an earlier estimate of 650,000 by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau.

Domestic consumption of cotton in November averaged 32,800 bales a day, indicating a steady rate of use instead of the decline that normally takes place at this time.

Store Sales Down Third Week In Row

DALLAS, Dec. 21 (UP) — Department store sales in the 11th Federal Reserve District were down for the week ended Dec. 14 for the third straight week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas reported today.

Sales for the week ended Dec. 14 were off 4 per cent compared with a similar period last year. Fort Worth noted an 8 per cent decline, Houston and San Antonio each 6 per cent and Dallas and El Paso each 1 per cent.

However, sales for the year continued to hold up with a 2 per cent gain from Dec. 1, 1956 to Dec. 14, 1957 compared with the same period last year.

Stock Markets Slate Closing

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) —All American and foreign security and commodity markets close Wednesday for Christmas.

A number of U.S. commodity markets will get an early start on the holiday by suspending operations after half a day's work Tuesday, the day before Christmas.

Scheduled for early closing Tuesday (all Eastern Standard time):

New York — Produce (1 p.m.) cottonseed oil and soybean oil (1 p.m.), commodity (noon), cotton (12:30 p.m.), wool (noon), and coffee and sugar (noon) exchanges.

Chicago — Board of Trade (1 p.m.)

New Orleans — Cotton Exchange (12:30 p.m.).

32 Parishes Report 1957 Manufacturing Expansion

BATON ROUGE (Special) —Exactly half of Louisiana's 64 parishes, led by East Baton Rouge, shared in Louisiana's $239,259,513 industrial development in 1957.

Curt Siegelin, executive director of the Louisiana Department of Commerce and Industry, today released a parish-by-parish breakdown on the year's manufacturing expansion in which 32 parishes shared.

Siegelin said the investment of more than $239 million represents 51 new plants which came to Louisiana during the year, and 89 additions to existing industries. Altogether, these industries created 5,010 new jobs.

East Baton Rouge Leads

East Baton Rouge took the industrial lead from Calcasieu parish which finished third in total investments. But, Iberville parish led all parishes in number of new jobs created and ranked second in investment by industries.

East Baton Rouge recorded $49,941,317 in investments on nine new plants and 23 additions, which created 477 new jobs. Iberville's 710 new jobs came with one new plant and one addition which represent total investments of $43,571,401.

Calcasieu parish, which finished first in 1956 expansion, fell to third spot this year with $36,141,285 invested by three new plants and four additions. The parish added 170 new manufacturing jobs during 1957

Fourth among the parishes is Plaquemines, where $31,838,585 was invested in two new plants, which created 668 new jobs, second only to Iberville in number of jobs created by industry in 1957.

St. Charles parish ranks fifth in manufacturing expansion for the year. A total of $24,240,100 was invested by a new plant and an addition and 384 new jobs were added. Ascension parish got three new plants employing 122 and investing $12,962,445 to place sixth among the parishes in industrial development.

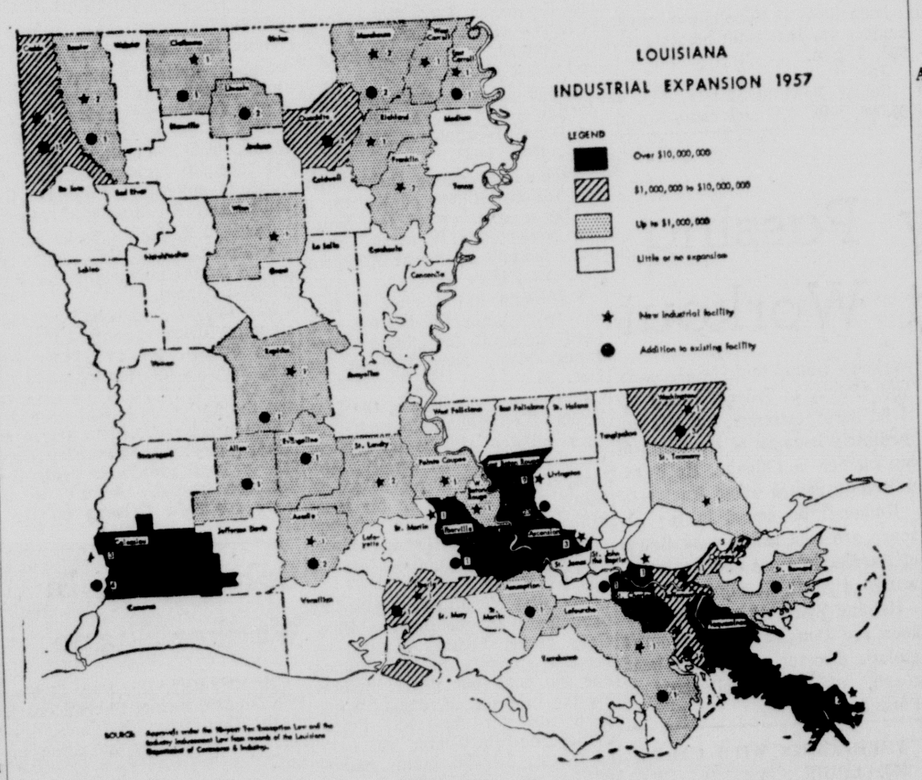
Other Parishes

Other parishes where manufacturing increases were noted, in order of investment totals and listings number of new plants, additions and jobs created, are as follows:

Caddo, $9,943,347, 1, 15, 323; Washington $8,377,764, 1, 3, 238; Jefferson, $5,921,432, 4, 14, 411; Orleans $4,714,955, 5, 11, 478; Ouachita $3,622,000, 0, 2, 240; Iberia, $2,220,219, 1, 1, 80; Morehouse, $930,110, 2, 2, 33; Bossier, $397,582, 2, 1, 90.

East Carroll, $606,951, 1, 1, 115; Pointe Coupee, $534,376, 1, 0, 7; Lincoln $429,522, 0, 2, 12; Acadia $384,730, 1, 2, 22; Winn, $358,200 1, 0, 50; Lafourche, $259,189, 1, 1, 15; Claiborne $220,553, 1, 1, 58; Franklin, $194,188, 2, 0, 24; Evangeline, $174,500, 0, 1, 20.

Rapides $162,900 1, 1, 10; Allen, $151,185, 0, 1, 29; West Carroll, $125,000, 1, 0, 50; St Tammany $124,810 1, 0, 25; St. Landry $100,697, 2, 0, 18; West Baton Rouge $49,022, 1, 0, 10; Assumption $30,366, 0, 1, 1; Richland $17,639, 1, 0, 110; St. Bernard, $14,143, 0, 1, 10.



MAP OF INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT—Louisiana registered more than $239 million in new and expanding industry during the year 1957. The above map compiled by the Department of Commerce and Industry indicates the parishes which led in this expansion and number of new industrial facilities and additions to existing plants in each parish which showed industrial gains. Thirty-two of the 64 parishes shared in the year's industrial development.

NEW LA. INDUSTRY

Chemical And Oil Firms Set Pace

BATON ROUGE, Dec. 21 (AP)—Chemical and petroleum products plants accounted for more than half Louisiana's $239,259,513 in new industry for 1957, the State Department of Commerce and Industry reported yesterday.

Executive director Curt Siegelin said $174,722,615 was invested and 1,938 of the total 5,010 new jobs created by Louisiana's 1957 industrial expansion were in the chemical and petroleum products field.

Next highest total came in metals and metal products plants, with $34,822,775 invested to create 1,381 new jobs.

Siegelin said the surge of chemical expansion is taking place primarily along the Mississippi River between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, where several more new plants are expected during 1958.

More than 30 million of the total in metals and metal products is accounted for by the first nickel-cobalt refinery, which will be built along the Mississippi River south of New Orleans by Cuban-American Nickel Co.

Combined with aluminum plants already operating or under construction in the area, Siegelin said Louisiana will develop a reputation as a producer of primary metals.

Siegelin said paper and paper products ranked third in new industry this year, with $13,902,023 invested to create 534 new jobs. He predicted this field would continue to expand.

Some $10,401,246 was invested in stone, clay and glass products during 1957 to create 200 new jobs.

Other major gains for 1957 were: Food and similar products, $2,637,213 and 354 new jobs; machinery and transportation equipment production, $1,159,958 and 279 new jobs; textile products, $930,495 and 207 new jobs.

Bear Surprises Trouble Grains

CHICAGO, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture this week came up with several bearish surprises that resulted in large liquidation of grain futures on the Board of Trade.

Government forecasts which placed final production of 1957 wheat and corn at much larger totals than estimates of a month ago came as a complete surprise to the grain trade. Another surprise was the USDA's estimate of the 1958 winter wheat crop, which was around 150 million bushels larger than private estimates.

As a result wheat ended the week 2⅛ to 6¼ cents a bushel lower than Friday a week ago. Corn was down 1⅛ to 2⅞, oats declined ¼ to 1i, rye dipped ¼ TO ¾, and soybeans ended a hundred pounds higher.

BRIEFS BUSINESS

Bonuses

A total of $35,000 in Christmas bonuses will be distributed bp Gordon's Quality Jewelers this week to the firm's 600 employes. Gordon's employees in 45 stores throughout seven southern states will benefit according to their length of service. Gordon's in Monroe is located at 202 DeSiard St.

Appointment

William M. Selvidge, formerly District Land Man in the Carter Oil Company's Shreveport office, has been named division land man for the company's southern division operations. He will replace Rhea J. Smith, who is retiring Jan. 1. Lester A. Farmer has been appointed staff assistant to Selvidge.

Champions

Two Newellton men who were among 100 of the nation's outstanding conservation-minded farmers and ranchers have just returned home after colleeting their reward for being named national soil conservation champions.

The local winners were Versie Segers, Jr., and Jack Mabray, selected on the basis of achievement in soil conservation work. They were among the winners of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's tenth annual soil conservation awards program covering the fiscal year 1956-1957. The grand award was a week's vacation trip to the Wigwam, a luxurious guest resort on Goodyear Farms at Litchfield, Ariz.

ACTIVE MEMBER

Terzia Lumber & Hardware, Inc. has become an active member of the Home Improvement Council, according to Fensky Terzia, president.

One of the major purposes of the Council, according to Terzia, is to help local families vizualize ways they can make their homes more comfortable, more convenient, more attractive to live in and easier to maintain.

"In becoming a member of the council," Terzia said, "my company has pledged to be of helpful service to every homeowner, no matter what his home improvement need."

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I would like to know if there is any purpose for our lives or is religion just a kind of stabilizer and world view? Is God real? J. F. K.

ANSWER: Certainly God is real and there is a purpose in life. Any inquisitive person wants to know the answer to the perplexing problems of the day and wants also some way to interpret the entire universe. Without God in our way of life there is no answer and life is a riddle. Many people today are asking whether there is any purpose in life. It is because of the very complex technological way of life in this atomic age that makes us wonder. Life is brief and uncertain. The apostle James said that it is like a vapor that appears and vanishes. Jesus said that a man's life is more than food and clothing. Life is our time for making responsible decisions that will positively affect our eternity. The most significant decision is that which we make with respect to our relationship to Jesus Christ. Once we are related to Him, by faith, life takes on meaning and we discover its purpose. That is why you must make the decision first. Then God will direct you into a full and complete world view with a knowledge of the purpose of life.

Calvary Church Plans Christmas

The Calvary Baptist church, Rev. Turner A. Davis, Jr., pastor, located at 812 Mississippi Street in Monroe, present their annual Christmas program Sunday night, December 22, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The program will consist of a play, "The Songs of Christmas," by Martha Bayly Shannon, which tells the stories of some of our favorite carols sung by the church choir. The dialogue includes four young ladies of the Intermediate Department; Carolyn Hart, Juanita Hedgepeth, Joy Oglesbee, and Diane Smith. Soloists for the choir are Mr. Art Kibble, trumpet, and Miss Dickie Parris, flute.

The production is under the direction of Jon A. Barker, minister of music.

St. Joseph Will Observe Xmas

Father Michael Hannon, pastor of St. Joseph's announces that there will be a Solemn Mid-night service on Christmas Eve, at 2500 Lee Ave.

Christmas Day services will be at 8:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. Confessions will be heard from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. December 24th. All the public is invited to our midnight service. Father Michael Hannon is pastor.

Trinity In West Monroe Has Cantata

The Church Choir of Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe will present "Love Transcending," a Christmas cantata by John W. Peterson tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

In writing "Love Transcending," the authors have accomplished two desired qualifications for a cantata. Musically, it is an inspired piece of writing; textually, the true meaning of Christmas has been dramatically, yet simply unfolded. Peterson has said about his cantata, "As you present the miracle in melody, my prayer is that many may be carried from the tinsel of materialism to the reality of the first Christmas. "For unto us a Saviour is born — Christ the Lord'."

There will be approximately 60 voices to participate in this musical program. Soloist are: Rodney Cannon, baritone; Sara Cannon, alto; Ronnie Sanford, tenor; and Sylvia Bowman, soprano. Mrs. Percy Nichols will narrate the program. The public is cordially invited.

Accompanists are Gloria Charles and Elaine Stone with Sonny Steed as director.

Churches To Hold Student Sunday Dec 29

Methodist churches in Arkansas and Louisiana will join thousands of churches across the country in observance of Student Recognition Day, Sunday, Dec. 29.

Attention will be focused on college and university students home for the holidays, and also upon high school seniors who are anticipating college.

In general, the importance of Christian higher education in the church's life will be emphasized, according to Rev. Jameson Jones, Nashville, Tenn., a staff member of the Methodist General Board of Education.

A printed service, suitable for use in the local church's morning worship hour, has been prepared for the 1957 Student Recognition Day. Theme of the service is "For All Our Years."

Student Recognition Day is a project of the Methodist Student Movement, which, administratively, is an arm of the Divison of Educational Institutions of the Methodist General Board of Education.

2 Workers At Canaveral Are Fired

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP)—Two government employes have been fired and four others penalized in a recent crackdown on security violations at the Air Force Missile Test Center, it was learned yesterday.

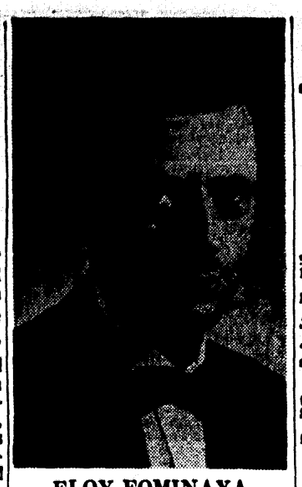
The action followed Thursday's order barring cameramen from photographing missile firings from vantage points on sand dunes near the southern tip of Cape Nanaveral.

At the same time, Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the Missile Test Center, warned in an advisory to all personnel that publicity given the unsuccessful attempt to fire a Vanguard satellite rocket did not mean that security barriers had been lifted on other missiles.

It was reported that two government employes were discharged, a contractor was suspended, a visiting contractor's security was revoked, and two other persons resigned.

Lt. Col. Sam Bruno, provost marshal at the center, said that the majority of the contractors, government employes and military personnel had observed security regulations.

"However, there is still evidence that an undisciplined and immature minority persist in an utter disregard for security regulations," Col. Bruno said.



ELOY FOMINAYA

Methodists To Present Famed 'Messiah'

The choir of the First Methodist Church will present "The Messiah", by Geo. F. Handel this evening at 7:30 p.m. under the direction of Eloy Fominaya, with Mrs. Dorothy Zeagler at the organ.

A string quartet will accompany the choir as they present this outstanding choral work. Those appearing in the quartet are: Miss Beverly Durdan and Miss Betty Bandy on violin, Stanley Burkett on viola and Howard Jackson on cello.

The soloists for tonights' program will be: Miss Fern Kirk, soprano, Mrs. Floy Boggan, Alto, E. M. Wooten, tenor, and Sonny Fisher, bass. Choir members singing tonight will be: Miss Anna Bell Dozier, Miss Barbara Elliott, Mrs. Lera Hennessy, Mrs. Kathleen Newcomer, Mrs. Cora Lee Phillips, Mrs. June Swayze, Mrs. Irvie Lee Temple, Mrs. Marie Wamsley, Mrs. Claire White, Miss Dell Moore, Bennie Andrews, F. H. Peterson, Jack Snapp, Don Spargo, Tommy Spurlock, George Temple, Tom Wafer, Wayne Wamsley, Everett Zeagler.

The public is cordially invited to come this evening to hear this message in song, proclaiming the wondrous birth of our Saviour.

Temple Baptists To Give 'Messiah'

The Temple Baptist Church Choir, under the direction of J.E. Mitcham, will present the second annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" tonight at 7:30 p.m. Roger Lawson is organist and Mrs. B. T. Hayes will assist him at the piano.

The contralto soloist will be Miss Maxine Milner, Louisiana Tech senior. Miss Iva Ann Causey and Mrs. Beth Dawkins Bassett will sing the soprano solos. The tenor soloist will be Alfred Tellinghuisen, Tech professor. R. W. Lawson will be the bass soloist.

An invitation is extended to everyone by the choir and Mr. Mitcham.

LENGTH—SEED LIFE VARIES

Length of life of flower seeds is highly variable, depending on the kind of flower. Some few kinds, like Morning Glory, will live for five or even as much as 10 years. Others, like Delphinium or Kochia, are able to germinate for only one season. The best way now known to be sure of good results in your garden is to obtain fresh seeds each spring.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Auburn and North Second Streets

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson - sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, December 22, 1957.

The Golden Text is: "He that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name" (Amos 4:13).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand." (Ps. 95:7.)

The lesson sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker-Eddy: "Everything in God's universe expresses Him" (page 331).

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. Gal. 6:9. Let us not grow weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we do not lose heart.
1. Gita: Prabhavananda-Isherwood. Whatever man gives in true devotion; Fruit or water, a leaf, a flower: I will accept it. That gift is love, his heart's dedication.
2. Gal. 5:14. The whole law is fulfilled in one word, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."
3. Acts 20:35. It is more blessed to give than to receive.
4. Luke 6:38. Give, and it will be given you; good measure, running over.

Bible Words for Today

2 CORINTHIANS 2:14, 15 — Thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumph, and through us spreads the fragrance of the knowledge of him everywhere. For we are the aroma of Christ to God...." (RSV)

* * *

Paul's letter reveals a depressed apostle attempting to guide a wobbly church to maturity. Word from Titus cheers him, however, and he burst forth in thanksgiving, as recorded above.

Overflowing with gratitude and assurance, Paul simply declares that Christians have a spiritual odor, a pleasant aroma. This fragrance is pleasing to God, much more so than our earthly odors of freshly-baked bread or rain-cleaned air are to us.

All who work lovingly in the church of Christ are fragrant spirits. We are the aroma of Christ, our surrendered lives revealing God, our radiance speaking of the ultimate victory of good, and our serenity preaching the gospel of peace. The surrendered life is not easy, but it is the crushed rose that gives off the finest perfume, and the broken alabaster box that permits Mary to anoint the feet of Jesus.

THE CHURCH CHOIR of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe will present its annual Christmas concert Sunday night. The choir, 70 voices strong, accompanied by Bob Oldenburg and Sandy Lawn and directed by Jack Day, Minister of music at the church, will present the cantata, "Sing, Oh Ye Heavens."

Trinity In West Monroe Has Cantata

The Church Choir of Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe will present "Love Transcending," a Christmas cantata by John W. Peterson tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

In writing "Love Transcending," the authors have accomplished two desired qualifications for a cantata. Musically, it is an inspired piece of writing; textually, the true meaning of Christmas has been dramatically, yet simply unfolded. Peterson has said about his cantata, "As you present the miracle in melody, my prayer is that many may be carried from the tinsel of materialism to the reality of the first Christmas. "For unto us a Saviour is born — Christ the Lord'."

There will be approximately 60 voices to participate in this musical program. Soloist are: Rodney Cannon, baritone; Sara Cannon, alto; Ronnie Sanford, tenor; and Sylvia Bowman, soprano. Mrs. Percy Nichols will narrate the program. The public is cordially invited.

Accompanists are Gloria Charles and Elaine Stone with Sonny Steed as director.

ELOY FOMINAYA

Methodists To Present Famed 'Messiah'

The choir of the First Methodist Church will present "The Messiah", by Geo. F. Handel this evening at 7:30 p.m. under the direction of Eloy Fominaya, with Mrs. Dorothy Zeagler at the organ.

A string quartet will accompany the choir as they present this outstanding choral work. Those appearing in the quartet are: Miss Beverly Durdan and Miss Betty Bandy on violin, Stanley Burkett on viola and Howard Jackson on cello.

The soloists for tonights' program will be: Miss Fern Kirk, soprano, Mrs. Floy Boggan, Alto, E. M. Wooten, tenor, and Sonny Fisher, bass. Choir members singing tonight will be: Miss Anna Bell Dozier, Miss Barbara Elliott, Mrs. Lera Hennessy, Mrs. Kathleen Newcomer, Mrs. Cora Lee Phillips, Mrs. June Swayze, Mrs. Irvie Lee Temple, Mrs. Marie Wamsley, Mrs. Claire White, Miss Dell Moore, Bennie Andrews, F. H. Peterson, Jack Snapp, Don Spargo, Tommy Spurlock, George Temple, Tom Wafer, Wayne Wamsley, Everett Zeagler.

The public is cordially invited to come this evening to hear this message in song, proclaiming the wondrous birth of our Saviour.

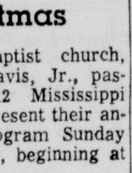
MY ANSWER by Billy Graham



QUESTION: I would like to know if there is any purpose for our lives or is religion just a kind of stabilizer and world view? Is God real? J. F. K.

ANSWER: Certainly God is real and there is a purpose in life. Any inquisitive person wants to know the answer to the perplexing problems of the day and wants also some way to interpret the entire universe. Without God in our way of life there is no answer and life is a riddle. Many people today are asking whether there is any purpose in life. It is because of the very complex technological way of life in this atomic age that makes us wonder. Life is brief and uncertain. The apostle James said that it is like a vapor that appears and vanishes. Jesus said that a man's life is more than food and clothing. Life is our time for making responsible decisions that will positively affect our eternity. The most significant decision is that which we make with respect to our relationship to Jesus Christ. Once we are related to Him, by faith, life takes on meaning and we discover its purpose. That is why you must make the decision first. Then God will direct you into a full and complete world view with a knowledge of the purpose of life.

Calvary Church Plans Christmas

The Calvary Baptist church, Rev. Turner A. Davis, Jr., pastor, located at 812 Mississippi Street in Monroe, present their annual Christmas program Sunday night, December 22, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The program will consist of a play, "The Songs of Christmas," by Martha Bayly Shannon, which tells the stories of some of our favorite carols sung by the church choir. The dialogue includes four young ladies of the Intermediate Department; Carolyn Hart, Juanita Hedgepeth, Joy Oglesbee, and Diane Smith. Soloists for the choir are Mr. Art Kibble, trumpet, and Miss Dickie Parris, flute.

The production is under the direction of Jon A. Barker, minister of music.

2 Workers At Canaveral Are Fired

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Dec. 21 (UP)—Two government employes have been fired and four others penalized in a recent crackdown on security violations at the Air Force Missile Text Center, it was learned yesterday.

The action followed Thursday's order barring cameramen from photographing missile firings from vantage points on sand dunes near the southern tip of Cape Nanaveral.

At the same time, Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the Missile Test Center, warned in an advisory to all personnel that publicity given the unsuccessful attempt to fire a Vanguard satellite rocket did not mean that security barriers had been lifted on other missiles.

It was reported that two government employes were discharged, a contractor was suspended, a visiting contractor's security was revoked, and two other persons resigned.

Lt. Col. Sam Bruno, provost marshal at the center, said that the majority of the contractors, government employes and military personnel had observed security regulations.

"However, there is still evidence that an undisciplined and immature minority persist in an utter disregard for security regulations," Col. Bruno said.

Churches To Hold Student Sunday Dec 29

Methodist churches in Arkansas and Louisiana will join thousands of churches across the country in observance of Student Recognition Day, Sunday, Dec. 29.

Attention will be focused on college and university students home for the holidays, and also upon high school seniors who are anticipating college.

In general, the importance of Christian higher education in the church's life will be emphasized, according to Rev. Jameson Jones, Nashville, Tenn., a staff member of the Methodist General Board of Education.

A printed service, suitable for use in the local church's morning worship hour, has been prepared for the 1957 Student Recognition Day. Theme of the service is "For All Our Years."

Student Recognition Day is a project of the Methodist Student Movement, which, administratively, is an arm of the Divison of Educational Institutions of the Methodist General Board of Education.

Temple Baptists To Give 'Messiah'

The Temple Baptist Church Choir, under the direction of J.E. Mitcham, will present the second annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" tonight at 7:30 p.m. Roger Lawson is organist and Mrs. B. T. Hayes will assist him at the piano.

The contralto soloist will be Miss Maxine Milner, Louisiana Tech senior. Miss Iva Ann Causey and Mrs. Beth Dawkins Bassett will sing the soprano solos. The tenor soloist will be Alfred Tellinghuisen, Tech professor. R. W. Lawson will be the bass soloist.

An invitation is extended to everyone by the choir and Mr. Mitcham.

LENGTH—SEED LIFE VARIES

Length of life of flower seeds is highly variable, depending on the kind of flower. Some few kinds, like Morning Glory, will live for five or even as much as 10 years. Others, like Delphinium or Kochia, are able to germinate for only one season. The best way now known to be sure of good results in your garden is to obtain fresh seeds each spring.

Today's YOUR GUIDING STAR Message:

0. Gal. 6:9. Let us not grow weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we do not lose heart.
1. Gita: Prabhavananda-Isherwood. Whatever man gives in true devotion; Fruit or water, a leaf, a flower: I will accept it. That gift is love, his heart's dedication.
2. Gal. 5:14. The whole law is fulfilled in one word, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."
3. Acts 20:35. It is more blessed to give than to receive.
4. Luke 6:38. Give, and it will be given you; good measure, running over.

Bible Words for Today

2 CORINTHIANS 2:14, 15 — Thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumph, and through us spreads the fragrance of the knowledge of him everywhere. For we are the aroma of Christ to God...." (RSV)

• • •

Paul's letter reveals a depressed apostle attempting to guide a wobbly church to maturity. Word from Titus cheers him, however, and he burst forth in thanksgiving, as recorded above.

Overflowing with gratitude and assurance, Paul simply declares that Christians have a spiritual odor, a pleasant aroma. This fragrance is pleasing to God, much more so than our earthly odors of freshly-baked bread or rain-cleaned air are to us.

All who work lovingly in the church of Christ are fragrant spirits. We are the aroma of Christ, our surrendered lives revealing God, our radiance speaking of the ultimate victory of good, and our serenity preaching the gospel of peace. The surrendered life is not easy, but it is the crushed rose that gives off the finest perfume, and the broken alabaster box that permits Mary to anoint the feet of Jesus.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Holiday Schedule For Library Is Announced

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

I would like to take this opportunity to wish to all of our patrons and friends a very merry Christmas and a happy new year from the board, the staff and the librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. The library will be closed on December 24, 25 and 26 and again on January first, so if you need any reading material, be sure to come tomorrow before 5 o'clock.

New books are added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library every week, always dealing with a great variety of subjects. Probably the outstanding book of this week is "Conway's Encyclopedia of Flower Arrangement," a book which will appeal to many people in Ouachita parish. Mr. J. Gregory Conway is considered one of the most outstanding authorities in the country on the subject of flower arrangement. He has produced other books on the subject, but this one is extremely lovely and is a very comprehensive book. The first chapters are concerned with design, color and the beauty of foliage. Then there is a section on period arrangements, arrangements for special rooms and occasions, fruit and vegetable arrangements, holiday and fete day arrangements, containers and dried plant material. There is a chapter on Japanese arrangements and the last section deals with trends in flower arrangement. This is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and would be a lovely book to own as well as read and study.

A very fine book which will appeal to musicians and those interested in church music is "The Gospel in Hymns" by Albert Edward Bailey. Although we have other books dealing with the subject, this is far more complete than any of the others and will be a most worthwhile addition to our collection. Another valuable book for musicians is "Musical Trends in the 20th Century" written by Norman Demuth. This is a very informative and well written book and certainly deserves a place in any library collection. A book which will be used to influence many other people is called "Seven Steps to Creative Children's Dramatics" and contains a great deal of worthwhile information in regard to staging and producing plays for children. It even gives the text of three plays, "Land of Jesters," Rumpelslilskin and "Around the World in Eighty Days" and gives a list of other plays recommended for use with children.

If you are interested in antiques, and it would surprise the general public to know how many people are, you will certainly want to read a fascinating new book called "Antique Dealer" written by R. P. Way. This is the story of a man and a business and his influence on taste in England and this country. A book which every American should read is called "The Constitution and What It Means Today" by Edward S. Corwin. Reading this book will make one a better American and a better citizen.

A book which will be in demand by many people was written by Elmer Wheeler and is called "How I Mastered My Fear of Public Speaking." This book can make your life over, not only as a public speaker, but as a simple conversationalist and as a person it is so valuable that we purchased one for each branch of the library.

The books which I am going to discuss next can be loosely classified as unusual and interesting. One is called "The Treasured One" and is the autobiography of Rudivoravan, princess of Siam. The author is the granddaughter of Mongkut, made famous in "The King and I" and "Anna and the King of Siam." This story tells many details of the life of a royal princess and how she gave it up to become an American. A very unusual book is called "Sand in My Eyes" and was written by Seignora Russell Laune at the age of eighty. In this book she recalls her experiences in the Oklahoma territory, to which she moved in 1896 and helped build the town of Woodward. This is a delightful story of the American way of life and will be of interest to all like to read about our frontier. "A Treasury of Snake Lore," edited by Brandt Aymar is an interesting collection of snakes in mythology, fable, stories, essays, poetry, drama and religion as well as many personal experiences, dealing with snakes. Many boys and men will eagerly read this book.

Books of fiction are not plentiful this week and we have only one new title to offer you. It is "My Neighbor's Wife" by Doris Miles Disney. She is an accomplished writer of the mystery story, so the book should be good. Your library is eager to serve you on any way that will make you a broader and happier person. If you are not now using its resources, we invite you to do so at the first opportunity.

EXCITING WORK

Novel Illumines Myth Of Texas

Reluctant Empire By George Fuermann. (Doubleday, $4).

In this exciting book, a twentieth - century Pepys illumines a modern Texas obscured by myth and make - believe, a state seen always from the other side of the looking glass. Here is a name-by-name focus on millionaires and martyrs, oil and oligarchy, excess and eccentricity.

"This is a book about Texas now," the author says in his Preface. "It could be titled "The Mind of Texas, 1946-65, for in it the last decade is tracked and the next one is guessed at . . . I have tried to show Texas . . . in terms of mentality, politics, and culture, of strengths and weaknesses . . . to separate facts from popular conceptions that are drugged with myth and error."

Here is a survey of new wealth's caprice, but also of its rarely mentioned good in the form of dazzling philanthropy. Here is a record of contradiction and extravaganza, of mountebanks and men on the side of the angels, of politics and segregation battles, of two of the world's most flamboyant cities — Houston and Dallas, and of a rising tide of liberalism in a state branded by conservatism. Controversial, vivid, candid, the book lights up the largest state's realities.

THE CRITIC'S CHOICE

Fiction Gets Nod For Desert Island Reading

Which would you rather read, fiction or nonfiction?

If you could have all the year's novels, or all the non-novels, and no compromise, how would you choose?

This mighty serious world, you may argue, leaves no time for fooling. Love, marriage, fidelity, happiness, boy meets girl, grief, tragedy, death the leveler — these are fine for let's-pretend, make-believe subjects, for vacation reading.

But in our work - a - day age, such matters may seem picayune compared to H-bomb and fall-out, satellites, Khrushchev, Nehru, Mao., Eisenhower, the French in Africa, the Israelis in the Middle East stewport, the Negroes in Little Rock.

Even so, on my way to a desert island, with my choice strictly limited to one kind of books or the other, I'd take fiction.

I'd take novels in part because they are informative and helpful about the major, everlasting things in life, the human things which even in our hair - trigger era outweigh all other considerations. Atoms may blow man up, chemists may dissolve him in some evil drug, but man is still infinitely the most important of them all.

I'd take fiction also because it sometimes tells me as much about the harsher, brutal facts, like politics, wars and power rivalries, as the so - called factual books. Finally, I'd take fiction in this 1957 because it has been good.

Reduce my choice to only one of the year's novels and I think I'd pick Bernard Malamud's "The Assistant," a deeply touching story of a Gentile boy, something of a bum, in love with a respectable Jewish girl.

This racial question enters largely into a fine novel by Myron S. Kaufmann, "Remember Me to God," and into "The Room on the Roof," by Ruskin Bond. Here besides first - rate writing are profound insights into the heart. They were not written in order to end Arab - Jewish strife, settle the troubles of Negroes, or even reflect the conflicts of have and have - not nations, but they are related, and in a real way Kaufmann's Boston matters more than Little Rock, Montgomery or Haifa. Settle the troubles in the Middle East or the South and you end only a local, superficial phase of race difficulties; settle the basic personal problems and the others vanish.

For our relations with people living beyond Iron Curtains, there are invaluable suggestions in "Letter from Peking," by Pearl S. Buck, and "The Hunters and the Hunted," by Ivan Bahriany. For a warning against the illimitable powers unleashed by science there is Nevil Shute's "On the Beach." For an appreciation of America now, there are such excellent probing novels as "By Love Possessed," by James Gould Cozzens; "Some Must Watch," by Edwin Daly; "The Seraglio," by James Merrill; "Love Among the Cannibals," by Wright Morris.

The value of the fiction should not be exaggerated or distorted. To know what Khrushchev says, you read the paper or the immediate history; on the other hand, to understand what influences and background and psychology underlie it, you may learn more from fiction.

Among fine factual books bearing directly on page - one crises there was an admirable selection this year: "The Turn of the Tide," by Alanbrooke and Bryant; "The Hungarian Revolution", edited by Melvin J. Lasky; "The Hidden Persuaders," Vance Packard; "The Heretic," Fitzroy Maclean; "The New Class," Milovan Djilas.

But there is another sense in which we must not misread the novel. Most novelists write not to grind a political axe but to tell a story about people they want us to meet. Insofar as people lie behind all our problems, cause them and can solve them, it might be asked what better way to peace in the world than to read such revealing novels as "The Weather of February," by Hollis Summers; "In the Time of Greenbloom," Gabriel Fielding; "A Death in the Family," James Agee.

Perhaps abstractly the clearest example of what fiction may do in a scrubby time of never wholly ascertainable or dependable facts, is in one of the merriest novels, "The Beggar in the Harem," by Leonid Solovyev. The beggar Nasreddin is the free unconfined soul in a world of courts, red tape, merchants, politicians and statesmen. He is the poet as against the news - worthy folks and facts. He is to his world what the fiction writer is to ours. The jacket incidentally points the moral when it describes this work of imagination in terms borrowed straight from a fundamental 20th Century dilemma:

"Tyranny is its villain; liberty its hero."

TV notes

"The Nutcracker," a story of Christmas enchantment, will be told in dance by the New York City ballet on "The Seven Lively Arts" today over CBS Television. In the story, a nutcracker, shaped like a soldier, comes to life and leads a little girl through a series of wondrous adventures.

"Auto Biography," the story of the development of the automobile in the United States, from the horseless carriage at the turn of the century to the gas turbine and electronically - controlled turbo-jet cars of the future, will be Chapter Nine of "The Twentieth Century" series on the CBS Television network today. The series is narrated by Walter Cronkite.

Howard K. Smith, one of the nine outstanding newsmen taking part in "Years of Crisis: 1957," the ninth annual summary of world conditions, will be wearing two hats for this year's presentation of the award-winning year-end appraisal. Edward R. Murrow is serving as moderator of the round-table discussion in the series.

"Where We Stand," a special 90-minute news report to the American people on the comparative strengths of the United States and the Soviet Union in the vital areas of science, weapons and defense, education and economics will be presented Sunday, January 5. The special program will represent the most extensive reporting assignment so far undertaken by the CBS Television network.

Cameron Mitchell, Joanne Dru, Pat O'Brien and John Barragrey have been signed for "Brotherhood of the Bell" the first of a new "Studio One in Hollywood" productions which will be seen over CBS Television Monday, January 6.

Paul Newman, the acting sensation of "Somebody Up There Likes Me" and Joanne Woodward, of "Three Faces of Eve" fame, will co-star in "Playhouse 90 production of the "Eighty - Yard Run" Thursday, Jan. 16. The teleplay was especially adapted by David Shaw from the original short story by Irwin Shaw.

Hume Cronyn, Rita Gam, Kurt Kasznar and Theodore Bikel have been signed to co-starring roles with Judith Anderson, Viveca Lindfors and special guest star, Eva Le Gallienne in Thornton Wilder's "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," the "Du Pont Show of the Month" Tuesday, Jan. 21. The hour and one half program will be produced by David Susskind of Talent Associates Ltd.

CANNON SALE COSTLY

CHATHAM, England (UP)—A local court has fined a sergeant and two corporals for selling their regiment's brightly burnished bronze ceremonial cannons weighing almost half a ton each. Police testified Sgt. Ernest Tucker and Corps. Ivor Davies and Raymond Redfern sold the Gordon Barracks cannons to a scrap dealer for $30. The court Wednesday fined Tucker $56 and the corporals $10 each. They said they were short of cash.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Linkletter, 20, son of TV emcee Art Linkletter, will be married tomorrow to Barbara May Hughes, 22, Beverly Hills high school teacher.

The couple plans a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii. Young Linkletter is a University of Southern California student majoring in telecommunications.

BOOK BRIEFS

Maggie-Now, the new novel by Betty Smith, will be published by Harper & Brothers on Feb. 19th. The story of a girl's life in Brooklyn at the turn of the century, the main action of the new book takes place a generation before the time of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

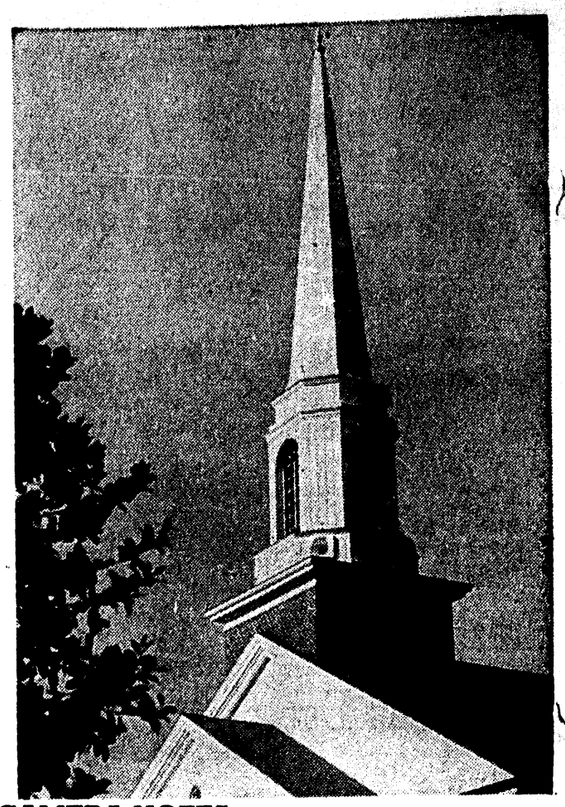
Also from Harper, comes word that Muriel Rukeyser has delivered to the publishing company a new collection of her poetry titled "Body of Waking." The collection will be published early in the fall of 1958.

Ritchie Calder journeyed 40,000 miles in the Canadian Arctic to see what science and an indomitable spirit are achieving against the world's worst climatic conditions. In "Men Against the Frozen North," which Macmillan has just published, he tells the story of his experience.

The assumptions that underlie the main tradition of modern English poetry are given a new contex by Frank Kermode in "Romantic Image," which Macmillan will publish January 21st.

Another good book Macmillan will publish Jan. 7th, is "Some Problems of the Atomic Age" by C. A. Coulson. Dr. Coulson discusses how we can reconcile the destructive uses of atomic power.

Ishbel Ross, author of a number of books and former New York Herald Tribune reporter, has finished her new book, "First Lady of the South." It will be published by Harper in early April.



CAMERA NOTES

Christmas Spirit In Warm Climate

The Christmas spirit in a warm country poses a problem for the southern cameraman who is trying to capture a natural setting of the season.

The white spire of the West Monroe Baptist Church with some contrasting dark foliage served as subject matter for a fine Christmas photograph by John Oldenburg.

The absence of snow need not daunt anyone who needs a symbol of Christmas for a card, letterhead, or part of a wall decoration. The church spire — itself suggesting the true meaning of the holiday — and the evidence of plenty of sunlight go together to give all the sparkle of an ice-covered fir tree.

Technical data: Speed Graphic camera with lens stopped down to f:32; shutter speed set at 1-100 sec. on Royal Pan film.

No filter was used, and, as is often the case, the small stop resulted in a moderately darkened sky.

Careful cropping resulted in the portion of the negative to be printed. Cars on the street, curbing, sidewalks and stark vertical lines of columns and corners were omitted.

We'll be seeing you next week. Night shots of outdoor scenes are "in season" for all camera fans throughout the Christmas season. Let's see some of them.

Summer Soldiers Timeless Story

THE SUMMER SOLDIERS. By David Mark (Doubleday, $3.95).

This is a timeless story though its events are in the days immediately following World War II.

The story might have been set elsewhere though its setting in Belgium's resort town of Darmemme enriches the novel.

The events might not have taken place if the town's earlier occupation by German troops had not shaken its innocence — and if it was not carnival time.

Wesley Parks might have been a good colonel if he had been as interested in his American troops on rest-assignment as in helping some black-market profiteering.

Sergeant Tate might have overlooked much, except he was an honest man with a wholesome sense of justice.

What makes the difference in it all is David Mark — for in The Summer Soldiers he has written a strong, humor-brightened novel about one man's fervent efforts to bring dignity back into the lives of civilians and troops who for years have known only the ruthlessness of war. And through it all runs the touching love story of Sergeant Tate and Mariette Blier, a gentle yet passionate widow-in-waiting, its tenderness contrasting with the serio-comic amours which are on all sides of these two memorable characters.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Holiday Schedule For Library Is Announced

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

I would like to take this opportunity to wish to all of our patrons and friends a very merry Christmas and a happy new year from the board, the staff and the librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. The library will be closed on December 24, 25 and 26 and again on January first, so if you need any reading material, be sure to come tomorrow before 5 o'clock.

New books are added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library every week, always dealing with a great variety of subjects. Probably the outstanding book of this week is "Conway's Encyclopedia of Flower Arrangement," a book which will appeal to many people in Ouachita parish. Mr. J. Gregory Conway is considered one of the most outstanding authorities in the country on the subject of flower arrangement. He has produced other books on the subject, but this one is extremely lovely and is a very comprehensive book. The first chapters are concerned with design, color and the beauty of foliage. Then there is a section on period arrangements, arrangements for special rooms and occasions, fruit and vegetable arrangements, holiday and fete day arrangements, containers and dried plant material. There is a chapter on Japanese arrangements and the last section deals with trends in flower arrangement. This is a beautiful book, profusely illustrated and would be a lovely book to own as well as read and study.

A very fine book which will appeal to musicians and those interested in church music is "The Gospel in Hymns" by Albert Edward Bailey. Although we have other books dealing with the subject, this is far more complete than any of the others and will be a most worthwhile addition to our collection. Another valuable book for musicians is "Musical Trends in the 20th Century' written by Norman Demuth. This is a very informative and well written book and certainly deserves a place in any library collection. A book which will be used to influence many other people is called "Seven Steps to Creative Children's Dramatics" and contains a great deal of worthwhile information in regard to staging and producing plays for children. It even gives the text of three plays, "Land of Jesters," Rumpelslilskin and "Around the World in Eighty Days" and gives a list of other plays recommended for use with children.

If you are interested in antiques, and it would surprise the general public to know how many people are, you will certainly want to read a fascinating new book called "Antique Dealer" written by R. P. Way. This is the story of a man and a business and his influence on taste in England and this country. A book which every American should read is called "The Constitution and What It Means Today" by Edward S. Corwin. Reading this book will make one a better American and a better citizen.

A book which will be in demand by many people was written by Elmer Wheeler and is called "How I Mastered My Fear of Public Speaking." This book can make your life over, not only as a public speaker, but as a simple conversationalist and as a person it is so valuable that we purchased one for each branch of the library.

The books which I am going to discuss next can be loosely classified as unusual and interesting. One is called "The Treasured One" and is the autobiography of Rudivoravan, princess of Siam. The author is the granddaughter of Mongkut, made famous in "The King and I" and "Anna and the King of Siam." This story tells many details of the life of a royal princess and how she gave it up to become an American. A very unusual book is called "Sand in My Eyes" and was written by Seignora Russell Laune at the age of eighty. In this book she recalls her experiences in the Oklahoma territory, to which she moved in 1896 and helped build the town of Woodward. This is a delightful story of the American way of life and will be of interest to all like to read about our frontier. "A Treasury of Snake Lore," edited by Brandt Aymar is an interesting collection of snakes in mythology, fable, stories, essays, poetry, drama and religion as well as many personal experiences, dealing with snakes. Many boys and men will eagerly read this book.

Books of fiction are not plentiful this week and we have only one new title to offer you. It is "My Neighbor's Wife" by Doris Miles Disney. She is an accomplished writer of the mystery story, so the book should be good. Your library is eager to serve you on any way that will make you a broader and happier person. If you are not now using its resources, we invite you to do so at the first opportunity.

EXCITING WORK

Novel Illumines Myth Of Texas

Reluctant Empire By George Fuermann (Doubleday, $4).

In this exciting book, a twentieth - century Pepys illumines a modern Texas obscured by myth and make - believe, a state seen always from the other side of the looking glass. Here is a name-by-name focus on millionaires and martyrs, oil and oligarchy, excess and eccentricity.

"This is a book about Texas now," the author says in his Preface. "It could be titled "The Mind of Texas, 1946-65, for in it the last decade is tracked and the next one is guessed at . . . I have tried to show Texas . . . in terms of mentality, politics, and culture, of strengths and weaknesses . . . to separate facts from popular conceptions that are drugged with myth and error."

Here is a survey of new wealth's caprice, but also of its rarely mentioned good in the form of dazzling philanthropy. Here is a record of contradiction and extravaganza, of mountebanks and men on the side of the angels, of politics and segregation battles, of two of the world's most flamboyant cities — Houston and Dallas, and of a rising tide of liberalism in a state branded by conservatism. Controversial, vivid, candid, the book lights up the largest state's realities.

THE CRITIC'S CHOICE

Fiction Gets Nod For Desert Island Reading

Which would you rather read, fiction or nonfiction?

If you could have all the year's novels, or all the non-novels, and no compromise, how would you choose?

This mighty serious world, you may argue, leaves no time for fooling. Love, marriage, fidelity, happiness, boy meets girl, grief, tragedy, death the leveler — these are fine for let's-pretend, make-believe subjects, for vacation reading.

But in our work - a - day age, such matters may seem picayune compared to H-bomb and fall-out, satellites, Khrushchev, Nehru, Mao., Eisenhower, the French in Africa, the Israelis in the Middle East stewport, the Negroes in Little Rock.

Even so, on my way to a desert island, with my choice strictly limited to one kind of books or the other, I'd take fiction.

I'd take novels in part because they are informative and helpful about the major, everlasting things in life, the human things which even in our hair - trigger era outweigh all other considerations. Atoms may blow man up, chemists may dissolve him in some evil drug, but man is still infinitely the most important of them all.

I'd take fiction also because it sometimes tells me as much about the harsher, brutal facts, like politics, wars and power rivalries, as the so - called factual books. Finally, I'd take fiction in this 1957 because it has been good.

Reduce my choice to only one of the year's novels and I think I'd pick Bernard Malamud's "The Assistant," a deeply touching story of a Gentile boy, something of a bum, in love with a respectable Jewish girl.

This racial question enters largely into a fine novel by Myron S. Kaufmann, "Remember Me to God," and into "The Room on the Roof," by Ruskin Bond. Here besides first - rate writing are profound insights into the heart. They were not written in order to end Arab - Jewish strife, settle the troubles of Negroes, or even reflect the conflicts of have and have - not nations, but they are related, and in a real way Kaufmann's Boston matters more than Little Rock, Montgomery or Haifa. Settle the troubles in the Middle East or the South and you end only a local, superficial phase of race difficulties; settle the basic personal problems and the others vanish.

For our relations with people living beyond Iron Curtains, there are invaluable suggestions in "Letter from Peking," by Pearl S. Buck, and "The Hunters and the Hunted," by Ivan Bahriany. For a warning against the illimitable powers unleashed by science there is Nevil Shute's "On the Beach." For an appreciation of America now, there are such excellent probing novels as "By Love Possessed," by James Gould Cozzens; "Some Must Watch," by Edwin Daly; "The Seraglio," by James Merrill; "Love Among the Cannibals," by Wright Morris.

The value of the fiction should not be exaggerated or distorted. To know what Khrushchev says, you read the paper or the immediate history; on the other hand, to understand what influences and background and psychology underlie it, you may learn more from fiction.

Among fine factual books bearing directly on page - one crises there was an admirable selection this year: "The Turn of the Tide," by Alanbrooke and Bryant; "The Hungarian Revolution", edited by Melvin J. Lasky; "The Hidden Persuaders," Vance Packard; "The Heretic," Fitzroy Maclean; "The New Class," Milovan Djilas.

But there is another sense in which we must not misread the novel. Most novelists write not to grind a political axe but to tell a story about people they want us to meet. Insofar as people lie behind all our problems, cause them and can solve them, it might be asked what better way to peace in the world than to read such revealing novels as "The Weather of February," by Hollis Summers; "In the Time of Greenbloom," Gabriel Fielding; "A Death in the Family," James Agee.

Perhaps abstractly the clearest example of what fiction may do in a scrubby time of never wholly ascertainable or dependable facts, is in one of the merriest novels, "The Beggar in the Harem," by Leonid Solovyev. The beggar Nasreddin is the free unconfined soul in a world of courts, red tape, merchants, politicians and statesmen. He is the poet as against the news - worthy folks and facts. He is to his world what the fiction writer is to ours. The jacket incidentally points the moral when it describes this work of imagination in terms borrowed straight from a fundamental 20th Century dilemma:

"Tyranny is its villain; liberty its hero."

CANNON SALE COSTLY

CHATHAM, England (UP)—A local court has fined a sergeant and two corporals for selling their regiment's brightly burnished bronze ceremonial cannons weighing almost half a ton each. Police testified Sgt. Ernest Tucker and Corps. Ivor Davies and Raymond Redfern sold the Gordon Barracks cannons to a scrap dealer for $30. The court Wednesday fined Tucker $56 and the corporals $10 each. They said they were short of cash.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Linkletter, 20, son of TV emcee Art Linkletter, will be married tomorrow to Barbara May Hughes, 22, Beverly Hills high school teacher.

The couple plans a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii. Young Linkletter is a University of Southern California student majoring in telecommunications.

BOOK BRIEFS

Maggie-Now, the new novel by Betty Smith, will be published by Harper & Brothers on Feb. 19th. The story of a girl's life in Brooklyn at the turn of the century, the main action of the new book takes place a generation before the time of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

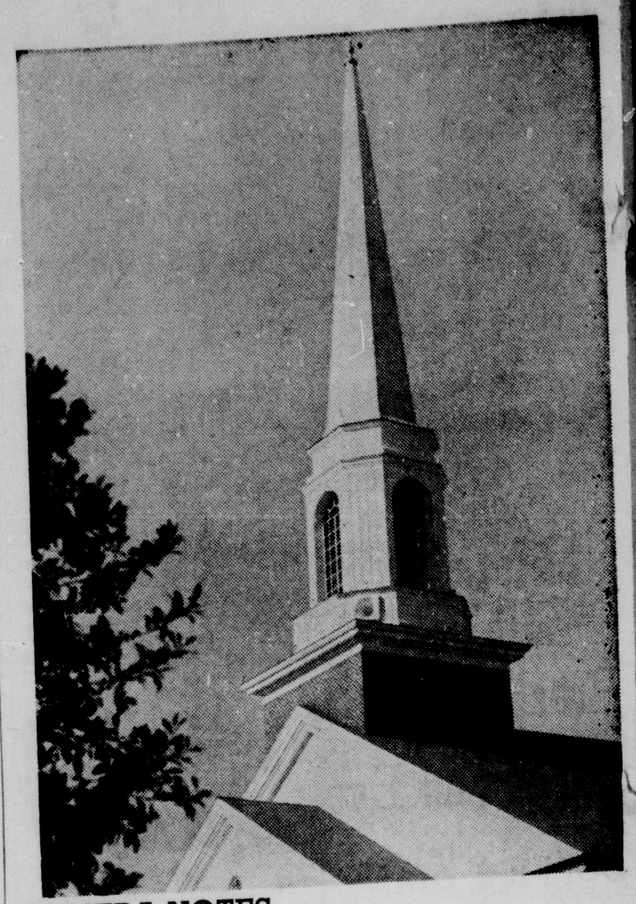
Also from Harper, comes word that Muriel Rukeyser has delivered to the publishing company a new collection of her poetry titled "Body of Waking." The collection will be published early in the fall of 1958.

Ritchie Calder journeyed 40,000 miles in the Canadian Arctic to see what science and an indomitable spirit are achieving against the world's worst climatic conditions. In "Men Against the Frozen North," which Macmillan has just published, he tells the story of his experience.

The assumptions that underlie the main tradition of modern English poetry are given a new contex by Frank Kermode in "Romantic Image," which Macmillan will publish January 21st.

Another good book Macmillan will publish Jan. 7th, is "Some Problems of the Atomic Age" by C. A. Coulson. Dr. Coulson discusses how we can reconcile the destructive uses of atomic power.

Ishbel Ross, author of a number of books and former New York Herald Tribune reporter, has finished her new book, "First Lady of the South." It will be published by Harper in early April.



CAMERA NOTES

Christmas Spirit In Warm Climate

The Christmas spirit in a warm country poses a problem for the southern cameraman who is trying to capture a natural setting of the season.

The white spire of the West Monroe Baptist Church with some contrasting dark foliage served as subject matter for a fine Christmas photograph by John Oldenburg.

The absence of snow need not daunt anyone who needs a symbol of Christmas for a card, letterhead, or part of a wall decoration. The church spire — itself suggesting the true meaning of the holiday — and the evidence of plenty of sunlight go together to give all the sparkle of an ice-covered fir tree.

Technical data: Speed Graphic camera with lens stopped down to f:32; shutter speed set at 1-100 sec. on Royal Pan film.

No filter was used, and, as is often the case, the small stop resulted in a moderately darkened sky.

Careful cropping resulted in the portion of the negative to be printed. Cars on the street, curbing, sidewalks and stark vertical lines of columns and corners were omitted.

We'll be seeing you next week. Night shots of outdoor scenes are "in season" for all camera fans throughout the Christmas season. Let's see some of them.

Summer Soldiers Timeless Story

THE SUMMER SOLDIERS. By David Mark (Doubleday, $3.95).

This is a timeless story though its events are in the days immediately following World War II.

The story might have been set elsewhere though its setting in Belgium's resort town of Darmemme enriches the novel.

The events might not have taken place if the town's earlier occupation by German troops had not shaken its innocence — and if it was not carnival time.

Wesley Parks might have been a good colonel if he had been as interested in his American troops on rest-assignment as in helping some black-market profiteering.

Sergeant Tate might have overlooked much, except he was an honest man with a wholesome sense of justice.

What makes the difference in it all is David Mark — for in The Summer Soldiers he has written a strong, humor-brightened novel about one man's fervent efforts to bring dignity back into the lives of civilians and troops who for years have known only the ruthlessness of war. And through it all runs the touching love story of Sergeant Tate and Mariette Blier, a gentle yet passionate widow-in-waiting, its tenderness contrasting with the serio-comic amours which are on all sides of these two memorable characters.

'The Deep Six' Story Of Deep Convictions

Alan Ladd as Lieutenant Alec Austen has the most exciting role of his career when he arrives at the Paramount Theatre next Sunday in Warner Bros. "The Deep Six."

The handsome actor, one of the all-time favorites of the screen world, portrays the part of a naval officer on combat duty in the Aleutian Islands during World War II. Although of Quaker upbringing, he is assigned as gunnery officer aboard a destroyer on a hazardous mission to rescue trapped American fliers on a Japanese-held island.

The conflict between the character's moral obligation and his duty and honor to country and ship make for some of the screen's most memorable moments. "The Deep Six" was adapted from a novel.

Ladd gathered some exceptionally talented performers around his Jaguar production, namely British stage star Dianne Foster as his beautiful fiance, William Bendix, Kennan Wynn, James Whitemore and Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., the son of the famed violinist.

The picture was produced in color and will have its first showing at the late show on Saturday night and starts its regular run next Sunday at the Paramount Theatre.

The Paramount has a great line up of feature films to follow this action picture around the first of the year. "Kiss Them for Me," with Cary Grant, Jayne Mansfield and in CinemaScope will be the first and will show as the New Year's picture. It will be followed by the most talked about book in year's "Peyton Place" in color and with an all-star cast. Soon to follow it will be Marlon Brando in "Sayonara."

'The Buccaneer' Brings Together 3 Great Stars

HOLLYWOOD —(UP) — Just to prove that no one really has much to worry about playing the same kind of roles, three actors who have been vividly identified, respectively, with the Cashta, Siam, and Egypt get together in a picture about American history.

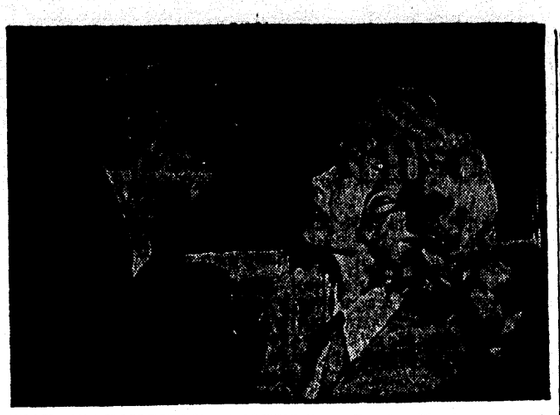
They are Charles Boyer, Yul Brynner and Charlton Heston, members of the cast of "The Buccaneer," a tale of the War of 1812.

Boyer is a high - ranking officer of Napoleon's era with something of the New Orleans of 1815 about him. Brynner is buccaneer Jean Lafitte, and Heston plays Gen. Andrew Jackson.

Boyer's Gallic air will continue to register with audiences — particularly female audiences — as he goes through his part as an officer who joins the privateers. He plays Dominique You, once an artillery officer for the French emperor and, in the film, Lafitte's lieutenant. The main history of the picture is the Battle of New Orleans which Lafitte helped Jackson win, thereby saving the American cause.

The picture includes among its historical items the Pirates' Market in a clearing in the Barataria cypress swamps. New Orleans people went to the market to buy the pirates' loot seized from ships. Prices were cut - rate.

One of the main actions by Dominique You is handing out medals to smooth lesser troubles such as personality clashes among pirates or people of New Orleans.



THE TARNISHED ANGELS — Rock Hudson and Dorothy Malone are shown in a scene from the highly touted picture "The Tarnished Angels" which opens Wednesday at the Jim Theater. Also starring in the picture is Robert Stack. The three stars are together for the first time since the movie "Written on the Wind." Costarring in the picture are Robert Middleton and Robert J. Wilke.

Late TV Films Get Parr's Competition

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (AP)—Those late and late late movies are finally receiving some competition from a gentleman named Jack Paar, who has lately been discovered by a host of midnight television viewers.

The discovery—if you can call it that—of Parr on Tonight (NBC-TV) is rather astonishing since he's been around for quite a time doing just about what he is doing now—talking and being amusing without displaying a doltish coltishness or coltish doltishness.

Yes, the heartland — meaning everything west of the Hudson and east of San Bernardino — seems to have clasped Paar to its broad bosom. Some ABC-TV and CBS-TV stations are even showing PAAR's NBC-TV show in cities where local NBC stations which are committed to late movies have granted permission—the first time such a thing has happened, so far as anybody can recall.

The reason for this late discovery, says Paar, is that he never stayed up until midnight before. Or, to put it more factually, nobody ever gave him the incentive to stay up so late until NBC assigned him to the time spot generally credited with bringing Steve Allen and Ernie Kovacs to wide attention.

"I'm not really doing anything different than I was a couple of years ago on the CBS-TV morning show," he says. "The credit goes to the newspaper people who are able to watch the show at midnight hours and never saw me in the daytime."

That's unduly modest of Paar, who worked afternoon as well as morning television and appeared in numerous guest nighttime spots before taking over Tonight. Numerous critics agree that Paar has a refreshingly aseptic wit, a ruthless candor, and—as a Cleveland boy—a genuine knowledge of what interests people beyond the shadow of Broadway.

He says, for example, "I think Josh Logan is a great great, but I don't think many people in—say—Iowa know or care who Logan is, and so I don't very often interview people like Logan on Tonight."

Tonight has been a more popular show since Paar purged it of some of the ideas he inherited when he took it over. It's no longer a gathering place for jazz aficionados or for people suffering from Broadway-itis. "We simply seek people who are as interesting as possible to as many people as possible," says Paar.

Telephone Hour To Present Its Annual Program

Mildred Miller, popular young American mezzo-soprano, and the Bell Telephone Chorus will join Donald Voorhees and the orchestra to present the 18th Christmas broadcast of the Telephone Hour Monday over the NBC radio network. The program will be heard locally at 8 p.m.

Miss Miller and the chorus will open the program with a medley of six favorite Christmas carols, including "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "O Come, Little Children," "A Child Is Born in Bethlehem," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," and "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

Second number on the program will be Miss Miller's singing of a group of two traditionally Christmas songs, Adolph Adam's "Cantique de Noel" and the old English carol, "The Friendly Beasts."

Donald Vorohees and the orchestra will play the overture to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," an opera which had its first performance on Dec. 23, 1893, and has been associated with the Christmas season ever since.

Final number on the program will be the presentation of "The Twelve Days of Christmas" by Miss Miller, the chorus, and the orchestra, one of the gayest carols of the Christmas season.

The Telephone Hour's Christmas wishes to its audience will be given at the end of the broadcast against a musical background of "Silent Night."

Engines Wheeze On New Record

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Mark Twain once described the mournful bellow of a steamboat whistle as the most hauntingly beautiful sound this side of the bird kingdom. The mighty magic of their blasts brought dreams of far away places and seemed to sing of something primitive and something very modern at same time.

The sound of the steamboat is heard no more in the land, but to millions of Americans born and brought up on both sides of the tracks the mournful, masculine sign of the locomotive steam engine brings the same memories of romance and adventure and far away places.

They too are gradually passing from the land with the advent of the raucous Diesel horn, but their magical spell has been preserved on records in "Railroad Sounds, an unusual album put out by Audiofidelity Records, a company specializing in hi fi sounds in the higher hearing cycles.

One side of the record — and by far the best side — is entirely devoted to capturing the grunts and grounds and deep-throated whistles of steam engines, starting up, taking off, lumbering up a hill, pounding over a trestle, calling for a grade crossing, fading away in the distance. As soloists in this wonderfully noisy album, the venerable steam giants of the Illinois Central Railroad turn in a magnificant performance and the road's New Orleans yard makes an excellent concert hall.

The other side, aimed at those who can compromise nostalgia with progress, attempts the same thing for Diesel engines and Diesel horns, but the old charm and call to adventure just isn't there.

Diesel horns were invented to get cows off the track, not to inspire dreamers.

Miss Hayes Serene Queen Of Theater

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—Helen Hayes, a serene theater queen awaiting her next entrance cue, sat backstage, chatting.

"I had a dream, a plan of life," she began . . . and the dressing room swiftly filled with a tumbling flood of images, hopes and memomies.

In a few minutes, Miss Hayes would be out before another overflow audience in her current Broadway triumph, "Time Remembered," a whimsical tale of romance and reality. But now, prodded by questions, she spoke of many things:

"I'm not quite sure even now why I read this play. I guess just because Producer Roger Stevens was smart enough to ask Bob Whitehead to ask me. Bob is a dear friend, and a producer too, though not of this play. I had passed up several other scripts—and they are big successes here now or on their way in.

"But I had gone home to Nyack because the roses were in bloom, and the script was there. I read it and I was sunk.

"It wasn't just the role, It was the play. It is a play of affirmation—but without ladling out a message.

"It leaves people somehow a little more satisfied with life. And that's what we all need a lot more of, don't we?

"It needs to be played, though, at such a delicious level. But to reach that level it's curious how things happen. . . .

"There's been magic all through my career. Things are always happening that give me the right steer on understanding a role. Oh, I've told some of them before, you know, but it is weird.

"Now for the duchess in this play," I tried a dozen different ways of reaching a fundamental approach. But I just wasn't satisfied. Then one night during the Boston tryout I was eating my dinner in my room alone, when into a television station came a half hour of Elizabethan music played on a virginal, a sort of early harpischord. It could only happen in Boston.

"I forgot everything listening. The music had a beauty, delicacy, pomposity—and at the same time was just a little bit ridiculous. After the first few tinkling notes I knew this was how to play the duchess. . . .

"I try to trick myself into having other things to do in order to cut down on the stage. It isn't fatigue, particularly, but a wish to explore life outside the theater and find if a person has one's own resources.

"I have a house in Cuernavaca, Mexico. I got it last year and hoped to be there this year. I still indulge in the daydream for next year. . . .

"Anita Loos is finishing 'Cockadoodle Daisy,' the play that Charlie — Miss Hayes' husband, Charles MacArthur — started before he died and some day I'll do it.

"TV and movies? I don't feel that I will do either again, but you never can tell. . . ."

SHOW BUSINESS BRIEFS: Burgess Meredith is to star in a spring Broadway production of Pirandello's rarely-seen "Enrico IV"...A new high in New Year's Eve show ticket prices is the $12 tab set for both "Jamaica," starring Lena Horne, and "Nude With Violin," starring Noel Coward. . .

Strong box office activity in Paris has delayed transfer to New York of "La Plume de ma Tante," a musical, from this spring until autumn...Claudette Colbert is to play opposite Charles Boyer in "The Marriage-Go-Round" on Paul Gregory's production schedule...Tyrone Guthrie, veteran director, made his first acting appearance in 26 years wh sudden illness kept a leading player out of a performance of "The Makropoulos Secret"...

This week's single arrival on Broadway is "Miss Isobel," starring Shirley Booth, at the Royale the night after Christmas.

Little Theater Curtain Call

By SANDRA JOHNSON

The second play of the season "Hatful of Rain" has been filed away in the minds of the cast, crew and audiences of The Little Theatre, but it will never be forgotten.

Work doesn't stop with the closing of a play . . . Plans are already being made for the third show of the season "The Boy Friend." The Little Theatre is mighty excited about this show and is really going all out to produce a tremendous hit.

"The Boy Friend" is a musical comedy in an English setting and takes place during the roaring 20's. Something that might interest you is that Julie Andrews scored a hit with this show before she started "My Fair Lady." The costumes, scenery, dances and singing of "The Boy Friend" will all revolve around the 20's. What could be more fun. The cast for the show will consist of about 12 people.

If you would like to take part and can sing or dance, or would just like to work back - stage, come out to the tryouts and let us know. An actual date for the tryouts hasn't been set as yet, but it will be some time right after the first of the year.

This will be the last curtain call until after the first of the year, so . . . A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to everyone!

See you in 1958!

Unique Program Offered Radio Opera Listeners

An operatic change of pace will be offered radio listeners during the first intermission of the Metropolitan Opera broadcast of Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville" (ABC, 2:00 p.m., est, Saturday, Dec. 21), when a panel of experts will discuss the composer's most important tragedies.

Participating in the between-acts analysis of the Rossini works will be composer - conductor Norman Dello Joio, Met soprano Laurel Hurley, and Arnold Gamson, musical director of the American Opera Society.

The feature, "Opera News on the Air," will be heard at approximately 2:44 p.m.

In the second intermission feature, "Texaco's Opera Quiz," four opera experts will match wits with quizmaster Jay Harrison. Answering questions sent in by listeners will be musicologist Sigmund Spaeth, Met basso Lorenzo Alvary, Met archivist Mary Ellis Peltz, and music critic Alfred Frankenstein, of the San Francisco Chronicle.

The quiz is scheduled for approximately 3:59 p.m.

He says, for example, "I think Josh Logan is a great great, but I don't think many people in—say—Iowa know or care who Logan is, and so I don't very often interview people like Logan on Tonight."

Tonight has been a more popular show since Paar purged it of some of the ideas he inherited when he took it over. It's no longer a gathering place for jazz aficionados or for people suffering from Broadway-itis. "We simply seek people who are as interesting as possible to as many people as possible," says Paar.

Telephone Hour To Present Its Annual Program

Mildred Miller, popular young American mezzo-soprano, and the Bell Telephone Chorus will join Donald Voorhees and the orchestra to present the 18th Christmas broadcast of the Telephone Hour Monday over the NBC radio network. The program will be heard locally at 8 p.m.

Miss Miller and the chorus will open the program with a medley of six favorite Christmas carols, including "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "O Come, Little Children," "A Child Is Born in Bethlehem," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," and "O Come, All Ye Faithful."

Second number on the program will be Miss Miller's singing of a group of two traditionally Christmas songs, Adolph Adam's "Cantique de Noel" and the old English carol, "The Friendly Beasts."

Donald Vorohees and the orchestra will play the overture to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," an opera which had its first performance on Dec. 23, 1893, and has been associated with the Christmas season ever since.

Final number on the program will be the presentation of "The Twelve Days of Christmas" by Miss Miller, the chorus, and the orchestra, one of the gayest carols of the Christmas season.

The Telephone Hour's Christmas wishes to its audience will be given at the end of the broadcast against a musical background of "Silent Night."

Engines Wheeze On New Record

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Mark Twain once described the mournful bellow of a steamboat whistle as the most hauntingly beautiful sound this side of the bird kingdom. The mighty magic of their blasts brought dreams of far away places and seemed to sing of something primitive and something very modern at same time.

The sound of the steamboat is heard no more in the land, but to millions of Americans born and brought up on both sides of the tracks the mournful, masculine sign of the locomotive steam engine brings the same memories of romance and adventure and far away places.

They too are gradually passing from the land with the advent of the raucous Diesel horn, but their magical spell has been preserved on records in "Railroad Sounds, an unusual album put out by Audiofidelity Records, a company specializing in hi fi sounds in the higher hearing cycles.

One side of the record — and by far the best side — is entirely devoted to capturing the grunts and grounds and deep-throated whistles of steam engines, starting up, taking off, lumbering up a hill, pounding over a trestle, calling for a grade crossing, fading away in the distance. As soloists in this wonderfully noisy album, the venerable steam giants of the Illinois Central Railroad turn in a magnificant performance and the road's New Orleans yard makes an excellent concert hall.

The other side, aimed at those who can compromise nostalgia with progress, attempts the same thing for Diesel engines and Diesel horns, but the old charm and call to adventure just isn't there.

Diesel horns were invented to get cows off the track, not to inspire dreamers.

Miss Hayes Serene Queen Of Theater

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP)—Helen Hayes, a serene theater queen awaiting her next entrance cue, sat backstage, chatting.

"I had a dream, a plan of life," she began ... and the dressing room swiftly filled with a tumbling flood of images, hopes and memomies.

In a few minutes, Miss Hayes would be out before another overflow audience in her current Broadway triumph, "Time Remembered," a whimsical tale of romance and reality. But now, prodded by questions, she spoke of many things:

"I'm not quite sure even now why I read this play. I guess just because Producer Roger Stevens was smart enough to ask Bob Whitehead to ask me. Bob is a dear friend, and a producer too, though not of this play. I had passed up several other scripts—and they are big successes here now or on their way in.

"But I had gone home to Nyack because the roses were in bloom, and the script was there. I read it and I was sunk.

"It wasn't just the role, It was the play. It is a play of affirmation—but without ladling out a message.

"It leaves people somehow a little more satisfied with life. And that's what we all need a lot more of, don't we?

"It needs to be played, though, at such a delicious level. But to reach that level it's curious how things happen. ...

"There's been magic all through my career. Things are always happening that give me the right steer on understanding a role. Oh, I've told some of them before, you know, but it is weird.

"Now for the duchess in this play, I tried a dozen different ways of reaching a fundamental approach. But I just wasn't satisfied. Then one night during the Boston tryout I was eating my dinner in my room alone, when into a television station came a half hour of Elizabethan music played on a virginal, a sort of early harpischord. It could only happen in Boston.

"I forgot everything listening. The music had a beauty, delicacy, pomposity—and at the same time was just a little bit ridiculous. After the first few tinkling notes I knew this was how to play the duchess. ...

"I try to trick myself into having other things to do in order to cut down on the stage. It isn't fatigue, particularly, but a wish to explore life outside the theater and find if a person has one's own resources.

"I have a house in Cuernavaca, Mexico. I got it last year and hoped to be there this year. I still indulge in the daydream for next year. ...

"Anita Loos is finishing 'Cockadoodle Daisy,' the play that Charlie — Miss Hayes' husband, Charles MacArthur — started before he died and some day I'll do it.

"TV and movies? I don't feel that I will do either again, but you never can tell. ..."

Little Theater Curtain Call

By SANDRA JOHNSON

The second play of the season "Hatful of Rain" has been filed away in the minds of the cast, crew and audiences of The Little Theatre, but it will never be forgotten.

Work doesn't stop with the closing of a play . . . Plans are already being made for the third show of the season "The Boy Friend." The Little Theatre is mighty excited about this show and is really going all out to produce a tremendous hit.

"The Boy Friend" is a musical comedy in an English setting and takes place during the roaring 20's. Something that might interest you is that Julie Andrews scored a hit with this show before she started "My Fair Lady." The costumes, scenery, dances and singing of "The Boy Friend" will all revolve around the 20's. What could be more fun. The cast for the show will consist of about 12 people.

If you would like to take part and can sing or dance, or would just like to work back - stage, come out to the tryouts and let us know. An actual date for the tryouts hasn't been set as yet, but it will be some time right after the first of the year.

This will be the last curtain call until after the first of the year, so . . . A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to everyone!

See you in 1958!

Unique Program Offered Radio Opera Listeners

An operatic change of pace will be offered radio listeners during the first intermission of the Metropolitan Opera broadcast of Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville" (ABC, 2:00 p.m., est, Saturday, Dec. 21), when a panel of experts will discuss the composer's most important tragedies.

Participating in the between-acts analysis of the Rossini works will be composer - conductor Norman Dello Joio, Met soprano Laurel Hurley, and Arnold Gamson, musical director of the American Opera Society.

The feature, "Opera News on the Air," will be heard at approximately 2:44 p.m.

In the second intermission feature, "Texaco's Opera Quiz," four opera experts will match wits with quizmaster Jay Harrison. Answering questions sent in by listeners will be musicologist Sigmund Spaeth, Met basso Lorenzo Alvary, Met archivist Mary Ellis Peltz, and music critic Alfred Frankenstein, of the San Francisco Chronicle.

The quiz is scheduled for approximately 3:59 p.m.

Should Business Observe Sabbath?

By LEE LINDER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21 (AP)—Should the business world be required to observe the Sabbath?

The issue is a current controversy in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Pressures against Sunday business are increasing all over the nation, with church groups leading the fight.

It's not a brand new issue. In Pennsylvania no - work-on-Sunday law has been on the statute books since 1794. New Jersey, too, has had a Sunday ban since colonial days.

Thirty-seven other states also have laws banning non-essential work on Sundays.

But a law is only as effectiv existent, except in scattered instances, for many years.

A new effort to force obedience of the law was launched in Allentown, Pa., early this month. It has mushroomed through the Keystone State and across state lines into New Jersey.

But the laws apparently lack teeth sharp enough to bring 100 per cent compliance. A convicted violator of the Pennsylvania law can be fined only $4, or imprisoned six days in default of the fine.

In New Jersey there is no penalty—hence little enforcement. To force some compliance, however, various local municipalities have passed Sunday closing ordinances. One now is under attack as unconstitutional in New Jersey's Supreme Court.

The current controversy blew up over a move by two big Allentown department stores to open on Sunday in December to compete with discount houses and markets that were siphoning off a portion of their christmas trade.

Church and citizens groups protested vehemently, bought newspaper space, circulated petitions, held meetings.

Lehigh County Dist. Atty. Paul McGinley promised to prosecute —and the department stores, feeling they made their point, remained closed on Sundays.

McGinley carried out his promise. He issued warrants for the arrest of 111 employers and employes of establishments operat- fines were meted out.

"Two Guys from Harrison," the largest firm cited in Lehigh County, said it would appeal to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court — and continued to do Sunday business. McGinley considered filing conspiracy charges against this Allentown area store.

Then Pennsylvania's attorney general, Thomas D. McBride, stepped in, said the State Justice Department would bring quo warran to proceedings against "Two Guys from Harrison." This means that management of the store must show why their corporate license should not be taken from it on grounds of deliberate violation of Pennsylvania law. Its legality has yet to be tested.

As the crackdown proceeded, other communities joined in.

The Vicksburg office of the U. S. engineers is considering the application of the Trunkline Gas Company, Houston, Texas for an extension to the life of their permit to complete the construction of their pipeline crossing of the Mississippi River near Lakeport Landing and 514.7 miles above Head of Passes.

Plans may be seen at the office of the U. S. Army Engineer District, Vicksburg, Post Office Building, Vicksburg, Mississippi or at the office of the applicant, 5650 Kirby Drive, Houston, Texas. All interested parties are invited to communicate with the District Engineer, Vicksburg, Mississippi, at the above address, expressing any objections to the proposed extension to time to complete the work or suggesting any changes that may be considered desirable, particularly as to navigation. It is requested that such communications be forwarded to reach the district office not later than 21 January 1958.

'Mouse' Proves To Be Gopher

EROS (Special) — Mrs. O. T. Lindsay kept seeing signs of what she thought was a mouse in a food cabinet at her home here.

Determined to eliminate the intruder, she set a mousetrap one day recently, and soon heard it snap. She had caught the marauder, but it wasn't a mouse. It was a gopher.

It was the first time anyone around Eros had ever heard of a gopher taking to the indoors.

Sicence Identifies Normal Human Drives

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—In drawing up a blueprint of the healthy, normal human being, Prof. Walter E. Barton of Boston University decided that all of us have the following "drives" in our makeups:

We have a "drive for action" —we want to "do things, to make things happen." And we have a "drive for superiority" which, if you look closely, can be seen also in hens and cows.

Also there is a "drive for acquisition" — "people desire to have something of their very own, just as there are collectors of territory and shining objects among birds."

And a "drive for exploration," which is "a natural curiosity within all of us." Also a "drive for integrity." It is the "need to be a person, set apart from all others."

Three more "drives" he classified as "subsidiary tendencies" we all have. The "drive for security" has no goal but is "based on the anticipation that situations may arise that would interfere with the satisfaction of other needs."

Drive Fulfills Expectations

The "drive for orientation" is the "need to know where we stand." Finally there is the "drive for integration," which helps us to fulfill ourselves. We have "a need to do one's share in life or to live up to one's expectation of one's self."

Barton put down on his blueprint, in addition to "drives," a series of "needs." One is a "need" to be "a part of something larger than one's self." Another is for recognition and approval. The wish to be appreciated and recognized by others—we have a desire to be loved."

Such "needs" as those for food, sex, avoidance of pain, and restful relief from fatigue he put down as "standard reactions" although he specified that they were "complex" ones. Finally there is the "need" which is vegetative. For instance, the "need for oxygen requires no conscious effort on the part of the person to satisfy."

In the "complex standard reactions" there is no pronounced variation from person to person. But among the "drives" there are all kinds of variations—some persons have more of one or more "drives" than others. The "drives" represent "needs" which grow out of the experiences of the individual, Barton said.

Blueprint for Mental Health

His blueprint has a very practical use. He drew it up for the guidance of mental health scientists in meeting the "needs" of mental hospital patients. The doctors who treat those patients are always talking about the importance of meeting their needs, but there has been no clear statement of what the basic human needs are.

Dr. Barton, who is associate professor of psychiatry at Boston, drew up his blueprint as a starter and it is being circulated in a technical journal of the American Psychiatric Association. Other scientists now will work on it point by point, and from the discussion what makes the healthy human being tick.

New Directory Of LSU Speakers Out

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Copies of a revised directory listing some 100 Louisiana State University faculty and staff members available for speaking engagements are being distributed throughout the state this week.

The Speakers' Bureau are sent to professional, business, civic, fraternal and other organizations interested in obtaining speakers. Listed in the directory are nearly 400 topics covering some 80 fields.

The bureau asks that requests for speakers be made at least two weeks in advance. Copies of the new directory or further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Public Relations, 117 David Boyd Hall.

SANTA: BEHIND THE BEARD, WHAT?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Paunchy, bearded, florid - faced Santa Claus, the benevolent bagman who makes a business out of dropping down people's chimneys on one night of every year, has remained one of history's most mysterious, elusive characters.

Thousands upon thousands of words have been written about him, but he has never submitted to an interview.

Artists, sculptors, cartoonists and window dressers by the hundreds have attempted to capture his likeness for posterity, but no recognizable photograph is known to exist of him.

Children by the million have witnessed his incredible sleight of hand feats on Christmas morning, but he has never been apprehended in the fact of breaking and entering to distribute the wares of his workshop.

The exact location of this workshop, a massive underground toy factory operating night and day on year-round basis somewhere in the frozen wastes of the arctic, has never been discovered, despite repeated polar expeditions by Peary, Amundsen, Ellsworth and Byrd.

Books Never Examined

Where does Santa recruit his help? Are they union or non-union? Who supplies the raw materials for his immense foundries and assembly lines? Has this top-of-the-world Christmas cartel long ago mastered the secrets of the atom? Or does it run on solar energy in a land where half the year there is no sun?

What right does he have to monopolize the minds and hearts of people for one whole day every year, depriving them of their long treasured hates and prejudices? Who gives him safe conduct down the chimneys of the world?

These are questions that never have been answered but will crop up again as he sets out on his nocturnal mission once more this Christmas Eve.

Travelling under aliases like Kris Kringle, Jolly Old Elf, Good St. Nick and just plain Santa, this shy, retiring virtually unknown undercover man has tested the patience and credulity of millions since time immemorial.

Does he really exist? Will he come again this year?

The known facts about this most wanted and most sought after character are slim and sketchy.

He has been described as being short (perhaps a midget), fat some liken his abdomen to a gelatinous substance), rosy cheeked; is given to fits of prolonged and immoderate laughter, drives his eight reindeer sled in a reckless fashion, and has been occasionally observed smoking a long Dutch pipe.

The latest reports are that he wears gaudy red trousers, jacket and mittens, trimmed in white fur, a black leather belt with gold buckle, and black patent leather boots. His most distinguishing characteristics are a long flowing white beard and a ruddy, bulbous nose. He is said to be about middle aged, and has been for several centuries.

He is known to be armed (with a bottomless bag of presents) and dangerous (in his insistence on spreading good cheer in every direction even where none is wanted).

An all points bulletin has been broadcast for his speedy apprehension, and this year steps are being taken to trace his movements as he crosses the radar network of the Distant Early Warning system in Canada.

Object: to wish him a Merry Christmas.

Persons having information as to his whereabouts are urged to hang their stockings by the mantle, try not to panic, get a good night's sleep and await further developments.

Three more "drives" he classified as "subsidiary tendencies" we all have. The "drive for security" has no goal but is "based on the anticipation that situations may arise that would interfere with the satisfaction of other needs."

Drive Fulfills Expectations

The "drive for orientation" is the "need to know where we stand." Finally there is the "drive for integration," which helps us to fulfill ourselves. We have "a need to do one's share in life or to live up to one's expectation of one's self."

Barton put down on his blueprint, in addition to "drives," a series of "needs." One is a "need" to be "a part of something larger than one's self." Another is for recognition and approval. The wish to be appreciated and recognized by others—we have a desire to be loved."

Such "needs" as those for food, sex, avoidance of pain, and restful relief from fatigue he put down as "standard reactions" although he specified that they were "complex" ones. Finally there is the "need" which is vegetative. For instance, the "need for oxygen requires no conscious effort on the part of the person to satisfy."

In the "complex standard reactions" there is no pronounced variation from person to person. But among the "drives" there are all kinds of variations—some persons have more of one or more "drives" than others. The "drives" represent "needs" which grow out of the experiences of the individual, Barton said.

Blueprint for Mental Health

His blueprint has a very practical use. He drew it up for the guidance of mental health scientists in meeting the "needs" of mental hospital patients. The doctors who treat those patients are always talking about the importance of meeting their needs, but there has been no clear statement of what the basic human needs are.

Dr. Barton, who is associate professor of psychiatry at Boston, drew up his blueprint as a starter and it is being circulated in a technical journal of the American Psychiatric Association. Other scientists now will work on it point by point, and from the discussion what makes the healthy human being tick.

New Directory Of LSU Speakers Out

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Copies of a revised directory listing some 100 Louisiana State University faculty and staff members available for speaking engagements are being distributed throughout the state this week.

The Speakers' Bureau are sent to professional, business, civic, fraternal and other organizations interested in obtaining speakers. Listed in the directory are nearly 400 topics covering some 80 fields.

The bureau asks that requests for speakers be made at least two weeks in advance. Copies of the new directory or further information may be obtained from the Bureau of Public Relations, 117 David Boyd Hall.

SANTA: BEHIND THE BEARD, WHAT?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Paunchy, bearded, florid - faced Santa Claus, the benevolent bagman who makes a business out of dropping down people's chimneys on one night of every year, has remained one of history's most mysterious, elusive characters.

Thousands upon thousands of words have been written about him, but he has never submitted to an interview.

Artists, sculptors, cartoonists and window dressers by the hundreds have attempted to capture his likeness for posterity, but no recognizable photograph is known to exist of him.

Children by the million have witnessed his incredible sleight of hand feats on Christmas morning, but he has never been apprehended in the fact of breaking and entering to distribute the wares of his workshop.

The exact location of this workshop, a massive underground toy factory operating night and day on year-round basis somewhere in the frozen wastes of the arctic, has never been discovered, despite repeated polar expeditions by Peary, Amundsen, Ellsworth and Byrd.

Books Never Examined

Where does Santa recruit his help? Are they union or non-union? Who supplies the raw materials for his immense foundries and assembly lines? Has this top-of-the-world Christmas cartel long ago mastered the secrets of the atom? Or does it run on solar energy in a land where half the year there is no sun?

What right does he have to monopolize the minds and hearts of people for one whole day every year, depriving them of their long treasured hates and prejudices? Who gives him safe conduct down the chimneys of the world?

These are questions that never have been answered but will crop up again as he sets out on his nocturnal mission once more this Christmas Eve.

Travelling under aliases like Kris Kringle, Jolly Old Elf, Good St. Nick and just plain Santa, this shy, retiring virtually unknown undercover man has tested the patience and credulity of millions since time immemorial.

Does he really exist? Will he come again this year?

The known facts about this most wanted and most sought after character are slim and sketchy.

He has been described as being short (perhaps a midget), fat some liken his abdomen to a gelatinous substance), rosy cheeked; is given to fits of prolonged and immoderate laughter, drives his eight reindeer sled in a reckless fashion, and has been occasionally observed smoking a long Dutch pipe.

The latest reports are that he wears gaudy red trousers, jacket and mittens, trimmed in white fur, a black leather belt with gold buckle, and black patent leather boots. His most distinguishing characteristics are a long flowing white beard and a ruddy, bulbous nose. He is said to be about middle aged, and has been for several centuries.

He is known to be armed (with a bottomless bag of presents) and dangerous (in his insistence on spreading good cheer in every direction even where none is wanted).

An all points bulletin has been broadcast for his speedy apprehension, and this year steps are being taken to trace his movements as he crosses the radar network of the Distant Early Warning system in Canada.

Object: to wish him a Merry Christmas.

Persons having information as to his whereabouts are urged to hang their stockings by the mantle, try not to panic, get a good night's sleep and await further developments.

Junior Charity League Have Christmas Luncheon

The Forge was the scene of the Christmas luncheon held by the Junior Charity League on Saturday. Members were seated at individual tables, which were centered with burning red candles surrounded by holly. At the head table ws a festive Christmas tree, covered with brightly colored balls and lights. The decoration committee consisted of Mrs. Benton Wakefield, Mrs. Herbert Land, Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Holmes.

The president, Mrs. M. S. Dixon, Jr., presided over the business meeting. Members volunteered to work on the March of Dimes campaign. Mrs. Doyle Hamilton reported on the Christmas dance, held on December 7. The dance was declared a big success, with much money being raised for the milk fund, one of the league's major projects.

The following Nominating Commitatee was elected: Mrs. H. D. Touchstone, chairman, Mrs. James Ewing, Mrs. Tim Allen, Mrs. Jack Neel, Mrs. A. C. Warner.

The following members were present: Mrs. M. S. Dixon, Jr., Mrs. John Allin, Mrs. Tommy Fortenberry, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. Miles Sager, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr., Mrs. T. A. HANDY CANDY CANES

NEW YORK (UP) — Feed the family and trim the Christmas tree with this new type of candy cane, made with puffed rice and peppermints. Heat 6 cups puffed rice in a shallow pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 10 minutes. Pour into greased bowl and add ½ cup crushed peppermint candy. Melt ½ lb. (about 32) fresh marshmallows and ¼ cup butter or margarine over low heat, strring until smooth. Use a double boiler or sauce pan. Pour the marshmallow mixture over the puffed rice and stir until evenly coated. With greased hands, shape into small canes about 4 inches high. When cool, decorate with stripes of red confectioners' sugar frosting.

Natchez, Miss. Wedding Of Interest Here

Of special interest today is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Gilbert Potter Bullis, of Natchez and Ferriday, to Livingston Polk Ferris, of Ashton Plantation, near Lecompte which was quietly solemnized last Sunday morning at Trinity Episcopal Church in Natchez.

The Rev. Louis O'Vander Thomas, rector, officiated in the presence of her immediate family, including her sons, James G. Harrison and Mrs. Harrison, and George W. Harrison.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ferris left for a tour on the Gulf Coast and other points South.

Mrs. Ferris, the former Miss Mary Anderson, is a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John L. Anderson. Her younger days were spent at Pine Bluff, Ark., and she has lived in Louisiana and Natchez, for a number of years where she has been prominently identified in church, civic and social affairs. Among her special interests is the Natchez Pilgrimage.

Mr. Ferris is the son of the late Mrs. Harry S. Burrowes, the former Miss Eloise Polk, whose lifetime home was on Ashton Plantation where Mr. Ferris spent his childhood. He returned in 1950 from Upper Montclair, N. J., after a professional career in electrical engineering and research in New York.

Since retiring he has traveled extensively and spent much time in restoring Ashton where he and Mrs. Ferris will reside after early January. She will retain her Natchez home, which the couple will visit frequently.

Mr. Ferris has a daughter, Mrs. Howard M. Mulder of North Hollywood, Calif., and a son, Livingston Polk Ferris II of Boulder, Colo.

College Heights Group Have Yule Luncheon

The College Heights Garden Club held its annual Christmas luncheon last Thursday at the Palowsky Lakeshore Restaurant. Officers of the club were hostesses for the party and were responsible for the table decorations.

Luncheon cloths were bright red and centered with branches and cones sprayed white. Water goblets and one oversize beeker were placed upside down, sprayed white with snow and a white candle placed atop with the candle surrounded by tiny Christmas balls of red. A glittering white sleigh made by Mrs. John Tolar and Mrs. E. M. Baber held the gifts brought by club members. A prize was awarded to Mrs. Leo Montgomery for having the most beautifully wrapped gift. The gifts were exchanged after the luncheon hour. Mrs. L. G. Wilkinson, Mrs. Ed Lyons, Mrs. Marvin Dubos, and Mrs. W. Renwick were guests of club members.

Club members who attended the delightful party were Mesdames J. V. Jones, Paul Keller Jr., Owen Moses, Herbert Walker, W. W. Stevens, H. W. Morton, Edwin Rowan, John Keller, Jack Williams, J. C. Loftin, Wayne Warren, John Tolar, M. L. Johnson, H. F. Shepard, Leo Montgomery, E. L. Harrison, E. M. Baber, J. M. Gilstrap, John Reitzell.

Natchez, Miss. Wedding Of Interest Here

Of special interest today is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Gilbert Potter Bullis, of Natchez and Ferriday, to Livingston Polk Ferris, of Ashton Plantation, near Lecompte which was quietly solemnized last Sunday morning at Trinity Episcopal Church in Natchez.

The Rev. Louis O'Vander Thomas, rector, officiated in the presence of her immediate family, including her sons, James G. Harrison and Mrs. Harrison, and George W. Harrison.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ferris left for a tour on the Gulf Coast and other points South.

Mrs. Ferris, the former Miss Mary Anderson, is a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John L. Anderson. Her younger days were spent at Pine Bluff, Ark., and she has lived in Louisiana and Natchez, for a number of years where she has been prominently identified in church, civic and social affairs. Among her special interests is the Natchez Pilgrimage.

Mr. Ferris is the son of the late Mrs. Harry S. Burrowes, the former Miss Eloise Polk, whose lifetime home was on Ashton Plantation where Mr. Ferris spent his childhood. He returned in 1950 from Upper Montclair, N. J., after a professional career in electrical engineering and research in New York.

Since retiring he has traveled extensively and spent much time in restoring Ashton where he and Mrs. Ferris will reside after early January. She will retain her Natchez home, which the couple will visit frequently.

Mr. Ferris has a daughter, Mrs. Howard M. Mulder of North Hollywood, Calif., and a son, Livingston Polk Ferris II of Boulder, Colo.

Fort Miro Chapter DAR Have Special Yuletide Program At Sat. Meeting

Mrs. C. U. Johnson was hostess to the December meeting of Fort Miro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Saturday afternoon, December fourteenth. Gala Christmas decorations complemented a silver and red tree in the living room. The entrance hall held an arrangement of golden reindeer and surrounded by gilded magnolia leaves and Christmas balls. The dining room and tea table were lovely with seasonal fruit.

Mrs. Duncan Cook, regent, called the meeting to order and the assemblage was led in prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. C. E. Slade, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, led by Mrs. S. W. McLean.

The guest speaker of the afternoon, Reverend W. H. McFadden, was introduced by Mrs. W. B. Matthews. Reverend McFadden, speaking on the subject, "Our Religious Heritage," developed in an inspiring sequence, the documentary evidence of religious influence in the growth of our country, the overriding power of the desire for religious freedom and the ever present contribution of religious organizations in the unfolding of present - day America. He gave graphic description of the physical and spiritual connection of religion with all phases of our heritage. In conclusion, Dr. McFadden pointed out the need for cessation of criticism and, as the National and World Councils of Churches advocate, a combining of religion and science to achieve a better understanding of human needs, through faith in God.

Upon conclusion of the business session, refreshments were served by the hostess committee: Mrs. Henry Guerriero, chairman, Mesdames Harry Frazer, George Hemphill, Barlow Inabnet, Jase Johnson, W. B. Matthews, John Noel, Lee Hodges, J. L. Jones, Jr., Ivy McDonald, O. C. Roddey, Percy Sandel, E. J. Seymour, Helen Mitchell and Miss Eidth Gunby.

Other members in attendance were Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, Jr., Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. C. E. Slade, Sr., Mrs. S. W. McLean, Mrs. Lawrence Alexander, Mrs. John R. Humble, Mrs. R. L. Carson, Mrs. B. A. Trousdale, Jr., Mrs. O. Wharton Brown, Mrs. John J. Stack, Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Mrs. W. C. Oliver, Mrs. O. M. Grisham, Mrs. O. R. Lewis, Mrs. M. L. McGuire and Miss Eleona Brinsmade.

Mrs. L. J. Russo Entertains At Morning Coffee

Mrs. Leonard J. Russo entertained with a neighborhood party this week in her home on Civic Street. Red and white camellias were used throughout the house and adding to the festive Christmas scene was a large Christmas tree gaily decorated with bright lights and ornaments placed in the living room.

The guests were seated around a large table centered with the red and white blossoms. They were Mrs. H. L. Sampson, Mrs. Phillip R. Bogel, Mrs. William H. Tucker, Mrs. Charles H. Whittaker, Mrs. Alice Wilkenson, Mrs. Joseph Amman, Mrs. W. R. Ober and Mrs. Gilbert Brown.

CANDY CANE CARE

NEW YORK (UP) — Handle candy canes with care to keep them fresh and non-sticky. Keep in a cool, dry place until ready to eat or use as decoration, says candy maker Fanny Farmer. Eat within three or four days if you leave the canes unwrapped in an open candy dish. If exposed longer, they will become moist and sticky. When hanging candy canes on Christmas trees, tie a thin ribbon to the crook of the cane without pressure. Do not use wire, wire cord, metallic string or cellophane tape.

To prepare kidneys before cooking, split them through the center and remove the fat and large tubules with a sharp knife or kitchen scissors. Wash the kidneys only after you have done this.

The party should be the gayer, too, if you equip your guests with inexpensive party hats, which are available in sets of eight, also fashioned of colorful paper.

Rehearsal Dinner Fetes Thomas Dansbys' Prior To Saturday Wedding

Miss Lynda Davis and Mr. Tommy Dansby were complimented with a dinner party following their wedding rehearsal in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Clifton Flinn Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Hall Peyton, Jr., of Wayne, Penn., visiting their parents at this time, assisted in the courtesies.

The bride - elect wore a dress of sapphire blue silk taffeta. It had a close - fitted bodice with bateau neckline, long tight sleeves and lantern skirt made with longer-in-back hemline. Snow white accessories completed the outfit.

Placed on the entrance porch was a large white silk lantern tied with wide red taffeta bow. In the picture window stood a small white Christmas tree with miniature lights and silver bells hanging from the branches. A large silver and white decoration was placed against the mirror over the fireplace. White candles on the piano and a large "Memory Candle" completed the bridal theme used in the living room.

The guests were invited into the dining room where a buffet supper was served. The central decor was used on the bride's table where the wedding party was seated. This was a five stemmed silver candelabra with tall white tapers. Miniature ropes of white flowers were entwined in and around it. The place cards were small silver Christmas trees.

Besides the bridal couple, others enjoying the rehearsal dinner included: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Davis, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dansby of Lafayette, parents of the bridegroom; Miss Carolyn Dansby, of Lafayette; Miss Minette Smith, Miss Doris Kitchens of Vicksburg, Miss.; Miss Veronica Wilds, Miss Tommy Sue Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rhymes, Ray Rhymes, Jr.; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Wilds, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewing, III, Dr. and Mrs. J. DAR Christmas Party Held In Oak Grove

General William Carroll Chapter D. A. R. met in the West Carroll Parish Health Unit for their Christmas meeting. Mrs. R. L. May and Mrs. T. N. Pulley, Jr. were co-hostesses.

The meeting was called to order by the Regent, Mrs. R. L. May, followed by prayer from the Ritual by the Chaplain, Mrs. E. D. Herr.

National Defense Chairman, Mrs. C. H. Neely stressed the ageless theme "Peace on Earth" and good will to men of which the Angels sang in the far away land when the Savior was born in Bethlehem. Americans received the priceless gift of freedom through the sacrifices of Revolutionary patriots. In this time of gift g'v-ing let each of us make an equal gift by seeing that our heritage of liberty is preserved. We must always be alert, for it has been found that even in our churches there has been communistic influences at work among American Youth Organizations.

The program, "Stories Behind the Christmas Carols" was given by Mrs. T. N. Pulley, Jr. The history of the best known ones, "Joy to the World;" "Silent Night, Holy Night"; O, Little Town of Bethlehem"; "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing;" "Christmas Bells;" "We Three Kings;" and "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear;" was reviewed. After the history, recordings of these songs were played. The benediction was given by Mrs. E. D. Herr.

The hostesses, Mrs. May and Mrs. Pulley served punch and dainty cookies from a gaily decorated table covered with a Santa Claus cloth and lit by white candles between which sat a tiny angel. Individual "Frosty, The Snowman" corsages were presented to those present. Members, Mrs. C. H. Neely, Mrs. Mary B. Thompson, Mrs. W. S. Byargeon, Mrs. D. W Kelly, Mrs E. D. Herr. Guests, Mrs. Essie Mae Setoon and Miss Donna Gail Pulley.

93rd Birthday Celebrated By Miss Whittelsey

A Christmas theme was noted in the decorations for the annual birthday party given for Miss Iva Whittelsey of St. Joseph's Home. Gold pine cones filled a cornucopia for the centerpiece of the party table in the dining room with a Nativity scene of ceramics featured nearby. After opening the gifts all gathered around the birthday cake to sing "Happy Birthday" to the honoree on her 93rd birthday.

Assisting in the courtesies of the afternoon were Mrs. N. Gaston, Mrs. Dewitt Milam, Mrs. Harold Mouk, Mrs. Amos Smelser and Mrs. Richard Hale.

The guests included from St. Joseph's Mr. Partridge, Mr. Smith Mr Hamilton, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Hatchell, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. McDonald and Miss Vegas. Also, Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. Norman Jardine, Mrs. John Atkinson, Mrs. Gardner Nagle, Mrs. Mary Rustin, Mrs. B. O. Yeldell, Mrs. C. C. Whittelsey and Father James Marshall.

After the history, recordings of these songs were played. The benediction was given by Mrs. E. D. Herr.

The hostesses, Mrs. May and Mrs. Pulley served punch and dainty cookies from a gaily decorated table covered with a Santa Claus cloth and lit by white candles between which sat a tiny angel. Individual "Frosty, The Snowman" corsages were presented to those present. Members, Mrs. C. H. Neely, Mrs. Mary B. Thompson, Mrs. W. S. Byargeon, Mrs. D. W Kelly, Mrs E. D. Herr. Guests, Mrs. Essie Mae Setoon and Miss Donna Gail Pulley.

93rd Birthday Celebrated By Miss Whittelsey

A Christmas theme was noted in the decorations for the annual birthday party given for Miss Iva Whittelsey of St. Joseph's Home. Gold pine cones filled a cornucopia for the centerpiece of the party table in the dining room with a Nativity scene of ceramics featured nearby. After opening the gifts all gathered around the birthday cake to sing "Happy Birthday" to the honoree on her 93rd birthday.

Assisting in the courtesies of the afternoon were Mrs. N. Gaston, Mrs. Dewitt Milam, Mrs. Harold Mouk, Mrs. Amos Smelser and Mrs. Richard Hale.

The guests included from St. Joseph's Mr. Partridge, Mr. Smith Mr Hamilton, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Hatchell, Mrs. Perry, Mrs. Wilkins, Mrs. McDonald and Miss Vegas. Also, Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. Norman Jardine, Mrs. John Atkinson, Mrs. Gardner Nagle, Mrs. Mary Rustin, Mrs. B. O. Yeldell, Mrs. C. C. Whittelsey and Father James Marshall.

Turkey-Macaroni Salad

NEW YORK —(UP)— Leftover turkey and macaroni combine to make a different salad. Add 1 tablespoon salt to quarts rapidly boiling water. Gradually add 8 ounces elbow macaroni (2 cups) while water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water and drain. Combine macaroni, 2 cups diced, cooked turkey, 1½ cups chopped celery, ½ cut sweet fresh cucumber pickles, ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Toss lightly. Chill and serve on crisp lettuce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Sybil Elaine Perkins, Edward Taunton Pledge Vows At Trinity Church

The Trinity Baptist Church of West Monroe was the scene Friday, December 13, at 7:30 o'clock, of the marriage of Miss Sybil Elaine Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Perkins, to Edward L. Taunton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Taunton, of Holly Ridge. The Rev. M. R. Perkins, assisted by Rev. Fiser U. Seal, officiated at the ceremony which was performed in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. John Robert Oldenburg was organist and accompanied Mrs. Oldenburg, the soloist.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown of pearl white peau de soie was fashioned along princess lines with the V neckline of the moulded bodice trimmed in bands of re-embroidered lace in tiny pearls. The long fitted sleeves came to points over her hands and the floor length skirt was very full. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of feathered white chrysanthemums centered with garnet roses.

Miss Mary Jane Drenler was the maid of honor and Mrs. Larry Barnes and Mrs. Joe Jordan, bridesmaids. Their frocks were of red crystallite designed with full ballerina length skirts and encircling their waists were sashes tied in a bow in the back with streamers to the hemline. On their heads they wore bandeaux of white velvet and carried white velvet muffs trimmd in red poinsettias.

Best man was Charles Thomas Taunton and the groomsmen and ushers included, Billy Joe Taunton, Wendell Taunton, W. L. String and Lloyd Crain.

A reception immediately followed in the church parlors. The bride's bouquet and white candles decorated the bride's table. Mrs. Perkins chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of blue lace made over taffeta and a small white hat. Mrs. Taunton, the mother of the bridegroom, was wearing a navy blue dress with matching accessories. They both wore corsages of white feathered carnations and forget-me-nots.

Later in the evening Mr. Taunton and his bride left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas. The bride wore a pale blue suit trimmed with a white fur collar and white hat with other blue accessories. They will make their home in Baton Rouge.

Among the out - of - town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miller, and children, Martha, Henry Jr. and Jeanine, of Colfax, Mr. and Mrs. Willy Walker, and children, Glenda, Sue Lynn, and Fred of Rayville, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Haygood, J. O. Haygood and Reece Haygood, Mrs. G. B. Loftin, Audry Loftin and Miss Lula McMahon, of Delhi.

Girl Scout News

It was thrilling to see all the Brownie troops, six to be exact, and two Intermediate troops, all spic - and - span in uniform, at the Sherrouse P. T. A. meeting last Sunday afternoon. Our professional worker, Annis Klie, made a talk on the ethical code of Scouting. Cub Scouts were represented, too, giving a clever skit dramatizing the need for den mothers. Recognizined by the group for their service to girls were the leaders and troop committee members of troop 1, 3, 51, 58, 60. Troop 1 are now in junior high, but started out as Brownie Scouts several years ago at Sherrouse. Leaders of these troops and all the others deserve all the praise accorded them. It is gratifying to see a P. T. A. recognize their work.

Gifts and parties and service are the order of the day for most troops around Christmas time. We'll tell what we've heard about all of these and trust we are not giving away any secrets.

Troop 5 has had fun learning to arrange flowers and dried articles for Christmas. After a talk and demonstration by Mr. Harker, the girls made arrangements of greenery and flowers before the freeze took all the latter. At subsequent meetings they have dipped small pine cones, gum balls, cotton squares, and pine twigs in white paint, decorated them with gold glitter, and using gold balls made a Christmas decoration on a styrofoam base. At their Christmas party last week the girls presented the decorations to their mothers, who were proud of them, indeed. Mrs. James M. Russell and Mrs. James E. Murphy are leaders of this Brownie Scout troop, made up of girls at Georgia Tucker school.

A group of the same age girls at the same school is Troop 26, which has been full of the Christmas spirit. They decorated a Christmas tree with decorations they made themselves, and, of course, it was to them the prettiest they had ever seen. A party around the tree was next in order, after which the girls made clothespin angels and Santa Clauses to take home for their own trees. Mrs. A. B. Gregory, Mrs. John P. Harris and Mrs. Margaret Jacobs are the adult leaders who help the girls in their work and play.

One of the nicest things about Scouting is that it can be done in so many ways, just so the fundamental purpose is adhered to. An example is Troop 61. The potential leaders of this group of girls worked, so plans had to be made for a Saturday morning meeting time. There are disadvantages to the plan, but think of all that girls can do when they have more time than after school. Recently they held a cookout, which is always fun. The food always tastes so good when each girl has contributed to preparing it.

The girls of Troop 61 were formerly in Troop 10 for two years. Registered as leaders are Mrs. F. L. Smith, Jr., Mrs. Earl A. Hoodemaker and Mrs. William A. Colvin III. Serving on the troop committee are Mrs. A. E. Patterson, Mrs. Jack E. Pankey, Mrs. Frank P. Stadler and John L. Cowder. Girls are: Phamie Colvin, Susan Cowder, Julia Hoodemaker, Connie Marshall, Katherine Martin, Mary Alice Pankey, Jo Ann Patterson, Alyce Smith, Katherine Stadler, Kay Adams and Cheryl Canavier.

A Merry Christmas to all our readers, especially to all members of the Girl Scout family.

Palsy School Children Give Yule Program

The children of the N. E. La. Cerebral Palsy School presented their annual Christmas program Tuesday afternoon. Alice Pipes opened the program with a poem, "Christmas Cheer."

Under the direction of Miss Gertrude Sandrock of Northeast La. State College the children sang the traditional Christmas carols, "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Silent Night" and "Jesus Loves Me." Phillip Baldwin told about Santa Claus and his reindeer after which the children joined in singing "Jolly Santa Claus" and "Sant's Sleigh."

Following a poem, "Surprise Package," which was given by Gayle Roy, the children sang about the Christmas toys that they would like for Christmas; a bouncing ball, a jack - in - the - box and a merry - go - round.

The children then played their rhythm band instruments, which had been made by music students at Northeast College, to the music of "Christmas Tree March" and "Jingle Bells."

Barbara Burlingham Is United In Marriage To Cpl. James Rodney Parker

In an afternoon ceremony Sunday, December 15, in St. Paul's Methodist Church, Miss Barbara Burlingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Nathan Burlingham, became the bride of Corporal James Rodney Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Parker, of Joaquin, Texas. Reverend B. R. Oliphint was the officiating minister.

Vows were exchanged in a setting of large white chrysanthemums flanked by tall white tapers. Miss Jo Ann Richardson presented a program of traditional wedding music.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of tulle and Chantilly lace. The billowing skirt of three tulle ruffles had an over skirt of tulle edged in lace. Peplum points of chantilly lace extended into a form fitting bodice. The fitted jacket of lace was fashioned with long sleeves buttoned to the elbow and ending in points over the hands with a Chinese collar studded in pearls. A half - cap of pearls formed a point over the forehead and held her veil of lace banded illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids showered with satin tied carnations.

Miss Kay Cotton was the maid of honor and Miss Linda Teller, Miss Bette Mallory and Miss Peggy Christian, of Vicksburg, Miss., bridesmaids. Their dresses were of ice blue net over taffeta. Their empire waistlines were outlined with taffeta cummerbunds ending in large flat bows in the back. In their hair they wore headdresses of blue net and taffeta and carried white carnation bouquets. Their slippers were of matching blue satin.

Corporal David M. Dunham, of La Porte, Texas was the best man. Ushers included Donnie Briehn, of Jonesboro, Henry Thomas, and Joe Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Burlingham were hosts at a reception in the social rooms of the church immediately following the ceremony. Mrs. Burlingham chose an iridescent taffeta with matching coat with which she wore black accessories. Mrs. Parker, the bridegroom's mother, chose a black silk suit with white hat. They both wore corsages of white carnations.

A Madeira cloth covered the bride's table centered with the tiered wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom and placed on a mirrored plateau. Mrs. Roy Gates and Mrs. J. E. Steffeck served. At the near by coffee table centered with a Christmas bouquet of white chrysanthemums and greens, Mrs. Tom Fontana and Mrs. O. S. Ryan poured. Miss Ginger Stephens assisted in serving and Miss Joan Fontana registered the guests.

Later in the day the newly married couple left for their wedding trip to New Orleans and Hot Springs, Ark. The bride wore a blue knit suit with small black velvet hat and other black accessories. They will make their home in San Francisco where Mr. Parker serves with the United States Marine Corps.

Among the out - of - town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Davis, and Sam Ligon, of Vicksburg, Miss.; Mrs. C. L. Cotham, Mrs. Jimmy Boles, Miss Sarah Robinson, Miss Marcia Schmidt, Miss Mary Ellen Michaud, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Maurice Abercrombie, of Jonesboro; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Steffek, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Taylor, Miss Linda Shepperd, of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Ryan, Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dunham, La Porte, Texas, Ronald Parker, Tommy E. Gray, Joaquin, Texas; Mrs. Ellie Dickerson, Tewaha Texas, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Parker, and James Parker, Houma.

Christmas Accessories Fun To Make

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

It's fun to dress up on Christmas day in a completely frivolous apron, overskirt or blouse that is meant to be worn only once a year.

This year textile designers have produced all kinds of gaily printed Christmas fabrics with cheerful designs of holly, poinsettias, Christmas bells and such that lend themselves ideally to holiday accessories. These are inexpensive, washable cotton fabrics, so you don't need to feel extravagant about making something that comes out only at Santa Claus time. You can get several yards for a dollar, and most of the fabrics are sanforized against shrinkage.

One bright idea suggested by local sewing center experts is a gay Christmas overskirt, to wear over your indispensable little black sheath dress on Christmas day. They recommend a border print design of red poinsettias with green leaves on a black background, made with a commercial pattern with inch rulers printed on it, so you can be sure to get the border print at the right point. The overskirt itself has a border at the hemline and another strip of border print is used for a wide shirred cummerbund. Just in case you don't own the basic sheath dress, the envelope includes a pattern for making one.

If you own a white wool dress, you might consider a holiday border print with a red background for an overskirt, or a white background print with red and green holly wreath motif.

While you're basting the turkey, you can just turn the overskirt around to make an apron. Since the fabric is washable, you'll have no worries if you get a gravy spot on it.

A jar of pickled beets makes a good salad; chill and drain the beets and team with hard - cooked egg and lettuce.

It's fun to dress up on Christmas day in a completely frivolous apron, overskirt or blouse that is meant to be worn only once a year.

This year textile designers have produced all kinds of gaily printed Christmas fabrics with cheerful designs of holly, poinsettias, Christmas bells and such that lend themselves ideally to holiday accessories. These are inexpensive, washable cotton fabrics, so you don't need to feel extravagant about making something that comes out only at Santa Claus time. You can get several yards for a dollar, and most of the fabrics are sanforized against shrinkage.

One bright idea suggested by local sewing center experts is a gay Christmas overskirt, to wear over your indispensable little black sheath dress on Christmas day. They recommend a border print design of red poinsettias with green leaves on a black background, made with a commercial pattern with inch rulers printed on it, so you can be sure to get the border print at the right point. The overskirt itself has a border at the hemline and another strip of border print is used for a wide shirred cummerbund. Just in case you don't own the basic sheath dress, the envelope includes a pattern for making one.

If you own a white wool dress, you might consider a holiday border print with a red background for an overskirt, or a white background print with red and green holly wreath motif.

While you're basting the turkey, you can just turn the overskirt around to make an apron. Since the fabric is washable, you'll have no worries if you get a gravy spot on it.

A jar of pickled beets makes a good salad; chill and drain the beets and team with hard - cooked egg and lettuce.

A Magic Bow For Christmas

By VIVIAN BROWN

An old - fashioned mistletoe decoration may be made with ribbon and bows, hoop and — mistletoe. It's an ideal way of insuring a kissable Christmas for young and old.

Take a 6 - inch embroidery hoop and wind satin ribbon around to cover. Criss - cross four 25 - inch strands of satin ribbon evenly over the top of the hoop, tacking them at the hoop's sides with thread and letting them hang.

At center where the ribbons cross, fasten a knot. Tie a 15-inch piece of satin ribbon to every other spoke on top of the hoop and let the streamers hang down. This will give you a hoop with 4 streamers in the center and 8 on the outside. Now make 15 bows.

A new easy way of making bows involves ribbon that incorporates a bow in its makeup. All you do is grasp strings at the end of the ribbon and pull. You'll have a bow before you can say "Merry Christmas."

The particular rosettes for the mistletoe hoop involve using two yards of ribbon and following directions on each spool of ribbon. Place three bows around the top of the hoop for decoration and add one or two sprigs of mistletoe. Now attach a bow and sprig of mistletoe to the bottom of each ribbon streamer. All bows and mistletoe should be attached by tying a knot.

Your mistletop hoop may be made to your specifications in a white, green and gold combination, traditional red, green and silver or in solid colors. The mistletoe hoop takes 15 yards of ⅝-inch ribbon, 30 yards of half - inch ribbon, and about 15 sprigs of mistletoe.

You can incorporate pine boughs into your mistletoe hoop to give a further hint of Yuletide to the project.

New Fashions Stimulate New Beauty Approach

The best thing about a new fashion trend is that it has a way of revitalizing a woman's whole approach to her appearance. She may not necessarily go all-out with a whole new look wardrobe, but just a dress, shoes, hat or coiffure change can provide the stimulus for a self-improvement beauty campaign.

For instance, the swirled bouffant hair-do's and the revived interest in glamorous earrings of the long and dangly or massive button type focus attention on the ears. Does that call for special ear make-up? Well, not exactly (though you might add a faint blush of rouge to the lobes if they are extra pale), but it demands the meticulous groming you devote to the rest of your complexion in perfecting your make-up.

Watch out for those careless powder smudges and signs of dry skin flakes on the ears. Take a cue from baby's beauty routine and use those ingeniously simple little cotton buds for this purpose. Dip one of the lightly wrapped soft cotton bud ends of the stick into your face lotion and gently go over the conturs of the ear and in back as well.

Wearing earrings all day can roughen the smooth texture of the ear lobes. Make it a bedtime habit to apply some softening cream lotion to the area with a cotton bud. And girls who wear glasses will find that a nightly swabbing of lotion behind the ears will keep the delicate skin from becoming irritated by the pressure of the bows.

Is your concession to this year's fashion a pair of the new tapered shoes and or lovely sheer hose tinted to blend with your costume shade? You can't detract from this elegance with dry unsightly bumps at the back of your heels. Make it an every-night practice to pamper and soften these spots with a lotion-moistened cotton bud. Use it around the toenail cuticles, too, to smooth any nylon-snagging roughness.

Hands and wrists are spotlighted with the many cropped sleeves on suits and jackets. The cotton bud, dipped in lotion, again comes in handy for a quick grooming trick. Work it around the fingertips and to push back the cuticles, and daub it along the wristbone area where chapping frequently occurs.

To do the most for you, the new profile hats must frame a neat hair-line and serene brow. Finish off your make-up by whisking a skin-lotion-moistened cotton bud around the hairline to remove any excess powder or dried skin particles. Do the same with the eyebrows, shaping the hairs into a smooth arch while you're about it.

Although your fashion preferences may switch with the next trend, the cotton bud beauty habit will stay with you once your discover the manifold short-cuts a little swab-tipped stick can offer. It makes you quicker and more deft about your daily grooming, and it reduces the equipment in your beauty kit to a minimum.

There's economy as well as efficiency in using cotton buds to apply perfume. After stroking the perfume saturated swab directly on the skin behind the ears, the crook of the arm or base of the throat, tuck it in your glove, undie or hanky drawer, to get that extra mileage out of your favorite precious scent.

Cooking Still Calls For Skill And Much Time

NEW YORK —(UP)—Psychologist Peter E. Siegle claims it's too easy today to be a good cook.

Those are fighting words at Christmas time. Ask any housewife who spends ours preparing an elaborate holiday meal for her family.

That's the point, said Siegle. The little woman works like a dog because she feels cheated by short-cut cooking and all the labor-saving devices on the market today.

"A wife is defending her value as a homemaker when she skips easily prepared meals in favor of foreign or unusual dishes that take hours to make," he said.

Cookbooks

Siegle reached these conclusions in a study for a new cookbook, "Easy-Do Meals With Sausage."

A look at other new kitchen texts would seem to confirm Siegle's theory, that all women take pride in an elaborate table.

Take "The Slenderella Cookbook" (Putnam) by Myra Waldo. Here are recipes as fancy as any in non - diet volumes, including usually fattening stews, sauces and desserts. The author omits few popular food ingredients but she does cut down the quantity of high - calorie items in favor of tangy herbs and spices and low-calorie vegetables.

Her real innovation, however, is in the dessert section, where she combines a minimum of sugar with non - caloric sweetener to avoid the flat taste of dishes made with sweetener alone.

There's even a recipe for banana cream pie with less than half the usual number of calories!

The woman who wants to build a cooking reputation but is afraid to try unfamiliar ingredients might turn to Irma G. Mazza's "Accent on Seasoning" (Little Brown).

Foreign Foods

It contains mouth - watering recipes. But more important for the novice are chapters on specific seasonings and sauces, plus advice on developing your own recipes.

In the foreign foods category, "The Art of Caribbean Cookery" (Doubleday) combines flavor and economy. West Indian cuisine relies heavily on seafood and poultry, both usually lower priced than meat in the United States. Author Carmen Aboy Valldejuli is Puerto Rican, but she has included in her book recipes from all the Caribbean islands and adapted them to American kitchens.

To give girls a head start in the kitchen, Little, Brown has issued a new edition of its 15-year-old "The Fannie Farmer Junior Cook Book" by Wilma Lord Perkins. The revised edition has many more recipes than before, and is designed to train the young miss of 10 years and upward until she's ready for the senior version of the cooking classic.

Cut canned drained water chestnuts in thin strips and mix wih hot cooked drained julienne - style snap beans seasoned with salt and butter or margarine.

Toy Trains Serve Multitude Non-Play Uses

NEW YORK (UP) — Junior no longer has a monpoly on electric trains. Toy trains, always Christmas best-sellers, now go for everything from child's play to atomic research.

"Scientists asked us for cars to carry radioactive materials around laboratories," said Lawrence Cowen, president of Lionel Corp., toy train manufacturers.

"So our engineers designed special lead-lined dump cars which could be operated by remote control. This system lessens the danger of radiation exposure and saves steps," he said.

Electric trains also are used at the Cleveland Clinic, a medical research organization in Ohio. Trains carry radioactive gas capsules, used in treatment of cancer and arthritis, from storage room to aging room and then to the operating room.

Charity Drives

Handicapped persons literally get a hand from the model engines. Tiny electric train motors provide power for mechanical hands — gloved devices which fit over the useless hands of paralytics.

Toy trains carry our nickels and dimes to needy families, to diseased persons and research groups. Toy tracks are set up in real train stations, lobbies of big buildings and other busy spots during charity drives. Passers-by drop money in the cars as the train goes around. Then it stops periodically in the center of the layout and dumps the money into a storage bin.

A tiny flatcar often delivers your hamburger to the waiter at a restaurant. Miniature freight cars hold forecasting signs of television weather reports.

For Diamond Hauling

Model railroading also has a place in movie scenes. Special effects departments use trick photography to make toy trains appear life-sized in panoramic shots.

This fall, the kids' best friend hauled a load of a girl's best friend — diamonds. Award-winning jewelry was displayed on moving trains at the Diamonds International exhibit in New York.

Mothers use trains as centerpieces for children's parties, Cowen said. And the cars become lazy-Susans for serving drinks, canapes and snacks.

One woman in Teaneck, N. J., got tired of having her husband skip lunch to play with his train set. So she rigged up a track from kitchen to den and loaded his lunch on a flatcar.

Grated cheddar cheese is delicious sprinkled over very hot cooked drained buttered broccoli. The green and yellow colors look pretty together, too!

Toyland Raids Jungle

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

The lollipop set is big - eyed this Christmas for some very earthy creatures with a past — elephants, tigers, lions, kangaroos, penguins — plump, soft and enormous. But best of all they look real.

There is only one hitch in this Junior Jungleland. If you haven't got your order in, chances are your little animal tamers will be disappointed. It seems there just aren't enough king - size animals to go around. If you do have your order in, better measure that playroom again. You may have to knock down a wall to accommodate these new playthings.

The lion is massive, almost as big as some of his zoo counterparts, although his expression is more cultured. The kangaroo is a delightful creature, with baby kangaroo peering from its pouch. The dinosaur, a frightening monster 12 feet long and 6 feet high, leers in an out - of - this world fashion. He'll need a room of his own, maybe two — no Junior Jungle-mate he. You may have to build him a new playroom to keep him comfortable, but it'll be worth it.

An elephant is so eager to please that you'll probably offer him peanuts. There are life - size gorillas, penguins, dogs of every description, donkeys and seals. There is a black panther and a giraffe 8½ feet tall.

If sales are any indication, Santa will need some high potency vitamins when he starts making deliveries. He'll also need a super - powered trailer truck to transport the stuff.

Charles Vesey, vice - president of F. A. O. Schwarz, one of the world's largest toy stores, says response to menagerie toys has been enormous, adding: "The biggest are the ones that are moving beyond expectations. Price seems no object."

CHARLES EUGENE FLOURNOY, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flournoy of Cincinnati, Ohio, is a frequent visitor of his grandmother, Mrs. Eugene K. Flournoy in her home on Hudson Lane.

SI LYNNE HOLLAN plays Christmas Carols for her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Bosworth, of San Antonio, Tex, who arrived earlier this month for a yule visit in the home of the S.S. Hollans on Deborah Drive.

JOINS BABER'S SALES STAFF

Mr. W. W. Wall, of Rt. 3, Monroe, joins the staff of Baber's in the capacity of salesman for Necchi-Elna, "the world's finest sewing machine," appliances and furniture. Mr. Wall is married and the father of three children. He is a member of the Swartz Assembly of God Church. Mr. Wall comes to Baber's with 15 years experience in selling, and asks that all his former friends and customers visit him for their sewing machine problems. The bidding:

South	West	North	East

Opening lead: Four of spades.

Lack of familiarity with the management of a standard combination of cards proved costly to declarer in today's hand. While the principle is elementary, the play is frequently overlooked by players who have progressed beyond the novice class.

The bidding was strictly of textbook variety. South had four suits protected and a point count of 22. North just about made the grade and raised to three no trump, assured that the partnership held at least 26 points in high cards.

West opened the four of spades, and East's jack went to declarer's queen. If declarer were to fulfill his game contract, it would appear that he must bring home four club tricks, so that reliance must be placed upon East's possesson of the king.

He therefore crossed to dummy by means of the king of diamonds and led the jack of clubs. East did not oblige by covering, and the jack held the trick. The next club lead was won by declarer with the ten, but when West showed out, declarer realized that the hand was lost. For while East's king remained in capturable position, there was no way to enter dummy in order to pick it up.

Declarer tried desperately to retrieve the hand by cashing off all his high cards and getting out with a heart. His hope rested with West's having the high heart and nothing else but spades, in which case a spade lead by West would establish South's king. But this failed to materialize, as East took the third lead of hearts, cashed his king of clubs and queen of diamonds and came through with a spade.

Declarer had lost the game by failing to handle the club suit with delicacy. He should have realized that it might be desirable to retain the lead in dummy as long as possible. This he could have accomplished by leading first the nine of clubs instead of the jack. The nine will hold the trick, and then declarer comes through with the jack. If East covers, all is serene. If he ducks again, the lead remains in dummy and another club through picks up East's king.

Men May Wear Pants-But Who Picks Them Out

By PAT HERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) — A New Yorker, Victor Lebow, may wear the pants in his family, but his good-looking, brunette wife styles and picks them for him — and for men throughout America.

Francesca is the distaff member of Lebow Bros., a New York clothing firm. As such, she accompanies her husband twice a year on global hunts for fabrics and fashion ideas that will make American men "the best dressed in the world."

Before she married the boss and became vice president of the firm, she worked for Marshall Field in Chicago, Ben Reig in New York and for Vogue magazine, where she made her mark as the first men's wear editor in the high fashion field.

Money To Be Made

"Women," she said, on her stopover here, "have taken the curse off fashion for men."

The only answer to this is yes—if you happen to look like Francesca who, at 44, could hold her own with many a svelte, sloe-eyed high fashion model.

The Lebow fashion theory is that there's as much money to be made in men's wear as in women's, and Francesca and spouse are out to prove it.

They will hunt for woolens and worsteds in England, and silks in Italy, sweaters in Austria, and accessories in Switzerland and France.

"Last trip I spotted a silk striped cuff on a man in Florence," said Francesca, "and that gave us the idea for one of our most handsome shirts."

Tweed For Variety

She continued:

"The Englishman's umbrella and bowler look dashing and, oh, so English. The Italian's silk shirt and pointed shoes are very attractive. But they always look English and Italian — not completely well dressed. The American men are the best dressed in the world."

But this pronouncement does not satisfy Francesca, who is out to broaden the American man's fashion horizons:

"If they insist on a grey flannel suit — all right, let them have it, but have them buy a tweed for variety as well."

She also is sure that the only way to sartorially "finish off" the American man is with the help of his wife.

CLOTHES QUIZ

Well Chosen Jewelry Adds To Plain Dress

By BETH BLAIR

A dark basic dress with carefully chosen jewelry makes an attractive outfit for a small wedding. A reader writes:

Dear Miss Blair:

I have been invited to a small afternoon wedding and reception. Would a navy blue crepe dress with three-quarter sleeves and high round neck be all right? What type jewelry would be best — also shoes?

The navy crepe dress with the same color pumps are good for this small wedding. Wear a pearl necklace and earrings. Or for a brighter touch, use some rhinestone or gold costume jewelry. Your hat could be pale blue or white. Use white kid or doeskin gloves with a white hat. Navy gloves or light blue to match a hat also would be smart.

Dear Miss Blair:

My good white linen blouse was scorched. Can this spot be removed or should I dye the blouse?

First launder the blouse and bleach. This will work for a mild scorch. A deep scorch cannot be removed. Dyeing will not cover up such a mark.

Toyland Raids Jungle

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

The lollipop set is big - eyed this Christmas for some very earthy creatures with a past — elephants, tigers, lions, kangaroos, penguins — plump, soft and enormous. But best of all they look real.

There is only one hitch in this Junior Jungleland. If you haven't got your order in, chances are your little animal tamers will be disappointed. It seems there just aren't enough king - size animals to go around. If you do have your order in, better measure that playroom again. You may have to knock down a wall to accommodate these new playthings.

The lion is massive, almost as big as some of his zoo counterparts, although his expression is more cultured. The kangaroo is a delightful creature, with baby kangaroo peering from its pouch. The dinosaur, a frightening monster 12 feet long and 6 feet high, leers in an out - of - this world fashion. He'll need a room of his own, maybe two — no Junior Jungle-mate he. You may have to build him a new playroom to keep him comfortable, but it'll be worth it.

An elephant is so eager to please that you'll probably offer him peanuts. There are life - size gorillas, penguins, dogs of every description, donkeys and seals. There is a black panther and a giraffe 8½ feet tall.

If sales are any indication, Santa will need some high potency vitamins when he starts making deliveries. He'll also need a super - powered trailer truck to transport the stuff.

Jewelry Sparks Christmas Tree

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

This is the Christmas to give jewelry. And this year you needn't mortgage the family homestead to buy Mama a bauble.

Costume jewelry is as gorgeous as the crown jewels this season, with designers outdoing themselves in producing the elaborate and colorful necklaces, earrings, pins and bracelets which are so important a part of the currently fashionable simple costumes.

Jewelry is keyed to the dress color these days, as part of the one - color look favored by fashion moguls. There are make-believe rubies, sapphires, emeralds, amethysts, diamonds and pearls to accent every costume. And for tailored types there are simple gold collars and bracelets that add the right finishing touch to casual outfits.

Bracelets are bold and beautiful, yet light in weight. Continental cuffs in textured gold metal are effective new accents to long, tight sleeves.

The elaborate bib necklace is the approved accessory for new chemise dresses, and glittering pendant earrings add a dramatic finishing touch.

They have played to audiences in small rural churches, at Carnegie Hall, the Newport Jazz Festival, and once drew 25,000 persons to Washington's Griffith Stadium.

Travel By Auto

They've worn out 15 automobiles on tour. Now, they travel in a chauffeur-driven car, custom-built at a cost of $12,000 and capable of carrying 12 passengers.

These days, Mamma Ward acts as emcee, Clara does most of the solo numbers, plays the piano and writes many of the tunes. A concert may range from the old-time spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" to "Packing Up," one of her own numbers.

"A gospel one is just a modernized spiritual . . . given more beat," said Miss Ward, who is proud that she comes from the same town as another singer, Marian Anderson. "They are taken from the Bible, and like the Bible, will stay.

"Teen-agers enjoy them just as much as the older folks.

"Gospel songs used to be popular just with the church - goers. They were the only people exposed to them. But with records and so many singing groups on tour, we're reaching a lot of people who confess they've never been to church.

"We hope our kind of singing starts them going."

Relax With Knitting; It May Save Your Marriage

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

"Don't let your marriage unravel. Pick up your knitting needles!" This advice comes from Doctor Rebecca Liswood, physician and marriage counselor, and Executive Director of the Marriage Counseling Service of Greater New York.

Doctor Liswood attributes the rising divorce rate, in part at least, to tension and high-powered daily living. She calls knitting "a handcraft tranquilizer."

This physician, who has had so much experience with human conduct and the problems of humans, said, "Knitting serves a dual purpose toward our goal of reducing tension. It provides a hobby which is relaxing because it does not require too much concentration. It also gives a woman a feeling of accomplishment by providing a concrete example of something she has done herself."

Soothing Effect

In mental and physical therapy it long has been recognized that the use of the hands in creating something lovely has a magically soothing effect on the emotions and on body tensions.

Doctor Liswood further pointed out that marriages too often flounder on the rocks of disagreements which are caused by tension, and that the relaxation of mental strain permits couples to settle their differences amicably and intelligently.

We all know from experience that we cannot make correct decisions when we are in the midst of an emotional upheaval or when we are fraught with tensions. This sort of thing snowballs. We react in an entirely different way to any situation or spoken word when we are feeling jumpy than we do when we are feeling wonderful. We say things which we later regret but the damage may remain.

Consider Pre-menstrual Tension

For this reason I often have suggested in this column that a woman never should enter into any argument or make any important decisions just before her menstrual period when she may be the victim of pre-menstrual tension. It seems such a shame for marriages to break up because of such ridiculous reasons.

Doctor Liswood is an advocate of constructive training for marriage. She emphasized that few young women enter into marriage with proper preparation. She continued, "This leads to a fairy tale concept of married life which often result in husband-wife clashes."

Probably most marriages break up because of the small irritations, furstrations and disappointments of daily life rather than the big crisis. Perhaps, too, these are potent aging factors.

So, relax with your knitting needles!

If you would like my leaflet "Hobbies" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 66 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: "Turn in Your Tranquilizers for an Appealing Handcraft."

Has Appeal Gospel Singing

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — "Guess everybody's got a little trouble," said Clara Ward. "That's why gospel singing's got appeal. It's a gladdening, cheering, live happily ever after kind of music."

Miss Ward, at 33, is one of the top gospel singers in the country today. She and her Ward Singers, a group of six women, are enjoying the steadily - growing popularity of hymn singing to the tune of half-a-million dollars a year on concert tours alone.

In addition, she runs a publishing firm in Philadelphia which publishes and distributes gospel songs. The group's recordings sell in the millions.

"We didn't start out to make money," said Miss Ward in an interview here, between theater and church dates. "It just happened."

The first appearance of the group, then a trio, was at a church in Philadelphia. Fee, $5. Now for a theater or armory date, they get as much as $5,000.

"But when we sing in churches, it is different," she said. "We just take time out from making a lot of money."

Parents Taught Her

Clara Ward, a little woman with a big, contralto voice, learned hymn singing at her parents' knees, figuratively. By the time she was five, she was charming church congregations in her native Philadelphia with sacred songs her mother, a choice leader, taught her. Her father, a steel plant foreman, also is a choir singer.

By the time Clara was 10, she and her mother and sister Willa had formed the trio and begun appearances before church groups.

They were a local institution by the time Clara was out of high school.

In 1943, the Wards, plus two other vocalists recruited from outside the family, appeared at a Baptist convention. Then the requests for them started from all over the country.

Since then, the singers (sister Willa married, left the group and two others were added) have traveled close to a million miles.

Jewelry Sparks Christmas Tree

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

This is the Christmas to give jewelry. And this year you needn't mortgage the family homestead to buy Mama a bauble.

Costume jewelry is as gorgeous as the crown jewels this season, with designers outdoing themselves in producing the elaborate and colorful necklaces, earrings, pins and bracelets which are so important a part of the currently fashionable simple costumes.

Jewelry is keyed to the dress color these days, as part of the one - color look favored by fashion moguls. There are make-believe rubies, sapphires, emeralds, amethysts, diamonds and pearls to accent every costume. And for tailored types there are simple gold collars and bracelets that add the right finishing touch to casual outfits.

Bracelets are bold and beautiful, yet light in weight. Continental cuffs in textured gold metal are effective new accents to long, tight sleeves.

The elaborate bib necklace is the approved accessory for new chemise dresses, and glittering pendant earrings add a dramatic finishing touch.

WHY GROW OLD?

Relax With Knitting; It May Save Your Marriage

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

"Don't let your marriage unravel. Pick up your knitting needles!" This advice comes from Doctor Rebecca Liswood, physician and marriage counselor, and Executive Director of the Marriage Counseling Service of Greater New York.

Doctor Liswood attributes the rising divorce rate, in part at least, to tension and high-powered daily living. She calls knitting "a handcraft tranquilizer."

This physician, who has had so much experience with human conduct and the problems of humans, said, "Knitting serves a dual purpose toward our goal of reducing tension. It provides a hobby which is relaxing because it does not require too much concentration. It also gives a woman a feeling of accomplishment by providing a concrete example of something she has done herself."

Soothing Effect

In mental and physical therapy it long has been recognized that the use of the hands in creating something lovely has a magically soothing effect on the emotions and on body tensions.

Doctor Liswood further pointed out that marriages too often flounder on the rocks of disagreements which are caused by tension, and that the relaxation of mental strain permits couples to settle their differences amicably and intelligently.

We all know from experience that we cannot make correct decisions when we are in the midst of an emotional upheaval or when we are fraught with tensions. This sort of thing snowballs. We react in an entirely different way to any situation or spoken word when we are feeling jumpy than we do when we are feeling wonderful. We say things which we later regret but the damage may remain.

Consider Pre-menstrual Tension

For this reason I often have suggested in this column that a woman never should enter into any argument or make any important decisions just before her menstrual period when she may be the victim of pre-menstrual tension. It seems such a shame for marriages to break up because of such ridiculous reasons.

Doctor Liswood is an advocate of constructive training for marriage. She emphasized that few young women enter into marriage with proper preparation. She continued, "This leads to a fairy tale concept of married life which often result in husband-wife clashes."

Probably most marriages break up because of the small irritations, furstrations and disappointments of daily life rather than the big crisis. Perhaps, too, these are potent aging factors.

So, relax with your knitting needles!

If you would like my leaflet "Hobbies" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 66 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: "Turn in Your Tranquilizers for an Appealing Handcraft."

Has Appeal Gospel Singing

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — "Guess everybody's got a little trouble," said Clara Ward. "That's why gospel singing's got appeal. It's a gladdening, cheering, live happily ever after kind of music."

Miss Ward, at 33, is one of the top gospel singers in the country today. She and her Ward Singers, a group of six women, are enjoying the steadily - growing popularity of hymn singing to the tune of half-a-million dollars a year on concert tours alone.

In addition, she runs a publishing firm in Philadelphia which publishes and distributes gospel songs. The group's recordings sell in the millions.

"We didn't start out to make money," said Miss Ward in an interview here, between theater and church dates. "It just happened."

The first appearance of the group, then a trio, was at a church in Philadelphia. Fee, $5. Now for a theater or armory date, they get as much as $5,000.

"But when we sing in churches, it is different," she said. "We just take time out from making a lot of money."

Parents Taught Her

Clara Ward, a little woman with a big, contralto voice, learned hymn singing at her parents' knees, figuratively. By the time she was five, she was charming church congregations in her native Philadelphia with sacred songs her mother, a choice leader, taught her. Her father, a steel plant foreman, also is a choir singer.

By the time Clara was 10, she and her mother and sister Willa had formed the trio and begun appearances before church groups.

They were a local institution by the time Clara was out of high school.

In 1943, the Wards, plus two other vocalists recruited from outside the family, appeared at a Baptist convention. Then the requests for them started from all over the country.

Since then, the singers (sister Willa married, left the group and two others were added) have traveled close to a million miles. They have played to audiences in small rural churches, at Carnegie Hall, the Newport Jazz Festival, and once drew 25,000 persons to Washington's Griffith Stadium.

Travel By Auto

They've worn out 15 automobiles on tour. Now, they travel in a chauffeur-driven car, custom-built at a cost of $12,000 and capable of carrying 12 passengers.

These days, Mamma Ward acts as emcee, Clara does most of the solo numbers, plays the piano and writes many of the tunes. A concert may range from the old-time spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" to "Packing Up," one of her own numbers.

"A gospel one is just a modernized spiritual . . . given more beat," said Miss Ward, who is proud that she comes from the same town as another singer, Marian Anderson. "They are taken from the Bible, and like the Bible, will stay.

"Teen-agers enjoy them just as much as the older folks.

"Gospel songs used to be popular just with the church - goers. They were the only people exposed to them. But with records and so many singing groups on tour, we're reaching a lot of people who confess they've never been to church.

"We hope our kind of singing starts them going."

Need a topping for ice cream? Boil maple syrup to thicken it slightly — about 5 minutes—then pour over the ice cream; garnish with salted almonds.

A pretty and tasty trick with cauliflower: spike the cooked head with almonds, top with cheese sauce and arrange on serving dish with green peas or beans. Different! Cut apple rings about ½ inch thick and fry in butter in a deep skillet; cover with sauerkraut and top with cooked sausage links; cover and steam until hot through.

Ballroom Etiquette For Mid-Winter Dances Given

At the present time my mail is flooded with questions from young Janes and Jimmys both, asking questions concerning ballroom etiquette at midwinter dances. Some of the questions asked are: "At what age does a boy wear a 'tux'? When can he wear tails? Must he send a girl a corsage? What is meant by 'cutting in'? What does a young girl wear to a dance?"

In answer, then: Clothes depend, of course, with the formality of the community. In New York, boys of fourteen wear tuxedos — at eighteen, tails. All girls who go to every dance wear floor-length dresses. In less formal communities boys wear dark suits and girls best party (or Sunday) dresses.

The corsage question is one of locality. In some communities they are customary, in others they are not.

When a boy asks a girl to dance, he says: "Would you care to dance?" She either replies, "Certainly" or "Yes, I'd like to very much," or usually she says nothing but gets up or turns to him, and dances. At the end of the dance, he says, "Thank you!" or "Thanks ever so much!" On occasion he adds, "That was wonderful!" In this case she says, "Thank you," casually.

The procedure of "cutting-in" is this: When a boy wants to dance with a girl dancing past him, he darts forward, lays his hand on the shoulder of her partner, who must at once relinquish his place. A third in turn does the same to him. But the first one must remember that it is not permitted him to cut back on the boy who took her from him. He can, however, cut in again on another boy.

A girl who is dancing may not refuse to change partners when another cuts in. This is the worst phase of the cuttin-in custom; those who particularly want to dance together are often unable to take a dozen steps before being interrupted. Once in a while a girl will shake her head "No" to a stag who darts toward her. But that, under most circumstances, is considered rude.

Another unhappy phase of cutting in is that the man with whom she dances best invariably makes her own dancing conspicuously graceful, and therefore every stag in the room wants to cut in. A man who dances like a jumping jack, stamping on her toes, is not only a torture to her but makes her seem almost as awkward as he, and no one comes to her rescue. If he doesn't know the polka, the mambo, or the latest dance steps, he should say so. A wise girl therefore stops dancing at once, saying, "Let's sit out the rest of this dance."

To refuse to dance with one man and then immediately dance with another is an open affront to the first one — excusable only if he is actually offensive, so that the affront is justifiable. But under ordinary circumstances, if she is dancing, she must dance with everyone who asks her; if she is not dancing, she must not make an exception.

If a girl is sitting with a man alone, a second one should not interrupt or ask her to dance. If she is sitting in a group, he can go up and ask her, "Don't you want to dance some of this?" She then either says "yes" or smiles and says, "Not just now — I am very tired."

After a man and girl have finished dancing, he must take her back to her partner or to her own group. He must not walk off the dance floor leaving her to make her own way back to her friends. Also, a man may not leave a girl sitting alone to dance with someone else. He must wait until some one else joins them.

One last word — the ballroom has always been considered the test of perfect manners. Its exactions are, therefore, unusually strict. Lolling on chairs or feet in awkward positions, are both tabu. And the greatest test of all is the ability to "walk beautifully" —head up, shoulders back, arms quiet, and with light step—across a ballroom floor.

A list of the wedding expenses shared by both the bridegroom and the bride's family is included in leaflet E-4, "Wedding Expenses." Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c-o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Is it proper to wear veils in the evening? This is answered in leaflet E-18, "An Etiquette Test." The leaflet includes 35 questions and answers to everyday problems. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c-o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

FILBERT STUFFING

NEW YORK —(UP)— A different turkey stuffing combines filbert nuts and cognac. For a 6-lb. turkey, chop a medium sized onion and saute in a tablespoon of butter. Mix with cups of fine dry toasted bread crumbs. Add 1½ cups of chopped filberts, ¼ cup butter, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 teaspoon of thyme, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with a dash of cognac. Rub the cavity with salt and stuff.

Cooked turkey and stuffing should be stored separately in the refrigerator.

'DEAR ABBY'

Mother Must Be Told Appeal To Clergyman

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your future husband told you that his mother asked to go along on the honeymoon trip and he didn't have the heart to refuse her? We plan to be married in December and motor to Florida so his mother invited herself to go with us. I am so mad I could scream. I don't especially care for her company as she is the type who has to be in on every conversation. Is there any way of getting her to stay home without causing a family fight? READY TO SCREAM.

DEAR READY: If your future husband hasn't the "heart" . . . a relative, or close friend, should inform his mother that three is a crowd . . . especially on a honeymoon. If she isn't informed by December . . . appeal to your clergyman.

DEAR ABBY: I let a friend of mine borrow my maternity clothes. Her baby is five months old and this friend is still wearing my maternity clothes. I was glad to let her use them for the time she was pregnant, but didn't mean for her to wear them afterwards. She is ruining them and I had intended to use them again myself sometime. How can I get them back before they are rags? ANNOYED.

DEAR ANNOYED: You could ask her for them, but my guess is that the poor girl can't get into anything else.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a sister who is too cheap to buy the daily paper so she comes over here every day and asks for ours "if we are through with it." Sometimes I like to read the paper in bed so of course I am not "through with it" but I hate to refuse her. Also sometimes the paper is not all together and I have to start hunting up certain sections because she will complain if thre is a part missing. She is a nice person outside of this. I don't dare complain to my husband (her brother) because I think it is too petty to mention. Thank you, Abby, I feel better now. Any suggestions: IRRITATED.

DEAR IRRITATED: I'll solve two problems in one for you. For Christmas (or her birthday) give your sister - in - law a subscription to this paper. It's something both of you will enjoy.

DEAR ABBY: I had reason to believe that my husband and a young woman whre he works were more than just friends. I went to her husband and parents (they live with her parents) and I learned that my suspicions were unfounded and I had made a mistake. I apologized to the girl but she refused to accept my apologies. She has seniority rights at the plant, and has said that my husband should get a job elswhere. I went to the boss and told him the whole story. He said he though the girl was right. What s your opinion and what do you hink I should do now? SORRY WIFE.

DEAR SORRY: I think you have done too much already. Your husband should get another job, and I think you should leave sleuthing to Sherlock Holmes.

Confidential to Jake at the U.: Your chaperone sounds like a gal who never made the team but is still in there intercepting the passes. Be tolerant.

If you have a problem, white to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Jonesboro-Hodge Team Honored

JONESBORO (Special) — Danny Hagler and Donnie Brunson received top awards at the annual Jonesboro - Hodge football banquet Thursday night. The affair is sponsored each year by the local Lions Club.

Hagler, a senior standout for the Benga's at end, was team captain and made the all-district second team at left end. He received the most valuable lineman award which was presented by Coach Joe Murry, assistant grid mentor at the school.

Brunson, a senior sparkplug, received the most valuable back award from Coach Jimmy Gilbert, Jonesboro's head football coach. Brunson was a mainstay on the team all year as he sparkplugged the 14-13 victory over Ruston.

Head coach, Jack Clayton, of NSC gave an informative talk on football and its visual effects on boys. In his talk, he brought out the fact that football is worthy to a boy throughout his entire life. He stressed that furthering education was essential today.

"Football tends to build character," he said, "and it certainly tells of a boy's capabilities."

A former Jonesboro cage star, "Slim" Howell, was also present at the meeting and presented several interesting remarks on athletics. Howell was formerly assistant football coach at Franklinton, where Jimmy Gilbert coached before taking over the reigns at Jonesboro.

Other highlights of the banquet were the recognizing of individuals on the team and the Jonesboro-Hodge cheerleaders who were cited as having done a fine job this year.

Use leftover mincemeat from pies as filling for sugar cookies. Add a touch of lemon or orange rind to the mincemeat and bake cookies sandwich - style. Serve with hot chocolate.

The bright red of Christmas is the latest color in fashion. Cocktail and evening gowns sparkle in red sheer wool, satin and lace. Newest silhouette is the bell-skirted gown, shown in red satin.

The chemise will cut a straight line at the beach. Resort-wear designers show the sack in one-piece boy-shorts, two - piece bathing suits with the waistline dropped below the hips, and sailor - type outfits with chemise top and pleated skirt.

Men's fashions feel the influence of imports. We can credit overseas styles for the Italian collar on sports shirts, low - cut shoes, the loden coat, rain wear and alpine hats.

A leading European knitwear designer, the Marchesa di Gresy of Italy, says American women are too fastidious when it comes to carying for knitted clothes. Ironing shortens a garment's life, she said. Just wash, dry and shake out knitted goods.

Look for the "Como cardigan" in spring fashions for small fry. Creepers will come with matching v-necked sweaters. One white cable stitch suit also has a matching cardigan.

We've hit bottom in sputnik-inspired fashions! Now comes the satellite or sputnik pantie in frilled nylon net with meteorite-like ruffling around the hem.

And the greatest test of all is the ability to "walk beautifully" —head up, shoulders back, arms quiet, and with light step—across a ballroom floor.

FILBERT STUFFING

NEW YORK —(UP)— A different turkey stuffing combines filbert nuts and cognac. For a 6-lb. turkey, chop a medium sized onion and saute in a tablespoon of butter. Mix with cups of fine dry toasted bread crumbs. Add 1½ cups of chopped filberts, ¼ cup butter, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 teaspoon of thyme, salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with a dash of cognac. Rub the cavity with salt and stuff.

Cooked turkey and stuffing should be stored separately in the refrigerator.

'DEAR ABBY'

Mother Must Be Told Appeal To Clergyman

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your future husband told you that his mother asked to go along on the honeymoon trip and he didn't have the heart to refuse her? We plan to be married in December and motor to Florida so his mother invited herself to go with us. I am so mad I could scream. I don't especially care for her company as she is the type who has to be in on every conversation. Is there any way of getting her to stay home without causing a family fight? READY TO SCREAM.

DEAR READY: If your future husband hasn't the "heart" . . . a relative, or close friend, should inform his mother that three is a crowd . . . especially on a honeymoon. If she isn't informed by December . . . appeal to your clergyman.

DEAR ABBY: I let a friend of mine borrow my maternity clothes. Her baby is five months old and this friend is still wearing my maternity clothes. I was glad to let her use them for the time she was pregnant, but didn't mean for her to wear them afterwards. She is ruining them and I had intended to use them again myself sometime. How can I get them back before they are rags? ANNOYED.

DEAR ANNOYED: You could ask her for them, but my guess is that the poor girl can't get into anything else.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a sister who is too cheap to buy the daily paper so she comes over here every day and asks for ours "if we are through with it." Sometimes I like to read the paper in bed so of course I am not "through with it" but I hate to refuse her. Also sometimes the paper is not all together and I have to start hunting up certain sections because she will complain if thre is a part missing. She is a nice person outside of this. I don't dare complain to my husband (her brother) because I think it is too petty to mention. Thank you, Abby, I feel better now. Any suggestions: IRRITATED.

DEAR IRRITATED: I'll solve two problems in one for you. For Christmas (or her birthday) give your sister - in - law a subscription to this paper. It's something both of you will enjoy.

DEAR ABBY: I had reason to believe that my husband and a young woman whre he works were more than just friends. I went to her husband and parents (they live with her parents) and I learned that my suspicions were unfounded and I had made a mistake. I apologized to the girl but she refused to accept my apologies. She has seniority rights at the plant, and has said that my husband should get a job elswhere. I went to the boss and told him the whole story. He said he though the girl was right. What s your opinion and what do you hink I should do now? SORRY WIFE.

DEAR SORRY: I think you have done too much already. Your husband should get another job, and I think you should leave sleuthing to Sherlock Holmes.

Confidential to Jake at the U.: Your chaperone sounds like a gal who never made the team but is still in there intercepting the passes. Be tolerant.

If you have a problem, white to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Jonesboro-Hodge Team Honored

JONESBORO (Special) — Danny Hagler and Donnie Brunson received top awards at the annual Jonesboro - Hodge football banquet Thursday night. The affair is sponsored each year by the local Lions Club.

Hagler, a senior standout for the Benga's at end, was team captain and made the all-district second team at left end. He received the most valuable lineman award which was presented by Coach Joe Murry, assistant grid mentor at the school.

Brunson, a senior sparkplug, received the most valuable back award from Coach Jimmy Gilbert, Jonesboro's head football coach. Brunson was a mainstay on the team all year as he sparkplugged the 14-13 victory over Ruston.

Head coach, Jack Clayton, of NSC gave an informative talk on football and its visual effects on boys. In his talk, he brought out the fact that football is worthy to a boy throughout his entire life. He stressed that furthering education was essential today.

"Football tends to build character," he said, "and it certainly tells of a boy's capabilities."

A former Jonesboro cage star, "Slim" Howell, was also present at the meeting and presented several interesting remarks on athletics. Howell was formerly assistant football coach at Franklinton, where Jimmy Gilbert coached before taking over the reigns at Jonesboro.

Other highlights of the banquet were the recognizing of individuals on the team and the Jonesboro-Hodge cheerleaders who were cited as having done a fine job this year.

The bright red of Christmas is the latest color in fashion. Cocktail and evening gowns sparkle in red sheer wool, satin and lace. Newest silhouette is the bell-skirted gown, shown in red satin.

The chemise will cut a straight line at the beach. Resort-wear designers show the sack in one-piece boy-shorts, two - piece bathing suits with the waistline dropped below the hips, and sailor - type outfits with chemise top and pleated skirt.

Men's fashions feel the influence of imports. We can credit overseas styles for the Italian collar on sports shirts, low - cut shoes, the loden coat, rain wear and alpine hats.

A leading European knitwear designer, the Marchesa di Gresy of Italy, says American women are too fastidious when it comes to carying for knitted clothes. Ironing shortens a garment's life, she said. Just wash, dry and shake out knitted goods.

Look for the "Como cardigan" in spring fashions for small fry. Creepers will come with matching v-necked sweaters. One white cable stitch suit also has a matching cardigan.

Shining Star Is Symbolic

By Mary M. Jardine

The Christmas Star

Men, for centuries, have revered the stars as God's work — "The moon and the stars, which thou has ordained"; and the Christmas star of "Star ofBethlehem" is a favorite Yuletide symbol. Christ's coming was foretold in Numbers 24:17. "There shall come a Star out of Jacob"; and in Revelation 22:16, HHe is called "The bright nd morning star."

The star, too, is always associated with the story of the Wise Men. In Matthew 2:9 and 10 we read, "Lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joyl."

In our stately carol, "We Three Kings of Orient Are," the poet hails it as

Star of wonder, star of night
Star with royal beauty bright
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to thy perfect light.

Others have also praised it in such songs as "Star in the East" "O Star of Bethlehem," "The Star of Midnight, "The Wise Men Saw a Light Afar," and "O Lovely Star That Shone So Bright."

A lighted star is a popular Yuletide decoration in many churches. When one sits in a darkened sanctuary, and suddenly a brilliant star flashes on, we are vividly reminded of that first Christmas night.

At the holidays in our homes, places of honor are given to stars, at the top of the Christmas tree, in windows, or on porches. Candles glow in star shaped holders; cookies are baked in this shape; and the stars add beauty and meaning to Christmas wrappings and greeting cards.

In smoe lands, including Spain. Italy and Russia, the people would wait until the first star appeared on Christmas eve before beginning their Yuletide celebration. Sometimes, at this season, European girls went out to the fields to pray to the stars to bring them husbands. At the feast day of the Three Kings (January 6) "Star-Singing" — mentioned in connection with the Magi is still carried on. Tyrolean boys dress as the Wise Men, shepherds and Herod with his retinue. The procession is led by a man bearing a star - shaped lantern on a long pole. This lamp, lighted by candles, revolves as it is carried along. When the "Star singers" stop at a home, they stamp on the ground in insure good crops, sing their carols, and receive coins, cakes or drinks.

The custom of following the stars or the "Star - singers" is also popular in Sweden, Oberammergau, Roumania, Poland and members of the Greek Church in Alaska still continue this old European tradition.

All over the United States, cities feature stars in the special Christmas lighting. Some, several feet across, shine at the tops of community Christmas trees, shedding their light around for a long distance. Notable examples of cities featuring the Christmas star are Palmer Lake, Colorado, Van Nuys California and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

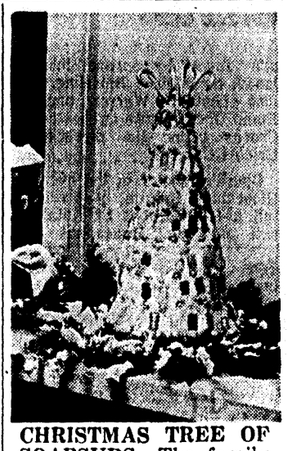
Each Christmas, planetariums, including the Hayden in New York and the Griffith in Los Angeles, present displays of the "Christmas Sky." It is a thrilling arrangement of the heavens with the stars, moon, and planets in the same positions they held at the time of Christ's birth. As you watch this inspiring spectacle, you can almost imagine you are with the shepherds on the hills of Judea. Whenever Christmas comes we are thrilled again by the story told in the gospel of St. Matthew and by the glory of that ancient light the Christmas Star.

John Wright featured the Christmas Star in his first arrangement. The "Container" was a three-dimensional clear plastic star, that is free - standing. Curved branches of gilded holly were placed in the openings in a diagonal position. Clusters of small and large gold Christmas baubles emphasized the line. A white camellia was placed in the center. The elegant simplicity in this design made it quite distinctive. Designed for a small buffet.

Camellias were featured in the dramatic holiday arrangement for a large living room table. A large, flat brown bowl of modern ceramic ware held the vertical placements of juniper. A triangular effect was produced by emphasizing the line and placement on either side, low in the design, of brilliant Empress camellias.

The purity of a White Christmas was featured in the next design. A low white bowl of Chinese origin contained a triangular design of white snow berries. Transitional material was white vinca with their glossy green leaves. Massed low in the design were white camellias.

My wish for you all is a happy and joyful Christmas.



CHRISTMAS TREE OF SOAPSUDS—The family TV set or dining table can have its own tree made of coiled chicken wire covered with suds "snow" and holiday candies.

SUDS SNOW BALL—This little girl is making sure she'll have a white Christmas by whipping up her own supply of "snow." Using packaged soap or detergent, she can make snow that won't melt or evaporate. Here she is forming glittering ornaments for the tree.

Kids Have White Xmas With Soap

Whether your Christmas will be a glistening one depends upon the whim of the weatherman. But you can guarantee the kiddies a White Christmas inside the house, at any rate.

Any household has the makings of snow — and plenty of it — in every package of soap or detergent. With the aid of your electric mixer or rotary beater, you can whip up enough suds "snow" to turn the entire house into a white winter wonderland. Best of all, this kind of snow won't melt into oozy puddles. Be your own Jack Frost if this gentleman has so unkindly refused to pay you a timely visit. And the kiddies will be only too happy to pinch-hit for his team of busy elves. As elves, they have magic powers, naturally. They know that Santa must have snow for Christmas, so—abracadabra — they get to work manufacturing some snow!

As Jack Frost, of course, you're custodian of the "secret formula." Pour a handful or two of packaged soap or detergent into a mixing bowl, add a small amount of water, beat until it reaches the consistency of a super-stiff meringue —and presto! A huge mound of fresh-fallen "snow!" The kiddies will want to make snowballs first of all, of course. Let them dig right into the mass of thick fluff and mold large balls with their hands, placing them on a bread board to dry. Stick a double length of gay Christmas cord in the center of each snowball, sprinkle liberally with glitter, allow to harden, and hang them on the Christmas tree.

Mold a special giant snowball around a looped length of wire attached to a large button or circle of cardboard. When almost dry, press in sprigs of mistletoe, and thread wide red ribbon through the upper loop of the wire. Tie a big satin bow through the lower loop of the wire and dangle a glittering tree ornament from it as a finishing touch for this king-sized "kissing trap." The mischevious elves can hang it in the stair well, in an arch or doorway, or wherever the mistletoe penalty can be collected easily and often. Then it's up to the girls to do the strategic maneuvering.

The kiddies can use wooden spoons to apply white drifts of "snow" to tree branches, wreaths, and pine boughs. These will dry to a realistic texture and last until the tree is taken down. And the glittering snowballs can even be packed away with the other ornaments for the next year.

tening suds "snow" for centerpiece decorations. Place a large circle of cardboard or plastic sheeting in the middle of your holiday table, use it as a base for building a large ring of suds "snow," and edge it with a wreath of pine boughs. When hardened, this snowy "nest" can do double duty — as a punchbowl setting for buffet parties, or filled with a

Whip up another batch of gliscolorful array of Christmas tree balls for sit-down meals.

To make a gay "snow" tree, twist chicken wire into a cone, then cover with a thick application of thickly beaten suds spread on with a spatula. While still damp, press in gay hard candies, gold and silver balls, or gum drops and top with a few candy canes. Set your yum-yum tree on a ring of pine drifted generously with more "snow." It not only looks festive on a buffet or dining table, but can also be used to dress up the family TV set.

Even the smallest fry like to make their own "Merry Christmas" decorations and suds "snow" will provide the makings of good clean fun. Spread newspapers on the floor and provide a sheet of red or green paper or oilcloth to serve as a "canvas." Let the youngsters take turns whipping up the batches of sudsy "paint," then use this stiff white mixture to print Chrstmas messages. Glitter can be sprinkled on the letters before the "paint" dries. Another variation is to tint the "paint" with red or green food coloring.

By stirring soap, detergent — or scouring powder — with a little water, you can make another excellent "paint" to draw Christmas and glass doors. After the Holi e with these can be erased with a damp cloth, leaving the glass shining clean.

Here Are Hints On Feeding Of Winter Birds

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We have pigeon trouble — our own personal pigeons — and while I like them, I wish they'd go back to whatever park or courthouse they came from.

We have sparrows, starlings, robins, bluejays, thrushes, cardinals, Baltimore orioles, redpolls, tufted titmice, nuthatches, chickadees and a lot of other birds, but piegons we never had before. They are city birds, and the day early last summer when I spotted the first one at the base of the largest feeder you would have thought I'd spotted a Florida bananaquit.

"Now there's a clever bird," I said proudly (people who feed birds always are proud when they see something unusual at their feeder; it gives them a feeling of personal accomplishment). "He's taking a summer vacation from the city."

Maybe, but the wise bird flew home and returned with his entire family. Now I am feeding a dozen pigeons, all marked in exactly the same way. Pigeons are hearty eaters and they take the seed from the smaller birds. They also like to sit on the television antennae which hums like a dynamo through the house when they leave it.

Even with the pigeons, feeding wild birds is one of the most pleasant chores of country living. We have gradually expanded our bird restaurant to four seed feeders and several suet wire cages. The seed feeders take about 10 pounds of seed a week — which is a lot of seed. But what are you going to do when you are also maintaining four squirrels as well as that flock of escapees from the city? This seed we buy in 100 pound bags, which cuts down the cost considerably

Our butcher keeps us supplied with free suet, and during the cold weather months we save meat drippings, bacon fat and such, letting it harden in small aluminum plates and then put it out for the fat - eating birds — among them woodpeckers, nuthatches, chickadees.

We live close by a brook, so we don't provide our birds with water in winter. But those who do may keep their bird baths from freezing by adding a small amount of glycerine.

On the general business of supply food, we supplement their seed and fat with crumbs of stale bread, bits of pastry — even stale doughnuts. My birds, however, don't seem to relish potato chips, unless wet, which softens them and removes some of the salt.

When snow comes and covers the natural sources of bird food, we increase the seed and fat supplies. I clean an area beneath the feeders so groundfeeders like cardinals have a spot to eat. We have many cats and dogs in the neighborhood, so I have this open feeding area in the center of the lawn to prevent predators from sneaking up on the birds.

Trees Symbol Of Holidays

By Euna Spielman

Christmas trees probably add more to mark the period of "peace on earth — good will toward men" than any other product of the soil. Indoors and outdoors Christmas trees have become essential for decorative purposes in the homes, in the parks and on the streets, in churches and business houses. The spreading branches serve most fillingly too, as a delightful hiding for Santa Claus' presents. Since our Christmas is important to us there are many other noteworthy living Christmas trees.

Living Christmas Trees

Probably the best known Christmas tree is the one lighted annually by the President of the United States at appropriate ceremonies in Washington, D. C. This Christmas Eve program was first begun in 1923 when a fir tree shipped from Vermont was set up on the steps of the Capitol. In 1924, a 35 foot living Norway spruce provided by a New York nursery under the supervision of the American Forestry Association, was planted in Sherman Square south of the Treasury, near the White House. This tree was dedicated to the Nation as a National Living Christmas Tree. Later it was replaced with another living tree of like size and species. In 1934, the ceremonies centered around a living Norway spruce in Lafayette Park across from the White House. Since 1941, the National Christmas Tree has been one of two oriental spruce trees thriving on the south lawn of the White House. These trees are now about 35 feet tall. Each state is represented in the decorations by having one of the large colored glass balls named for it.

The living Christmas tree with the greatest limb spread is not a conifer at all, but a 300 year-old live oak, approximately 90 feet tall, with a branch spread of 110 feet and a trunk circumference of 15 feet. It is growing in Halton Park, Wilmington, N. C. At Christmas time it displays 7,000 colored lights and 6 tons of Spanish moss.

In 1951 (latest survey) thirty million Christmas trees were distributed in the United States. Of this number 935,142 Christmas trees were cut from our national forests and 9,758,218 were imported from Canada. Others came from Christmas tree plantations.

A Simple Sweet

After eating so many sweets, you'll love this next one which is tart yet sweet.

Apricot Coconut Balls

1½ cups dried apricots, ground; 2 cups shredded coconut; two-thirds cup Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk; Confectioners' sugar. Combine apricots and coconut. Add Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk and blend well. Shape into small balls and roll in confectioners' sugar, if desired. Let stand until firm.

Buy Safe Toys

When selecting toys for the children's Christmas, avoid those which are hazardous. For small children, two and younger, toys should be simple, small, soft and washable as stuffed animals, blocks, and push and pull toys.

As the child grows older he will like larger stuffed animals. Brightly colored books, blocks and beads for stringing are popular with the two-to-four age. Because children want to imitate the adults in their world, housekeeping equipment, trains, trucks and costumes make excellent selections.

For the four-to-six year old, consider paints, crayons, clay, construction sets, mechanical toys, books, sports equipment and pedal cars. The six-to-eight year old will enjoy craft and hobby equipment, puzzles, games, electric trains and gym equipment, according to the agent.

Before purchasing a toy, examine its shape and construction to be sure it will not cut or otherwise injure the child. Be sure there are no slender parts which could be inserted in the nose, ear or mouth. Safe toys should be made of materials which will not break into sharp, jagged edges. Electrical toys should bear the Underwriter's Laboratory label of approval. Do not purchase toys made of flammable materials, and avoid those with small detachable parts which could be swallowed.

Dorothy Perkins Is Much Insulted Rose

By ANNABEL ATKINSON PANKEY

In this highly - hybrid rose age you can seldom say "Dorothy Perkins" without calling forth some unkind remark.

Of all the roses I know, I don't believe any has been so maligned in Louisiana or anywhere else for that matter, as this lovely beauty. I am thoroughly bored with hearing her besmirched by a bunch of lazy gardeners who don't know how to treat a lady!

Dorothy Perkins is a rose which I have known well for over seventeen years. She has charmed me ever since we moved to our present home (a rambling old post - bellum North Louisiana house in the country) and found her tumbling in masses of pink blossoms down an embankment.

Completely unaware that the flower had a poor reputation, I was delighted to have her. And after blooming season, I dug up rooted runners and scattered them far and wide, as the seed-sowers say.

One day while I was happily engrossed with my digging, a neighbor called and astounded me by expressing her horror in this vein:

"Do you mean to tell me that you're putting out Dorothy Perkins roses! I wouldn't have one on my place! You'll be sorry — most years the blooms won't look like anything!"

"Why, for goodness sakes?" I asked.

"Mildew, of course. They're full of it — why it gets all over them — they're no good. Just wait and see! Besides, they take the place!"

And my friend left with a look on her face which said plainly, "Of all the fools!"

But, being stubborn, I went blithely ahead scattering Dorothy on fences and terraces.

Then spring came with its rains. It rained and rained. And one day I noticed a fine film of gray on leaf and bud. It was enough to dampen a large amount of enthusiasm, but I got busy with the best remedy I knew — dusting sulphur. I dusted far and wide, using a number of packaged garden quanities.

"Maybe that woman was right," I thought, but I kept on dusting every few days. Sometimes I dusted early in the morning and sometimes late in the afternoon; but I dusted!

May came and with it bloom time. The blooms were simply gorgeous — great massive clusters hung everywhere on parent vines and the foliage was a lush, smooth green.

Since that May, I have planted many more Dorothys — white, "red" and pink varieties — until now they not only cover wire fences near the front of the house but form, on a tall, semi-circular woven fence behind our house, a striking backdrop for our bearded irises.

Every year people come to the garden to see Dorothy Perkins flower and though the season is brief, only about two weeks, it is intense. Often there are thousands of blooms. Beauty is everywhere — up trees — in hedges — down embankments. And, after years of dusting, I don't seem to fight mildew as hard as I used to — I have learned to dust before the onset of the disease.

I never cultivate Dorothy, though I do pull grass from around her feet occasionally. I apply no fertilizer, having found that the best policy in handling this wonderful old - fashioned girl is to just let her feet alone and care for her head.

Of course, I do cut out dead wood and weave new runners in and out of the mesh of the fences so that the effect of a sheet of bloom from top to bottom is attained.

There is nothing in the entire rose world, in my opinion, which surpasses her lavish generosity of bloom. Her foliage, when disease free, has a gloss which is exceptional. In our area she is almost evergreen and therefore has many landscape uses.

Of course, Dorothy uses perfume very conservatively. Indeed, a rose by some other name may be sweeter, but "Beauty is as beauty does" and Miss Perkins does very well—thank you!

NAILABLE ASBESTOS BOARD

Nails can be driven through most thicknesses of asbestos-cement board the same as through wood. Sheets of extra heavy thickness should be pre-drilled.

PROUD OF HOMES

Home ownership is the highest in the long history of our nation, reports the Bureau of Census, which says that 60 per cent of American families owned their own homes in 1956. This is much higher than the 55 per cent ownership reported in 1950. This report lead the West Coast Lumbermen's Association to comment that homes were still the best investment a family can make.

Family Closer At Christmas

By Mildred Swift

The real spirit of Christmas is sharing, giving of time as well as gifts. Members of the family will draw so much closer at this time of year if the preparations are shared by all. True, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Guerriero has truly given of her time, decorating the family tree, and making angels for the table. A masterpice of patience and talent is True's Hansel and Gretel house. Her mother ordered the pattern, and True took over from there. She used candy wafers for the roof, candy cigarettes for windows, licorice sticks for the front door, peppermint leaves and gum drops for shrubbery. I know True would like to have the children come by and see her house. You and your mother can plan one for next year.

Judy Searcy fashioned an exquisite tree arrangement for the Town and Country Garden Club coffee Friday morning. Mrs. Searcy is a member of the club. Judy's charm tree was a styrofoam ball base, covered with Easter grass and mesh wire. This wire ended in a skirt effect with a big pink balls covered the tree. Both girls are in grammar school, I'm not sure about their ages.

This same club used a pineapple arrangement on the coffee table. A fresh pineapple was gilded and on each point was a tiny Christmas ball. This was placed in a gold compote and ivy trailed around it.

Wish I could tell you about the Monroe Garden Club tour, but it was impossible for me to attend, and believe me, I know I missed a wonderful treat. There's so much talent there, and as for that, in the entire Ouachita parish.

Daylilies

There's no more satisfactory plant than the daylily and believe me you can get them now in almost any color. They'll live when neglected, and bloom. They'll thrive with a little fertilizing and care. The best effect is obtained when you use masses of the same color, together. They're lovely in groups along garden paths; as ground covers on slopes; as a ground cover for large areas to take the place of grass.

Mrs. Jardine and I were flattered that Mrs. Leona Murthrey, Slack Avenue, West Monroe, named two of her seedlings the "Mary Jardine" and the "Mildred Swift". These will be on the market next year. We are anxiously waiting to see the blooms from the plants named for us.

Here and There

Since the poinsettia is the flower - of - the - month, and you may receive one as a Christmas gift, you'll be interested in this advice from the experts. They say the blossom can be satisfactorily cut and kept from one to three weeks, depending on the woodiness of the stem. Here's how to do it. Soak your plant heavily overnight so that the stems have absorbed as much water as possible. Then cut the stems and dip them in denatured alcohol for from 3 to 5 minutes — no longer. This sears or seals off the ends and your poinsettias should stay crisp for days.

Well — it looks as though the chemise is here to stay, according to the new spring showings. Most of the sack dresses shown hung straight from the shoulder, with interest off the waist and centered around the hips and hemline. Skirts were definitely shorter, heels lower, gloves longer and jewelry a very strong accent.

Well, chemises or not, spring is going to be a colorful season. Most favored color — a vivid daffodil yellow, with ripe orange following a close second. Subtle shades of apricot and deep coral are good, too, as are the electric blues and emerald greens. And there's at least one familiar note: Navy blue and white with touches of red will be as smart in 1958 as ever.

The leading hair stylists say that the shorter skirts leave us no alternative but shorter hair to maintain figure proportions. It doesn't have to be a mannish-looking coiffure, though, they say. Hair can be shortly cropped and still look feminine. Bangs are back.

Something new is the Nottingham spun rayon lace blanket. This has the appearance and feel of wool but all the advantages of lace. These should be on the market soon.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Mrs. Audrey Dawson from Ouachita will do some Christmas cooking; Tuesday, from 12:00 to 12:30, KNOE personnel will use the time for their Christmas party; Wednesday, we'll all be with our families and there will be no Open House program; Thursday, we'll do some landscaping; Friday is marketing and food preparation day.

Merry Christmas to each of you. I enjoy these Sunday visits with you. Remember next year we'll also visit together through "Spotlight on Foods" each Thursday in the News - Star and each Friday in the Morning World.

See you next Sunday.

BIG THREE

The three most important parts of the house, says the Southern Pine Association, are the joists that support the floors, the studs supporting the walls and the rafters which carry the weight of the roof. They are all made with lumber, and when the lumber is "dry" there's an extra safety factor in added stiffness and strength.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Species Of Holly Named

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

We, in the South are beginning to discover that there are many different kinds of holly trees and bushes from over the world. We know our own native American holly, yaupon, dahoon, gallberry and swamp gallberry. We are familiar with the English holly of poetry and song, and Chinese holly has become extremely popular in the past few years. The black-fruited Ilex crenata is a holly, too — Japanese holly. Then there are numbers of other kinds of holly now coming becoming available to us through the nurseries.

Pick up the catalogues of Southern nurseries, and you will find some of the world's most beautiful hollies that have originated right here. The popular Burford variety of the Chinese holly is a Southerner said to be an Atlantan. Our own Dr. Hume, author of the book on hollies, working with the Glen Saint Mary Nurseries in Florida, brought into cultivation several holly varieties that are very popular today. Howard is a heavy producer of berries that sometimes has several berries on one stalk! Hume No. 2 is one of the heaviest berriers, if we may coin a word.

East Palatka is in favor for the same reason and because the smallish leaves show off the huge crops of berries well. A specimen of East Palatka is a sight to see at this time of the year. Dr. Hume's Lake City has orange fruit. He got his Katz from The Katz garden of Covington, La., his yellow berried Marion from Marion County, South Carolina and his columnar or upright growing taber no. 3, he says may have come from a Tennessee nursery.

These are but a few of the gorgeous hollies you can see in gardens and yards throughout the South right now. Another favorite of all who see it is the variety called Croonenberg which was discovered by the Greenbrier Nurseries at Great Bridge, Virginia, near Norfolk. The Thrashers moved the original tree to their nursery in spite of the fact that it was a tremendous old specimen.

For a long time, we had the idea, here in the South, that we could not grow the many fine varieties of English holly. We can. The variegated and fancy leaved varieties need shade to develop and prevent sun-scald. In fact, all of the English hollies do best in some shade. They have to be watched in time of drouth especially while they are young. No one in his right mind would neglect one of these gorgeous things, however, for they are just like horticultural jewelry. Your columnist can see the great holly walk at Kew Gardens in London right now! He still has his notebook in which he traced a leaf of every single kind there many years ago.

One of the best Christmas presents one gardener can give another is a tiny potted holly of some kind.

Shining Star Is Symbolic

By Mary M. Jardine

The Christmas Star

Men, for centuries, have revered the stars as God's work — "The moon and the stars, which thou has ordained"; and the Christmas star of "Star ofBethlehem" is a favorite Yuletide symbol. Christ's coming was foretold in Numbers 24:17. "There shall come a Star out of Jacob"; and in Revelation 22:16, HHe is called "The bright nd morning star."

The star, too, is always associated with the story of the Wise Men. In Matthew 2:9 and 10 we read, "Lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joyl."

In our stately carol, "We Three Kings of Orient Are," the poet hails it as

Star of wonder, star of night
Star with royal beauty bright
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to thy perfect light.

Others have also praised it in such songs as "Star in the East" "O Star of Bethlehem," "The Star of Midnight, "The Wise Men Saw a Light Afar," and "O Lovely Star That Shone So Bright."

A lighted star is a popular Yuletide decoration in many churches. When one sits in a darkened sanctuary, and suddenly a brilliant star flashes on, we are vividly reminded of that first Christmas night.

At the holidays in our homes, places of honor are given to stars, at the top of the Christmas tree, in windows, or on porches. Candles glow in star shaped holders; cookies are baked in this shape; and the stars add beauty and meaning to Christmas wrappings and greeting cards.

In smoe lands, including Spain Italy and Russia, the people would wait until the first star appeared on Christmas eve before beginning their Yuletide celebration. Sometimes, at this season, European girls went out to the fields to pray to the stars to bring them husbands. At the feast day of the Three Kings (January 6) "Star-Singing" — mentioned in connection with the Magi is still carried on. Tyrolean boys dress as the Wise Men, shepherds and Herod with his retinue. The procession is led by a man bearing a star - shaped lantern on a long pole. This lamp, lighted by candles, revolves as it is carried along. When the "Star singers" stop at a home, they stamp on the ground in insure good crops, sing their carols, and receive coins, cakes or drinks.

The custom of following the stars or the "Star - singers" is also popular in Sweden, Oberammergau, Roumania, Poland and members of the Greek Church in Alaska still continue this old European tradition.

All over the United States, cities feature stars in the special Christmas lighting. Some, several feet across, shine at the tops of community Christmas trees, shedding their light around for a long distance. Notable examples of cities featuring the Christmas star are Palmer Lake, Colorado, Van Nuys California and Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Each Christmas, planetariums, including the Hayden in New York and the Griffith in Los Angeles, present displays of the "Christmas Sky." It is a thrilling arrangement of the heavens with the stars, moon, and planets in the same positions they held at the time of Christ's birth. As you watch this inspiring spectacle, you can almost imagine you are with the shepherds on the hills of Judea. Whenever Christmas comes we are thrilled again by the story told in the gospel of St. Matthew and by the glory of that ancient light the Christmas Star.

John Wright featured the Christmas Star in his first arrangement. The "Container" was a three-dimensional clear plastic star, that is free - standing. Curved branches of gilded holly were placed in the openings in a diagonal position. Clusters of small and large gold Christmas baubles emphasized the line. A white camellia was placed in the center. The elegant simplicity in this design made it quite distinctive. Designed for a small buffet.

Camellias were featured in the dramatic holiday arrangement for a large living room table. A large, flat brown bowl of modern ceramic ware held the vertical placements of juniper. A triangular effect was produced by emphasizing the line and placement on either side, low in the design, of brilliant Empress camellias.

The purity of a White Christmas was featured in the next design. A low white bowl of Chinese origir contained a triangular design of white snow berries. Transitional material was white vinca with their glossy green leaves. Massed low in the design were white camellias.

My wish for you all is a happy and joyful Christmas.

CHRISTMAS TREE OF SOAPSUDS—The family TV set or dining table can have its own tree made of coiled chicken wire covered with suds "snow" and holiday candies.

SUDS SNOW BALL—This little girl is making sure she'll have a white Christmas by whipping up her own supply of "snow." Using packaged soap or detergent, she can make snow that won't melt or evaporate. Here she is forming glittering ornaments for the tree.

Kids Have White Xmas With Soap

Whether your Christmas will be a glistening one depends upon the whim of the weatherman. But you can guarantee the kiddies a White Christmas inside the house, at any rate.

Any household has the makings of snow — and plenty of it — in every package of soap or detergent. With the aid of your electric mixer or rotary beater, you can whip up enough suds "snow" to turn the entire house into a white winter wonderland. Best of all, this kind of snow won't melt into oozy puddles. Be your own Jack Frost if this gentleman has so unkindly refused to pay you a timely visit. And the kiddies will be only too happy to pinch-hit for his team of busy elves. As elves, they have magic powers, naturally. They know that Santa must have snow for Christmas, so—abracadabra — they get to work manufacturing some snow!

As Jack Frost, of course, you're custodian of the "secret formula." Pour a handful or two of packaged soap or detergent into a mixing bowl, add a small amount of water, beat until it reaches the consistency of a super-stiff meringue —and presto! A huge mound of fresh-fallen "snow!" The kiddies will want to make snowballs first of all, of course. Let them dig right into the mass of thick fluff and mold large balls with their hands, placing them on a bread board to dry. Stick a double length of gay Christmas cord in the center of each snowball, sprinkle liberally with glitter, allow to harden, and hang them on the Christmas tree.

Mold a special giant snowball around a looped length of wire attached to a large button or circle of cardboard. When almost dry, press in sprigs of mistletoe, and thread wide red ribbon through the upper loop of the wire. Tie a big satin bow through the lower loop of the wire and dangle a glittering tree ornament from it as a finishing touch for this king-sized "kissing trap." The mischevious elves can hang it in the stair well, in an arch or doorway, or wherever the mistletoe penalty can be collected easily and often. Then it's up to the girls to do the strategic maneuvering.

The kiddies can use wooden spoons to apply white drifts of "snow" to tree branches, wreaths, and pine boughs. These will dry to a realistic texture and last until the tree is taken down. And the glittering snowballs can even be packed away with the other ornaments for the next year.

tening suds "snow" for centerpiece decorations. Place a large circle of cardboard or plastic sheeting in the middle of your holiday table, use it as a base for building a large ring of suds "snow," and edge it with a wreath of pine boughs. When hardened, this snowy "nest" can do double duty — as a punchbowl setting for buffet parties, or filled with a

Whip up another batch of glis-colorful array of Christmas tree balls for sit-down meals.

To make a gay "snow" tree, twist chicken wire into a cone, then cover with a thick application of thickly beaten suds spread on with a spatula. While still damp, press in gay hard candies, gold and silver balls, or gum drops and top with a few candy canes. Set your yum-yum tree on a ring of pine drifted generously with more "snow." It not only looks festive on a buffet or dining table, but can also be used to dress up the family TV set.

Even the smallest fry like to make their own "Merry Christmas" decorations and suds "snow" will provide the makings of good clean fun. Spread newspapers on the floor and provide a sheet of red or green paper or oilcloth to serve as a "canvas." Let the youngsters take turns whipping up the batches of sudsy "paint," then use this stiff white mixture to print Chrstmas messages. Glitter can be sprinkled on the letters before the "paint" dries. Another variation is to tint the "paint" with red or green food coloring.

By stirring soap, detergent — or scouring powder — with a little water, you can make another excellent "paint" to draw Christmas and glass doors. After the Holi-days these can be erased with a damp cloth, leaving the glass shining clean.

Here Are Hints On Feeding Of Winter Birds

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We have pigeon trouble — our own personal pigeons — and while I like them, I wish they'd go back to whatever park or courthouse they came from.

We have sparrows, starlings, robins, bluejays, thrushes, cardinals, Baltimore orioles, redpolls, tufted titmice, nuthatches, chickadees and a lot of other birds, but piegons we never had before. They are city birds, and the day early last summer when I spotted the first one at the base of the largest feeder you would have thought I'd spotted a Florida bananaquit.

"Now there's a clever bird," I said proudly (people who feed birds always are proud when they see something unusual at their feeder; it gives them a feeling of personal accomplishment). "He's taking a summer vacation from the city."

Maybe, but the wise bird flew home and returned with his entire family. Now I am feeding a dozen pigeons, all marked in exactly the same way. Pigeons are hearty eaters and they take the seed from the smaller birds. They also like to sit on the television antennae which hums like a dynamo through the house when they leave it.

Even with the pigeons, feeding wild birds is one of the most pleasant chores of country living. We have gradually expanded our bird restaurant to four seed feeders and several suet wire cages. The seed feeders take about 10 pounds of seed a week — which is a lot of seed. But what are you going to do when you are also maintaining four squirrels as well as that flock of escapees from the city? This seed we buy in 100 pound bags, which cuts down the cost considerably

Our butcher keeps us supplied with free suet, and during the cold weather months we save meat drippings, bacon fat and such, letting it harden in small aluminum plates and then put it out for the fat - eating birds — among them woodpeckers, nuthatches, chickadees.

We live close by a brook, so we don't provide our birds with water in winter. But those who do may keep their bird baths from freezing by adding a small amount of glycerine.

On the general business of supply food, we supplement their seed and fat with crumbs of stale bread, bits of pastry — even stale doughnuts. My birds, however, don't seem to relish potato chips, unless wet, which softens them and removes some of the salt.

When snow comes and covers the natural sources of bird food, we increase the seed and fat supplies. I clean an area beneath the feeders so groundfeeders like cardinals have a spot to eat. We have many cats and dogs in the neighborhood, so I have this open feeding area in the center of the lawn to prevent predators from sneaking up on the birds.

Trees Symbol Of Holidays

By Euna Spielman

Christmas trees probably add more to mark the period of "peace on earth — good will toward men" than any other product of the soil. Indoors and outdoors Christmas trees have become essential for decorative purposes in the homes, in the parks and on the streets, in churches and business houses. The spreading branches serve most fillingly too, as a delightful hiding for Santa Claus' presents. Since our Christmas is important to us there are many other noteworthy living Christmas trees.

Living Christmas Trees

Probably the best known Christmas tree is the one lighted annually by the President of the United States at appropriate ceremonies in Washington, D. C. This Christmas Eve program was first begun in 1923 when a fir tree shipped from Vermont was set up on the steps of the Capitol. In 1924, a 35 foot living Norway spruce provided by a New York nursery under the supervision of the American Forestry Association, was planted in Sherman Square south of the Treasury, near the White House. This tree was dedicated to the Nation as a National Living Christmas Tree. Later it was replaced with another living tree of like size and species. In 1934, the ceremonies centered around a living Norway spruce in Lafayette Park across from the White House. Since 1941, the National Christmas Tree has been one of two oriental spruce trees thriving on the south lawn of the White House. These trees are now about 35 feet tall. Each state is represented in the decorations by having one of the large colored glass balls named for it.

The living Christmas tree with the greatest limb spread is not a conifer at all, but a 300 year-old live oak, approximately 90 feet tall, with a branch spread of 110 feet and a trunk circumference of 15 feet. It is growing in Halton Park, Wilmington, N. C. At Christmas time it displays 7,000 colored lights and 6 tons of Spanish moss.

In 1951 (latest survey) thirty million Christmas trees were distributed in the United States. Of this number 935,142 Christmas trees were cut from our national forests and 9,758,218 were imported from Canada. Others came from Christmas tree plantations.

A Simple Sweet

After eating so many sweets, you'll love this next one which is tart yet sweet.

Apricot Coconut Balls

1½ cups dried apricots, ground; 2 cups shredded coconut; two-thirds cup Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk; Confectioners' sugar. Combine apricots and coconut. Add Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk and blend well. Shape into small balls and roll in confectioners' sugar, if desired. Let stand until firm.

Buy Safe Toys

When selecting toys for the children's Christmas, avoid those which are hazardous. For small children, two and younger, toys should be simple, small, soft and washable as stuffed animals, blocks, and push and pull toys.

As the child grows older he will like larger stuffed animals. Brightly colored books, blocks and beads for stringing are popular with the two-to-four age. Because children want to imitate the adults in their world, housekeeping equipment, trains, trucks and costumes make excellent selections.

For the four-to-six year old, consider paints, crayons, clay, construction sets, mechanical toys, books, sports equipment and pedal cars. The six-to-eight year old will enjoy craft and hobby equipment, puzzles, games, electric trains and gym equipment, according to the agent.

Before purchasing a toy, examine its shape and construction to be sure it will not cut or otherwise injure the child. Be sure there are no slender parts which could be inserted in the nose, ear or mouth. Safe toys should be made of materials which will not break into sharp, jagged edges. Electrical toys should bear the Underwriter's Laboratory label of approval. Do not purchase toys made of flammable materials, and avoid those with small detachable parts which could be swallowed.

Dorothy Perkins Is Much Insulted Rose

By ANNABEL ATKINSON PANKEY

In this highly - hybrid rose age you can seldom say "Dorothy Perkins" without calling forth some unkind remark.

Of all the roses I know, I don't believe any has been so maligned in Louisiana or anywhere else for that matter, as this lovely beauty. I am thoroughly bored with hearing her besmirched by a bunch of lazy gardeners who don't know how to treat a lady!

Dorothy Perkins is a rose which I have known well for over seventeen years. She has charmed me ever since we moved to our present home (a rambling old post - bellum North Louisiana house in the country) and found her tumbling in masses of pink blossoms down an embankment.

Completely unaware that the flower had a poor reputation, I was delighted to have her. And after blooming season, I dug up rooted runners and scattered them far and wide, as the seed-sowers say.

One day while I was happily engrossed with my digging, a neighbor called and astounded me by expressing her horror in this vein:

"Do you mean to tell me that you're putting out Dorothy Perkins roses! I wouldn't have one on my place! You'll be sorry — most years the blooms won't look like anything!"

"Why, for goodness sakes?" I asked.

"Mildew, of course. They're full of it — why it gets all over them — they're no good. Just wait and see! Besides, they take the place!"

And my friend left with a look on her face which said plainly, "Of all the fools!"

But, being stubborn, I went blithely ahead scattering Dorothy on fences and terraces.

Then spring came with its rains. It rained and rained. And one day I noticed a fine film of gray on leaf and bud. It was enough to dampen a large amount of enthusiasm, but I got busy with the best remedy I knew — dusting sulphur. I dusted far and wide, using a number of packaged garden quanities.

"Maybe that woman was right," I thought, but I kept on dusting every few days. Sometimes I dusted early in the morning and sometimes late in the afternoon; but I dusted!

May came and with it bloom time. The blooms were simply gorgeous — great massive clusters hung everywhere on parent vines and the foliage was a lush, smooth green.

Since that May, I have planted many more Dorothys — white, "red" and pink varieties — until now they not only cover wire fences near the front of the house but form, on a tall, semi-circular woven fence behind our house, a striking backdrop for our bearded irises.

Every year people come to the garden to see Dorothy Perkins flower and though the season is brief, only about two weeks, it is intense. Often there are thousands of blooms. Beauty is everywhere — up trees — in hedges — down embankments. And, after years of dusting, I don't seem to fight mildew as hard as I used to — I have learned to dust before the onset of the disease.

I never cultivate Dorothy, though I do pull grass from around her feet occasionally. I apply no fertilizer, having found that the best policy in handling this wonderful old - fashioned girl is to just let her feet alone and care for her head.

Of course, I do cut out dead wood and weave new runners in and out of the mesh of the fences so that the effect of a sheet of bloom from top to bottom is attained.

There is nothing in the entire rose world, in my opinion, which surpasses her lavish generosity of bloom. Her foliage, when disease free, has a gloss which is exceptional. In our area she is almost evergreen and therefore has many landscape uses.

Of course, Dorothy uses perfume very conservatively. Indeed, a rose by some other name may be sweeter, but "Beauty is as beauty does" and Miss Perkins does very well—thank you!

NAILABLE ASBESTOS BOARD

Nails can be driven through most thicknesses of asbestos-cement board the same as through wood. Sheets of extra heavy thickness should be pre-drilled.

PROUD OF HOMES

Home ownership is the highest in the long history of our nation, reports the Bureau of Census, which says that 60 per cent of American families owned their own homes in 1956. This is much higher than the 55 per cent ownership reported in 1950. This report lead the West Coast Lumbermen's Association to comment that homes were still the best investment a family can make.

Family Closer At Christmas

By Mildred Swift

The real spirit of Christmas is sharing, giving of time as well as gifts. Members of the family will draw so much closer at this time of year if the preparations are shared by all. True, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Guerriero has truly given of her time, decorating the family tree, and making angels for the table. A masterpice of patience and talent is True's Hansel and Gretel house. Her mother ordered the pattern, and True took over from there. She used candy wafers for the roof, candy cigarettes for windows, licorice sticks for the front door, peppermint leaves and gum drops for shrubbery. I know True would like to have the children come by and see her house. You and your mother can plan one for next year.

Judy Searcy fashioned an exquisite tree arrangement for the Town and Country Garden Club coffee Friday morning. Mrs. Searcy is a member of the club. Judy's charm tree was a styrofoam ball base, covered with Easter grass and mesh wire. This wire ended in a skirt effect with a big pink balls covered the tree. Both girls are in grammar school, I'm not sure about their ages.

This same club used a pineapple arrangement on the coffee table. A fresh pineapple was gilded and on each point was a tiny Christmas ball. This was placed in a gold compote and ivy trailed around it.

Wish I could tell you about the Monroe Garden Club tour, but it was impossible for me to attend, and believe me, I know I missed a wonderful treat. There's so much talent there, and as for that, in the entire Ouachita parish.

Daylilies

There's no more satisfactory plant than the daylily and believe me you can get them now in almost any color. They'll live when neglected, and bloom. They'll thrive with a little fertilizing and care. The best effect is obtained when you use masses of the same color, together. They're lovely in groups along garden paths; as ground covers on slopes; as a ground cover for large areas to take the place of grass.

Mrs. Jardine and I were flattered that Mrs. Leona Murthrey, Slack Avenue, West Monroe, named two of her seedlings the "Mary Jardine" and the "Mildred Swift". These will be on the market next year. We are anxiously waiting to see the blooms from the plants named for us.

Here and There

Since the poinsettia is the flower - of - the - month, and you may receive one as a Christmas gift, you'll be interested in this advice from the experts. They say the blossom can be satisfactorily cut and kept from one to three weeks, depending on the woodiness of the stem. Here's how to do it. Soak your plant heavily overnight so that the stems have absorbed as much water as possible. Then cut the stems and dip them in denatured alcohol for from 3 to 5 minutes — no longer. This sears or seals off the ends and your poinsettias should stay crisp for days.

Well — it looks as though the chemise is here to stay, according to the new spring showings. Most of the sack dresses shown hung straight from the shoulder, with interest off the waist and centered around the hips and hemline. Skirts were definitely shorter, heels lower, gloves longer and jewelry a very strong accent.

Well, chemises or not, spring is going to be a colorful season. Most favored color — a vivid daffodil yellow, with ripe orange following a close second. Subtle shades of apricot and deep coral are good, too, as are the electric blues and emerald greens. And there's at least one familiar note: Navy blue and white with touches of red will be as smart in 1958 as ever.

The leading hair stylists say that the shorter skirts leave us no alternative but shorter hair to maintain figure proportions. It doesn't have to be a mannish-looking coiffure, though, they say. Hair can be shortly cropped and still look feminine. Bangs are back.

Something new is the Nottingham spun rayon lace blanket. This has the appearance and feel of wool but all the advantages of lace. These should be on the market soon.

BIG THREE

The three most important parts of the house, says the Southern Pine Association, are the joists that support the floors, the studs supporting the walls and the rafters which carry the weight of the roof. They are all made with lumber, and when the lumber is "dry" there's an extra safety factor in added stiffness and strength.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Species Of Holly Named

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

We, in the South are beginning to discover that there are many different kinds of holly trees and bushes from over the world. We know our own native American holly, yaupon, dahoon, gallberry and swamp gallberry. We are familiar with the English holly of poetry and song, and Chinese holly has become extremely popular in the past few years. The black-fruited Ilex crenata is a holly, too — Japanese holly. Then there are numbers of other kinds of holly now coming becoming available to us through the nurseries.

Pick up the catalogues of Southern nurseries, and you will find some of the world's most beautiful hollies that have originated right here. The popular Burford variety of the Chinese holly is a Southerner said to be an Atlantan. Our own Dr. Hume, author of the book on hollies, working with the Glen Saint Mary Nurseries in Florida, brought into cultivation several holly varieties that are very popular today. Howard is a heavy producer of berries that sometimes has several berries on one stalk! Hume No. 2 is one of the heaviest berriers, if we may coin a word.

East Palatka is in favor for the same reason and because the smallish leaves show off the huge crops of berries well. A specimen of East Palatka is a sight to see at this time of the year. Dr. Hume's Lake City has orange fruit. He got his Katz from The Katz garden of Covington, La., his yellow berried Marion from Marion County, South Carolina and his columnar or upright growing taber no. 3, he says may have come from a Tennessee nursery.

These are but a few of the gorgeous hollies you can see in gardens and yards throughout the South right now. Another favorite of all who see it is the variety called Croonenberg which was discovered by the Greenbrier Nurseries at Great Bridge, Virginia, near Norfolk. The Thrashers moved the original tree to their nursery in spite of the fact that it was a tremendous old specimen.

For a long time, we had the idea, here in the South, that we could not grow the many fine varieties of English holly. We can. The variegated and fancy leaved varieties need shade to develop and prevent sun-scald. In fact, all of the English hollies do best in some shade. They have to be watched in time of drouth especially while they are young. No one in his right mind would neglect one of these gorgeous things, however, for they are just like horticultural jewelry. Your columnist can see the great holly walk at Kew Gardens in London right now! He still has his notebook in which he traced a leaf of every single kind there many years ago.

One of the best Christmas presents one gardener can give another is a tiny potted holly of some kind.

FIREPLACE SCREENS

Asbestos board used as a fireplace screen is incombustible, tough and durable. It comes in an attractive natural gray. If desired, it can be painted.

Wide Selection Of Operas Are Available For Gifts

When Richard Wagner died in 1883 every member of the Munich symphony orchestra stood in silent tribute, except a talented horn player named Franz Strauss.

Strauss, who detested Wagner's music and was not afraid to tell the composer to his face, lived to see the day when his only son, Richard Strauss, was hailed as the logical successor to Wagner's throne and his most passionate imitator.

The elder Strauss, however, was dead before Richard finally deserted the style of the master and struck out on his own to explore new musical moods with a bold use of dissonance and flamboyant variations in orchestral technique.

In turning away from Wagner, Richard Strauss at one point — and many think the high point— in his career went full circle and returned to the light and fanciful era of Mozart.

The result was "Der Rosenkavalier," a lyrically beautiful opera sparkling with gay Viennese waltzes and sensuous rhythms. Premiered in 1911 in Dresden, it has been rightly called the last of the great operas in the grand opera tradition.

A new and wonderfully complete recording of "Der Rosenkavalier" has been released by Angel Records in time for the holiday season. Occupying eight full sides of four long playig records, it features the silver - sweet voice of soprano Elisabeth Schwarzkopf as the hapless Princess von Werdenberg, a role she now just about owns, and bass - baritone Otto Edelmann as the ludicrous Baron Ochs. In addition, mezzo - soprano Teresa Stich-Randall and conductor Herbert Von Karajan and the Philharmonia Orchestra and Chorus combine to make this one of the finest operatic recordings of the year.

Several other excellent opera recordings have hit the record stores in time for the Christmas buying rush.

RCA Victor continues its series of complete opera recordings with a superb performance of Puccini's "Tosca" by soprano Zinka Milanov, tenor Jussi Bjoerling, baritone Leonard Warren and the Rome Opera House Orchestra and Chorus under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf.

Opera's master of the qverture, Gioocchino Rossini, is given the full hi-fi treatment by Antal Dorati and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in a booming, bombastic and thoroughly enjoyable Mercury album.

Highlights from Rossini's finest opera, "The Barber of Seville," are engagingly recaptured by the RCA Victor Symphony Orchestra and Chorus and a host of soloists on an inexpensive RCA Camden album. Rossini's sprightly duets and quartets, particularly when heard only as highlights, make excellent calling cards for introducing younger members of the family to the delights of opera.

In a light operatic vein, Angel offers a new version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers" with the Glyndebourne Festival Chorus and the Pro Arte Orchestra conducted by Sir Malcolm Sargent. The album is a worthy competitor — though by no means a successor — to London Records' D'Oyly Carte production, which still has the edge in verve, styling and general all around excellence. True Gilbert and Sullivan fans, however, will want to hear both and make their own pick.

Coleman Plans To Amend Constitution

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP)—Gov. J.P. Coleman said yesterday he will give the 1958 Legislature a chance to repair Mississippi's 1890 constitution by amendments but said it will be a difficult job.

Coleman called a special session, which adjourned last week, for the main purpose of calling a constitutional convention. But the House killed the constitutional convention bill and 78 members signed a resolution asking for the "amendment route."

The governor said it will take at least two dozen amendments to provide constitutional safeguards against the civil rights act, to preserve segregated schools and to encourage industrialization.

Coleman has said thousands of "ungualified voters" — an obvious reference to Negroes — will seek voting rights under the civil rights act.

"Seventy-eight members of the House adopted the theory that our ills can be cured by amendments," the governor told his news conference. "I'm perfectly willing to sit back and give that theory an opportunity to make good and if amendments fail, I'll promptly renew our fight for a constitutional convention."

The 1958 regular session opens Jan. 7. Asked if he would call a special session afterward if the regular one does not provide the constitutional changes he wants, Coleman said:

"I do not wish to judge the matter in advance. It might be better to wait and submit the whole issue to the people in 1959."

The year 1959 is a major elective year. Coleman is barred by law from seeking re-election and there has been speculation on his future political course.

Coleman said the State Supreme Court has ruled that each constitutional amendment can cover only one specific subject.

"It will be very difficult to adopt the necessary amendments in view of those decisions," he said. "However, it will be my attitude to support all good amendments.

"The great obstacle — an almost impossible obstacle — is that these amendments will have to be undertaken without the necessary preliminary, painstaking research and planning" that would be a prelude to a constitutional convention.

"At the very best it will be most difficult to have something that will represent a unified, coordinated whole, which is the great advantage of a constitutional convention."

Coleman said the initiative is now up to those who advocate the amendment route and "I most assuredly won't throw any roadblocks in their way." He said "I just realize the inherent defects in such an approach."

HEARINGS MONDAY

Texas Eastern Tc Argue With FPC

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (UP)—Frustrated officials of Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Shreveport, have another date with the Federal Power Commission Monday and legal fur will fly.

Their quarrel isn't with the commission. It is with oil companies and barge line operators who went to court and blocked with a legal technicality the company's long-pending $50,000,000 expansion plan. The commission called a public hearing to iron it out.

A side issue of the dispute, but directly related to the proceedings, is a $32,235,000 damage suit in which Texas Eastern charged the bargemen, three oil companies and an individual with a monopolistic conspiracy to freeze it out of the midwestern oil and natural gas market.

The commission fully approved T. E.'s expansion plans last June but in so doing committed a legal oversight. When T. E. applied for the right to abandon its famous "Little Inch" natural gas pipeline, convert it to oil and build substitute gas facilities, both it and the commission treated the abandonment petition as an "initial application" to both abandon and build.

Barge line lawyers, well up on legal lore under the Administrative Procedures Act, complained in court that Texas Eastern still had to file an "initial" application because the two issues were separate.

Court Orders Hearing

The U.S. Court of Appeals here agreed with this after a hearing in which T. E. and the FPC's legal talent headed by general counsel Willard Gatchell inferred the bargemen and their co-defendants in the suit were purposely indulging in delaying tactics to prevent invasion of their market.

The court remanded the case to the commission for further proceedings, whereupon the commission called Monday's hearing.

The bargemen will be on hand, so a tense session is anticipated. A hearing examiner will preside but his decision will not be final until the commissioners give their approval. The commission hinted that this would be real soon "because of the time already consumed."

Texas Eastern launched its project in 1954. It and the commission thought everything was nicely wrapped up last June but a roadblock was in the way. The city of Pittsburgh charged in court that the FPC had failed to fully explore the consequences of Texas Eastern's plan and the court for the first time returned the case to the commission.

The legal assault by the bargemen soon followed.

Texas Eastern wants to abandon the gas-carrying "Little Inch" which runs 1,100 miles from Baytown, Tex., to Moundsville, W.Va., convert it to an oil carrier, and build a substitute line to carry gas. This latter would include 481.5 miles of new line from Beaumont, Tex., to Koscusko, Miss., and expansion of the capacity of an existing 30-inch line between Kosciusko and Connellsvlle, Pa.

This would link up with T. E.'s Texas Eastern-Penn-Jersey Transmission Corp., which also would build some facilities.

In its suit Texas Eastern charged the defendants with conspiring to monopolize transportation of clean petroleum products from the Texas-Louisiana-Arkansas refinery area to the midwestern market.

TOYS AND PRIDE

Salvation Army Takes Christmas To Cameron

By STANLEY MEISLER

CAMERON, La., Dec. 21 (AP)—Christmas came to crippled Cameron today, rushing toys to the children and new pride to everyone else.

The toys appeared as the Salvation Army threw a gigantic Christmas party.

The pride showed as Cameron found itself on exhibition.

Many of the visitors — deputies, volunteers, Salvation Army workers, newsmen—had seen Cameron six months ago, after hurricane Audrey struck, leaving more than 500 persons dead or missing and almost every home destroyed.

The visitors returned for the party, which featured a Santa Claus flown to Cameron from Baton Rouge and then driven through town on a shining red fire engine, acquired by Cameron yesterday.

Before Santa Claus arrived, a fleet of 15 planes and many trucks had carted more than 1,000 toys and almost 1,000 packages of candy and fruit.

More than 1,200 adults and children jammed the front of the courthouse in the afternoon, singing carols and cheering Santa as he ambled up the steps to deliver the gifts, which had been donated by the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs and other civic groups.

The visitors who returned found a different city today. Cameronites spoke with pride and optimism.

"We were growing when the storm hit us last June," Sheriff O. B. Carter said, "and we will continue to grow. And if there is another storm next year, we will be back."

The tiny, grey-haired sheriff spoke softly and glowingly about new Cameron.

He said about 1,200 people now lived in the area, and more return every day. The population of the city on June 27, the day of Audrey, was about 2,000.

Carter said Cameron soon would have its three main industries, oil, fishing and cattle raising, at full strength.

Oil, the new industry that boosted Cameron from a town of 400 just 10 years ago, already seems back to normal. Many companies use Cameron, which is right on the Gulf of Mexico, as base of operations for offshore wells.

"The oil companies are back," Carter said "As long as there is sugar out there, you know, that black gold, the oil people come back."

The plants that process the poagies, major fish caught in the area, will resume operations in April, just like every year. These plants make fertilizer and livestock feed.

The cattle situation is not as good. Many thousands were destroyed by the hurricane. But Carter said fences are being built, grass is coming out and some herds are being replenished.

Carter feels the biggest problem of Cameron is time, and that will be slowly conquered.

"It takes a few months to build a house," he said, "and that's the first thing that has to be done, getting people into homes. But we're doing it. It will take time, but we're doing it."

It is obvious that Cameron is doing it. Wherever you walk, you find a new home or an old one thoroughly reconstructed. Most of the wrecked and twisted homes, that looked like the eerie houses of a nightmare, are gone. Trucks, carrying bricks or lumber or house insulation materials, constantly chug down bumpy dirt roads.

But Cameron keeps its scars. The importance of the Christmas party showed that. Even with Red Cross grants or Small Business Administration loans, rebuilding has been expensive. And not every family has enough left to buy Christmas presents.

"If we had to do it ourselves," Mrs. Francis Guilbeau said, "it would not have been much of a Christmas."

She led her four children, 11, 10, six and four years old, on the line that crowded around the courthouse, up to the second floor and into the courtroom, where the Salvation Army's Santa Claus handed each child a present.

Her children were among 857 youngsters who waited noisily for gifts.

The scars also showed outside the party. A school bus still lay stuck in the marshes. A broken fishing boat rotted by rotting docks. A few huge water tanks remained toppled and crushed.

Broken, warped theater chairs were piled alongside the rebuilt movie house on Main Street. Telephone poles leaned toward the road. Giant Hackberry trees lay uprooted. Tombstones were scattered in a graveyard.

And scars showed in memories. Bob Verrett, the associate parish (county) agent, pointed at some rubble:

"There were 13 in that house. Only one man got out alive.

"You know, he was down at the Lions Club the other night. He talked about the kind of shrubbery he wanted to buy. Maybe he's going to rebuild."

IN TWIN CITIES

Medics To Sound Clear Yule Notes

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The clear, melodious notes of "Silent Night" will sound through the halls of St. Francis hospital, St. Joseph's Home, and surround the G. B. Cooley Sanatorium tomorrow night, as members of The Medics organization from four local high schools carol in the centuries' old tradition.

Starting at 7 p.m., 120 students from the Twin Cities will sing the ancient verses along with the newer varieties of Yuletide songs.

Unknown to many area residents, The Medics is a high school club formed this year, at West Monroe High School, St. Matthew's, Ouachita Parish High and Neville, for those students who plan on medical careers.

One of the newest organizations of its kind in the nation, The Medics hold one meeting per month, with speakers or films concerning medical careers as the major topic. Those who hope eventually to become laboratory technicians, nurses, (both practical and professional), physicians, physical therapists, medical social workers and X-ray technicians will have the opportunity to learn more from persons actually working in such professions.

Invited To Attend

Students who have doubts on the choice of their life-work are invited to attend the sessions, with the possibility that they might find something of interest in the varied medical field.

Actual opportunty to witness the realistic side of medicine has been offered to students by Dr. H. E. Jones, at E. A. Conway Memorial hospital.

Junior and senior students in the club are invited to spend a few hours each week, in any department of the hospital, to observe and assist. Since 11th and 12th grade students are capable of responsibility, the sponsors of the club approved, in the belief that these students will gain invaluable experience, and actually assist in the work.

Open to all high school grades, the organization also provides an opportunity for freshman and sophomore students to serve in a hospital. They are welcomed in the pediatrics department at St. Francis hospital, where they may read to hospitalized children, and help relieve their boredom.

Briefs Students

Sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Medical Auxiliary, the organization also briefs students on the types of college courses which they will take if they continue in their chosen field; informs them as to exactly what duties the work will require; and lists the possibilities for employment.

Two Auxiliary members and one faculty advisor sponsor each school's club. At WMHS, Mrs. W. L. Spencer and Mrs. G. T. Gallespy represent the Auxiliary, and J. G. Williams is faculty sponsor. Mrs. F. H. Hammonds, Mrs. B. B. Cobb, and Miss Josephine McCranie, faculty advisor, are at OPHS. Auxiliary members at St. Matthew's are Mrs. Bolling Jones and Mrs. C. H. Whitaker, and at Neville, in addition to Mrs. John Bell, Jr., of the faculty, Mrs. Faheam Cannon and Mrs. C. A. Ulrich, are advisors.

Each club has elected its own officers. Started as "Future Nurses Club," the organizations were quickly extended to include all sectors of the medical profession, and the name was revised to The Medics.

Since its beginning in September, the group has had guest speakers, according to the preference of the senior students at each school, and has participated in school activities.

West Monroe's and OPHS' clubs each entered floats in their homecoming parades, with Ouachita Parish High winning first place.

Tomorrow, the students will experience the depth and simplicity of Christmas in a hospital . . . and as "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen," rings out through the night, their start in the healing profession will gain a firmer basis. . . .

Giving comes from the heart and through both the spoken word and the skill of medicine. Giving the spirit of the Christmas season can be as effective for health as the use of medical knowledge.

100-Ton Package Of U. S. Missile Progress Tested

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) — A 100-ton package of power and promise rose over the misty Florida coast this week — a dramatic preview of a weapon intended to span continents in minutes with a cargo of nuclear destruction.

But even before Atlas blasted off its launching pad Tuesday, Air Force Secretary James Douglas predicted that within two years the United States would have a combat-ready intercontinental ballistic missile — ICBM.

The Atlas success came 12 days after the flames of Vanguard's misfire had swirled over the Cape Canaveral launching site. As U.S. weapons programs moved into high gear, the parade of missile developments came faster.

Yesterday's failures were paving the way for today's successes. To get an up to the minute idea of U.S. development to date, here is a missile-by-missile report:

ATLAS — It is designed to hit targets more than 5,500 miles away in half an hour. In its Tuesdap test, it was reported to have zoomed 80 miles high and carried 600 miles over the Atlantic before plunging into the ocean.

To reach its maximum range, Atlas will have to climb in its final development to an altitude of 600 miles, almost eight times as high as it went Tuesday.

The best-developed of two Air Force ICBM programs, Atlas is the only one in the flight-test stage. There are three stages of rocket development: design, flight test, operation.

Originally Atlas was powered by three rockets; two boosters of 135,000 pounds thrust each and a sustainer of 100,000 pounds thrust.

Unlike most other large rockets, Atlas fires all three of her motors from blast-off. It apparently jettisons the boosters when they are spent. Some hints have been made that Atlas' rocket power has been increased since it entered the flight stage.

It has been tested twice before Tuesday's success, once in June and again in September. Convair officials who have been charged with building Atlas say that even the two earlier tests were 95 per cent successful, despite the fact that they destroyed the Atlas in flight both times.

The Air Force has another Atlas standing by at the launching site.

TITAN — This is the sister ICBM project to Atlas. It may be up to a year behind its older Air Force counterpart. Although some Titan hardware is available, it has not entered the flight-test stage. It was begun three years after Atlas.

The Titan is a two-stage rocket in tandem. Unlike the Atlas it will power off the ground with its first stage only. Then when the first stage burns out, it detaches and the second stage takes over.

Earlier reports indicate that the first-stage engine may develop 300,000 pounds of thrust.

This week, Avco Manufacturing Co. reported it had designed the Titan's nose cone, the critical housing that will carry the nuclear payload. It described the nose as blunt-shaped and capable of re-entering the earth's atmosphere at high speed without distorting, changing direction or burning up.

Aerojet General Corp. disclosed this week that the first Titan engine has been delivered and others are in production. Titan's prime contractor is the Martin Co.

VANGUARD — This is not a weapon by intent. It is supposed to be a scientific tool, designed to launch a satellite. Since Sputniks I and II, the launching of that satellite has become an international signal that the United States can accomplish as much as the Russians can.

The explosion that consumed Vanguard's first full-dress attempt on the ground Dec. 6 also sharpened public attention with a sense of defeat.

There is another Vanguard standing by at Cape Canaveral. There is also a Jupiter-C missile, a refinement of the Army's Redstone, which will be used to launch another satellite.

NORTH AMERICAN X15—This is a manned rocket plane, designed to travel at speeds far above anything man has yet flown at altitudes of some 200,000 feet.

Like its predecessors, the North American will be launched from a mother ship, using its rocket power to zoom to higher altitude and then glide back to earth.

THOR, JUPITER, POLARIS — These are the three service entries in the intermediate-range ballistic missile — IRBM — field, capable of 1,500 miles range.

Thor, the Air Force missile, and Jupiter, the Army missile, have both been ordered into the operational stage, but neither so far is in mass production. Jupiter will likely be made by Chrysler Corp. which has experience with the Army's Redstone. Douglas Aircraft will probably produce the Thor.

The Polaris is the Navy's design for use from shipboard or from undersea craft submerged off an enemy shore. It is the only U.S. ballistic missile using solid propellants, and probably won't figure in the missile picture very strongly until 1960. Rockets for the Polaris were fired this last week.

The search goes on for other missiles to fight missiles. But it is generally agreed that antimissile missiles are a cure that will have to wait for the disease. That is, it may take a rocket capable of being an ICBM to stop an ICBM.

Whatever the cause, the progress in the missile field will continue to move at a faster pitch, and it may be that some weapons will become obsolete before they become operational.

Travelling Eels Astonish Even The Icthyologist

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Imagine the astonishment of a scientist when a newly captured eel turned out to belong to the most mysterious of the eel families, Anguilla Obscura.

If you were an eel scientist and had been in his place, you would have been astonished, too. He was in South Africa; his specimen had been taken in the headwaters of a South African river.

But Anguilla obscura is a Pacific Ocean eel. Never before had one of them been taken west of New Guinea, which is some 7,000 miles east and north of South Africa.

Dr. R. A. Jubb, icthyologist of Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa, reported the find.

Science had known eels travel great distances to breed and their offspring, while still in larvae form, repeat those journeys in going to the places where their parents came from.

But science hadn't known the distances could be anything even approaching 7,000 miles—2,000 to 3,000 miles are the established routine distances for family-minded eels and the resulting young. American eel (Anguilla Chrysypa) go no farther than the waters southeast and south of Bermuda after leaving the coastal rivers in which hy spent their adult lives.

Perpetuating the eel is a fatal business for eels. What triggers the desire is unknown. After a number of years of growing and maturing in fresh water, eels suddenly stop eating.

They're gorged with their own fat, even to the point of changing their color. These "silver eels" slip down the rivers into the sea. Their fat provides the energy for a long journey and for breeding, and then the die.

Their larvae are tiny and transparent which preserved them from enemies. They spread out over the ocean, feeding on animals smaller than they. Slowly they grow as slowly they cover distances. Suddenly they shrink and stretch out and become elvers —little eels. By then they are near a coast and up the rivers they go, to grow and mature and eventually become silver eels which repeat the process.

SCROOGE'S GHOST

Story Of Dickens Famous Villain

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

On Christmas morning 1843, in a rundown factory district of London, a window suddenly flew up in the second floor flat of a drab brick building otherwise occupied only by a few scraggy offices and a wine merchant's cellar.

"What's today?" cried the lone tenant to a small boy in the street below.

"Today? Why Christmas Day."

"Christmas day!" exulted the wan checked, needle-nosed old man at the window. "I haven't missed it."

Ebenezer Scrooge, fiction's most famous regenerate villain, had come to terms with Christmas and had not missed it after all.

At almost the same hour on that very same morning, in a more respectable section of London known as Regent's Park, an upstairs window flew open in the neat red-bricked dwelling that stood at 1 Devonshire Terrace. A frail, smiling young man, his eyes agleam with "a[illegible]nd oystery twinkle," leaned [illegible]o greet the postman.

His name was Charles Dickens and he had not missed Christmas either.

The morning mail brought the jubilant news that "A Christmas Carol," the ever delightful chronicle of Scrooge's ghostly conversion, had sold out all 6,000 copies on its first day of publication and a second and third edition were already on the presses.

Like Scrooge reborn, Dickens felt "light as a feather, happy as an angel, merry as a schoolboy, giddy as a drunken man." At 31 with little formal schooling but with "Pickwick Papers," "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickelby," "Old Curiosity Shop" and "Barnaby Rudge" already behind him, he was at the height of his creative powers.

And although he didn't realize it then, this versatile writer, who yearned all his life to be a great actor, had just penned a masterpiece in miniature.

"The Carol," as Dickens always referred to it, was written at white heat, in less than a month, to satisfy his creditors. He was deeply in debt. The recent American tour, with mixed memories of adoring crowds and bitter controversy, had not come up to financial expectations. He had borrowed heavily against insurance policies and taken a large advance from his publishers. His wife Kate was expecting their fifth child. He was also supporting his sister-in-law Georgina, his younger brother Frederick and his always out-of-pocket "prodigal father," the lovable, voluble spendthrift who provided the blueprint for Wilkins Micawber in "David Copperfield."

To get back on his feet, Dickens decided to publish "The Carol" as a private venture on a commission basis, risking all the losses in hopes of pocketing most of the profits.

The idea for a ghost story about Christmas first occurred to him in a railway carriage en route to Manchester for a speech in mid-October. The plot fascinated him, but the writing did not come easy.

The numerous strikeouts, crossovers and margin jottings in the original manuscript, now on display at Harvard's Fogg Museum on loan from New York's Morgan Library, indicate he worked harder on this slender volume than on any previous work.

The cozy little study overlooking the pleasant brick-walled garden at Regent's Park became a dreary dungeon of drudgery. "Men have been chained to hideous walls and other strange anchors ere now," he once described the throes of authorship, "but few have known such suffering and bitterness at one time or another as those who have been bound to pens."

The sister who comes to take Scrooge home from school is named Fan and he weeps to see her. In real life, Dickens wept bitterly when his sister Fanny, whom he loved dearly, won a prize at school, which he could not attend because he had to work 12 hours a day pasting labels on bottles in a shoe polish factory. "The tears ran down my face," he told his biographer. "I prayed when I went to bed that night to be lifted out of the humiliation and neglect in which I was in."

The musty pawn shop in an obscure part of town, where Scrooge in horror sees the curtains sold from his deathbed and the shirt from his corpse, had been visited years before by young Dickens, who came to sell his own little bed and a few chairs when his father went to debtors prison.

Even Fexxiwig's gay warehouse party, that precursor of all Christmas parties, may have had its spots in his blighted childhood, the friendly law chambers of Ellis and Blackmore where Dickens at 15 served as office boy and amused himself by dropping cherry pits out the window on passers-by.

But most of all—and some readers may shudder to hear this — Dickens was Ebenezer Scrooge, a "squeezing, wrenching, grasping, clutching, covetous old sinner." He drove a hard bargain with his publishers, quibbled over every cent of royalties, ran out on several contracts, fired two artists without warning and was partially responsble for the suicide of another.

Like Scrooge, he was capable of the extremes of benevolence and malevolence. A softtouch for panhandlers, especially down-at-the-heels actors, he kept a close eye and a tight hand on family budgets and made scenes over hotel bills. A fond and affectionate father, he was a vain tyrant of a husband who, at 46, ruthlessly left the wife who had given him 10 children to have an affair wth an 18-year-old actress. He never saw Kate again and was livid when any of the children went to see her.

Gregarious, extroverted, egocentric, childish to the point of absurdty, he had all the actor's vices and none of the writer's. He lived for applause, cultivated the crowd, made a fetish of never reading his critics.

While Scrooge was being haunted by the ghost of his business partner, Jacob Marley, Dickens was being visited by the ghost of his alter ego, Ebenezer Scrooge.

And Scrooge's Christmas conversion, duly ratified over a bowl of smoking bishop, may have symbolized Dickens' own resolution to reform. If so, the spell quickly wore off. Within a month he was at the throat of his publishers again, accusing them of jackng up the costs because "The Carol" did not immediately materialize into the financial success he envisioned from the postman's report on Christmas morning. It had sold well, but Dickens insistence on color plates and a fancy binding while keeping the price at five shillings, had eaten into his profits.

But "Tht Carol" was — and still is—an immensely popular success one of those rare, happy, hallowed books that seem destined to pass on from generation to generation of enchanted readers, while successive waves of critics attempt unsuccessfully to pick it apart.

"Who can listen to objectons regarding such a book as this?" asked William Makepeace Thackeray almost as soon as it appeared. "It seems to me a national benefit, and to every man and woman who reads it a personal kindness."

YULE CARDS PITCHED

CHRISTMAS GOOD WILL

Marx Refresher After Synthesis

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — In this Christmas season when TV is so full of synthetic good will, Groucho Marx is a refreshing study in ill-will.

Now listen, lady, you can stop writing that letter right now. I didn't say I disliked Christmas. I like it. I love it. What I don't like is the phony, cuddly - bunny, treacly, mush - heartedness that seems to ooze out of each channel like warm egg yoke at this time of year.

In the middle of all this emotional swampwater, Marx stands like a malevolent bump. He operates with cheerful malice and takes no pains to hide it. He scoffs at the guests on his show, he baits them, he makes jokes about their jobs, their appearance and what they sometimes offer up as their ideas.

He is TV's foremost balloon-pricker and hot air-chiller and I am grateful to him for it.

Contestants Trumped Up

Let's not have any illusions about his NBC-TV show. The contestants are a pretty trumped up bunch and most of them seem to have drifted out of trees. The quiz part of his quiz show is just so much parsley. Nobody takes it seriously and not much money is involved. That's all to the good. I'm getting pretty tired of experts on Persian mushrooms and Bulwer-Lytton.

The stuff out of which Thursday night's show was manufactured was typical Marxian dialhectic (sic). He had a gentleman on his show who said he could chew wood and he did. He had a lady who was married to a gentleman who owned five liquor stores.

Question And Answer

"Would you have married him if he had five grocery stores?" asked Marx.

"I would have married him if he had five banks," replied the lady in what may have been the year's tastiest non-sequitur.

There was a professional wrestler and another lady who had a barber-drummer for a husband. She sang "I Don't Care" for reasons I didn't sufficiently comprehend and Marx commented:

"There's not a dry eye left in the house. In fact, I'm afraid there isn't anybody left in the house."

BATTLE VETERAN

Gettysburg College Planning National Civil War Institute

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A long-sought dream of Civil War buffs and historians may be near reality in this battlefield community.

With the centennial observance of the nation's bloodiest struggle only 3½ years away, Gettysburg College is mapping plans to set up a National Civil War Institute to collect the treasures, fact and fiction of the four-year conflict.

"Gettysburg is a magic name in American history, it marked a beginning in this nation's long rise to world leadership," says Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, president of the college.

"We feel the time has come for such an institute, and we are convinced this battlefield is properly the place for it."

To help the plan along the college has earmarked its bullet-scarred Pennsylvania Hall—more familiarly "Old Dorm" — as the first building to house the proposed institute.

Some 94 years ago Old Dorm shook to the sound and fury of the nation's bloodiest battle. It's long halls were slippery with the blood of wounded Union and Confederate soldiers. Its cupola was the watchtower first of Northern, then of Southern officers plotting the carnage that was the battle of Gettysburg.

Today it stands in quiet repose, shrouded by trees, a home for students.

"We hope the institue will become a center for Civil War studies," Paul said. "Our aim is for it to assist students — both professional and amateur — toward better research and interpretation of the war."

The idea of setting up such an institute grew out of the recent first national conference on the Civil War held at the college in mid-November in conjunction with the school's 125th anniversary.

Top Civil War scholars from across the nation joined forces to reappraise the impact of the conflict on the growth of the United States as a world power. All agreed that there was a need for such an institute and that Gettysburg was the logical place for it.

The conference was the curtain-raiser on what promises to be a massive observance of the Civil War centennial — which will probably continue well into 1965, the 100th anniversary year of the war's end.

Paul says the planned institute would not be limited to military developments, but include civil affairs, arts, literature, politics, international relations and studies of the long-range impact of the war on current national problems.

"To implement this aim we hope to establish first a summer school Civil War workshop, bringing in the top men in the field as lecturers," Paul said. "Field trips to other Civil War battlefields would be part of the program."

Paul said the long-range plan for the institute is to build up an extensive library and museum covering not only the war period, but also the period leading up to the war and during its aftermath.

"With a central institute," adds Paul, "perhaps these elements of our greatest national tragedy can be brought together or catalogued with an eye to preserving them for the future."

BATTLE VETERAN—This is Pennylsvania Hall at Gettysburg College, whose cupola served as watchtower first for Union and then Confederate officers during the Battle of Gettysburg. The college hopes the historic building will be the first home of a National Civil War Institute.

Salvation Army Takes Christmas To Cameron

By STANLEY MEISLER

CAMERON, La., Dec. 21 (AP)—Christmas came to crippled Cameron today, rushing toys to the children and new pride to everyone else.

The toys appeared as the Salvation Army threw a gigantic Christmas party.

The pride showed as Cameron found itself on exhibition.

Many of the visitors — deputies, volunteers, Salvation Army workers, newsmen—had seen Cameron six months ago, after hurricane Audrey struck, leaving more than 500 persons dead or missing and almost every home destroyed.

The visitors returned for the party, which featured a Santa Claus flown to Cameron from Baton Rouge and then driven through town on a shining red fire engine, acquired by Cameron yesterday.

Before Santa Claus arrived, a fleet of 15 planes and many trucks had carted more than 1,000 toys and almost 1,000 packages of candy and fruit.

More than 1,200 adults and children jammed the front of the courthouse in the afternoon, singing carols and cheering Santa as he ambled up the steps to deliver the gifts, which had been donated by the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs and other civic groups.

The visitors who returned found a different city today. Cameronites spoke with pride and optimism.

"We were growing when the storm hit us last June," Sheriff O. B. Carter said, "and we will continue to grow. And if there is another storm next year, we will be back."

The tiny, grey-haired sheriff spoke softly and glowingly about new Cameron.

He said about 1,200 people now lived in the area, and more return every day. The population of the city on June 27, the day of Audrey, was about 2,000.

Carter said Cameron soon would have its three main industries, oil, fishing and cattle raising, at full strength.

Oil, the new industry that boosted Cameron from a town of 400 just 10 years ago, already seems back to normal. Many companies use Cameron, which is right on the Gulf of Mexico, as base of operations for offshore wells.

"The oil companies are back," Carter said "As long as there is sugar out there, you know, that black gold, the oil people come back."

The plants that process the poagies, major fish caught in the area, will resume operations in April, just like every year. These plants make fertilizer and livestock feed.

The cattle situation is not as good. Many thousands were destroyed by the hurricane. But Carter said fences are being built, grass is coming out and some herds are being replenished.

Carter feels the biggest problem of Cameron is time, and that will be slowly conquered.

"It takes a few months to build a house," he said, "and that's the first thing that has to be done, getting people into homes. But we're doing it. It will take time, but we're doing it."

It is obvious that Cameron is doing it. Wherever you walk, you find a new home or an old one thoroughly reconstructed. Most of the wrecked and twisted homes, that looked like the eerie houses of a nightmare, are gone. Trucks, carrying bricks or lumber or house insulation materials, constantly chug down bumpy dirt roads.

But Cameron keeps its scars. The importance of the Christmas party showed that. Even with Red Cross grants or Small Business Administration loans, rebuilding has been expensive. And not every family has enough left to buy Christmas presents.

"If we had to do it ourselves," Mrs. Francis Guilbeau said, "it would not have been much of a Christmas."

She led her four children, 11, 10, six and four years old, on the line that crowded around the courthouse, up to the second floor and into the courtroom, where the Salvation Army's Santa Claus handed each child a present.

Her children were among 857 youngsters who waited noisily for gifts.

The scars also showed outside the party. A school bus still lay stuck in the marshes. A broken fishing boat rotted by rotting docks. A few huge water tanks remained toppled and crushed.

Broken, warped theater chairs were piled alongside the rebuilt movie house on Main Street. Telephone poles leaned toward the road. Giant Hackberry trees lay uprooted. Tombstones were scattered in a graveyard.

And scars showed in memories. Bob Verrett, the associate parish (county) agent, pointed at some rubble:

"There were 13 in that house. Only one man got out alive.

"You know, he was down at the Lions Club the other night. He talked about the kind of shrubbery he wanted to buy. Maybe he's going to rebuild."

Medics To Sound Clear Yule Notes

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The clear, melodious notes of "Silent Night" will sound through the halls of St. Francis hospital, St. Joseph's Home, and surround the G. B. Cooley Sanatorium tomorrow night, as members of The Medics organization from four local high schools carol in the centuries' old tradition.

Starting at 7 p.m., 120 students from the Twin Cities will sing the ancient verses along with the newer varieties of Yuletide songs.

Unknown to many area residents, The Medics is a high school club formed this year, at West Monroe High School, St. Matthew's, Ouachita Parish High and Neville, for those students who plan on medical careers.

One of the newest organizations of its kind in the nation, The Medics hold one meeting per month, with speakers or films concerning medical careers as the major topic. Those who hope eventually to become laboratory technicians, nurses, (both practical and professional), physicians, physical therapists, medical social workers and X-ray technicians will have the opportunity to learn more from persons actually working in such professions.

Invited To Attend

Students who have doubts on the choice of their life-work are invited to attend the sessions, with the possibility that they might find something of interest in the varied medical field.

Actual opportunty to witness the realistic side of medicine has been offered to students by Dr. H. E. Jones, at E. A. Conway Memorial hospital.

Junior and senior students in the club are invited to spend a few hours each week, in any department of the hospital, to observe and assist. Since 11th and 12th grade students are capable of responsibility, the sponsors of the club approved, in the belief that these students will gain invaluable experience, and actually assist in the work.

Open to all high school grades, the organization also provides an opportunity for freshman and sophomore students to serve in a hospital. They are welcomed in the pediatrics department at St. Francis hospital, where they may read to hospitalized children, and help relieve their boredom.

Briefs Students

Sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Medical Auxiliary, the organization also briefs students on the types of college courses which they will take if they continue in their chosen field; informs them as to exactly what duties the work will require; and lists the possibilities for employment.

Two Auxiliary members and one faculty advisor sponsor each school's club. At WMHS, Mrs. W. L. Spencer and Mrs. G. T. Gallespy represent the Auxiliary, and J. G. Williams is faculty sponsor. Mrs. F. H. Hammonds, Mrs. B. B. Cobb, and Miss Josephine McCranie, faculty advisor, are at OPHS. Auxiliary members at St. Matthew's are Mrs. Bolling Jones and Mrs. C. H. Whitaker, and at Neville, in addition to Mrs. John Bell, Jr., of the faculty, Mrs. Faheam Cannon and Mrs. C. A. Ulrich, are advisors.

Each club has elected its own officers. Started as "Future Nurses Club," the organizations were quickly extended to include all sectors of the medical profession, and the name was revised to The Medics.

Since its beginning in September, the group has had guest speakers, according to the preference of the senior students at each school, and has participated in school activities.

West Monroe's and OPHS' clubs each entered floats in their homecoming parades, with Ouachita Parish High winning first place.

Tomorrow, the students will experience the depth and simplicity of Christmas in a hospital . . . and as "God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen," rings out through the night, their start in the healing profession will gain a firmer basis. . . .

Giving comes from the heart and through both the spoken word and the skill of medicine. Giving the spirit of the Christmas season can be as effective for health as the use of medical knowledge.

LINKED WITH AGA KHAN — Patricia Rawlings, 18-year-old English debutante, may become the bride of the Aga Khan, the London Daily Mail said. The Aga, 21, head of the 20-million strong Ismaili Moslem sect, is one of the world's most eligible bachelors. Patricia's father issued a statement saying "newspaper reports saying my daughter is to marry the Aga Khan are entirely without foundation." (AP Wirephoto via radio from London.)

Travelling Eels Astonish Even The Icthyologist

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Imagine the astonishment of a scientist when a newly captured eel turned out to belong to the most mysterious of the eel families, Anguilla Obscura.

If you were an eel scientist and had been in his place, you would have been astonished, too. He was in South Africa; his specimen had been taken in the headwaters of a South African river.

But Anguilla obscura is a Pacific Ocean eel. Never before had one of them been taken west of New Guinea, which is some 7,000 miles east and north of South Africa.

Dr. R. A. Jubb, icthyologist of Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa, reported the find.

Science had known eels travel great distances to breed and their offspring, while still in larvae form, repeat those journeys in going to the places where their parents came from.

But science hadn't known the distances could be anything even approaching 7,000 miles—2,000 to 3,000 miles are the established routine distances for family-minded eels and the resulting young. American eel (Anguilla Chrysypa) go no farther than the waters southeast and south of Bermuda after leaving the coastal rivers in which hy spent their adult lives.

Perpetuating the eel is a fatal business for eels. What triggers the desire is unknown. After a number of years of growing and maturing in fresh water, eels suddenly stop eating.

They're gorged with their own fat, even to the point of changing their color. These "silver eels" slip down the rivers into the sea. Their fat provides the energy for a long journey and for breeding, and then the die.

Their larvae are tiny and transparent which preserved them from enemies. They spread out over the ocean, feeding on animals smaller than they. Slowly they grow as slowly they cover distances. Suddenly they shrink and stretch out and become elvers —little eels. By then they are near a coast and up the rivers they go, to grow and mature and eventu ally become silver eels which repeat the process.

100-Ton Package Of U. S. Missile Progress Tested

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (AP) — A 100-ton package of power and promise rose over the misty Florida coast this week — a dramatic preview of a weapon intended to span continents in minutes with a cargo of nuclear destruction.

But even before Atlas blasted off its launching pad Tuesday, Air Force Secretary James Douglas predicted that within two years the United States would have a combat-ready intercontinental ballistic missile — ICBM.

The Atlas success came 12 days after the flames of Vanguard's misfire had swirled over the Cape Canaveral launching site. As U.S. weapons programs moved into high gear, the parade of missile developments came faster.

Yesterday's failures were paving the way for today's successes. To get an up to the minute idea of U.S. development to date, here is a missile-by-missile report:

ATLAS — It is designed to hit targets more than 5,500 miles away in half an hour. In its Tuesdap test, it was reported to have zoomed 80 miles high and carried 600 miles over the Atlantic before plunging into the ocean.

To reach its maximum range, Atlas will have to climb in its final development to an altitude of 600 miles, almost eight times as high as it went Tuesday.

The best-developed of two Air Force ICBM programs, Atlas is the only one in the flight-test stage. There are three stages of rocket development: design, flight test, operation.

Originally Atlas was powered by three rockets: two boosters of 135,000 pounds thrust each and a sustainer of 100,000 pounds thrust.

Unlike most other large rockets, Atlas fires all three of her motors from blast-off. It apparently jettisons the boosters when they are spent. Some hints have been made that Atlas' rocket power has been increased since it entered the flight stage.

It has been tested twice before Tuesday's success, once in June and again in September. Convair officials who have been charged with building Atlas say that even the two earlier tests were 95 per cent successful, despite the fact that they destroyed the Atlas in flight both times.

The Air Force has another Atlas standing by at the launching site.

TITAN — This is the sister ICBM project to Atlas. It may be up to a year behind its older Air Force counterpart. Although some Titan hardware is available, it has not entered the flight-test stage. It was begun three years after Atlas.

The Titan is a two-stage rocket in tandem. Unlike the Atlas it will power off the ground with its first stage only. Then when the first stage burns out, it detaches and the second stage takes over.

Earlier reports indicate that the first-stage engine may develop 300,000 pounds of thrust.

This week, Avco Manufacturing Co. reported it had designed the Titan's nose cone, the critical housing that will carry the nuclear payload. It described the nose as blunt-shaped and capable of re-entering the earth's atmosphere at high speed without distorting, changing direction or burning up.

Aerojet General Corp. disclosed this week that the first Titan engine has been delivered and others are in production. Titan's prime contractor is the Martin Co.

VANGUARD — This is not a weapon by intent. It is supposed to be a scientific tool, designed to launch a satellite. Since Sputniks I and II, the launching of that satellite has become an international signal that the United States can accomplish as much as the Russians can.

The explosion that consumed Vanguard's first full-dress attempt on the ground Dec. 6 also sharpened public attention with a sense of defeat.

There is another Vanguard standing by at Cape Canaveral. There is also a Jupiter-C missile, a refinement of the Army's Redstone, which will be used to launch another satellite.

NORTH AMERICAN X15—This is a manned rocket plane, designed to travel at speeds far above anything man has yet flown at altitudes of some 200,000 feet.

Like its predecessors, the North American will be launched from a mother ship, using its rocket power to zoom to higher altitude and then glide back to earth.

THOR, JUPITER, POLARIS — These are the three service entries in the intermediate-range ballistic missile — IRBM — field, capable of 1,500 miles range.

Thor, the Air Force missile, and Jupiter, the Army missile, have both been ordered into the operational stage, but neither so far is in mass production. Jupiter will likely be made by Chrysler Corp. which has experience with the Army's Redstone. Douglas Aircraft will probably produce the Thor.

The Polaris is the Navy's design for use from shipboard or from undersea craft submerged off an enemy shore. It is the only U.S. ballistic missile using solid propellants, and probably won't figure in the missile picture very strongly until 1960. Rockets for the Polaris were fired this last week.

The search goes on for other missiles to fight missiles. But it is generally agreed that antimissile missiles are a cure that will have to wait for the disease. That is, it may take a rocket capable of being an ICBM to stop an ICBM.

Whatever the cause, the progress in the missile field will continue to move at a faster pitch, and it may be that some weapons will become obsolete before they become operational.

SCROOGE'S GHOST

Story Of Dickens Famous Villain

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

On Christmas morning 1843, in a rundown factory district of London, a window suddenly flew up in the second floor flat of a drab brick building otherwise occupied only by a few scraggy offices and a wine merchant's cellar.

"What's today?" cried the lone tenant to a small boy in the street below.

"Today? Why Christmas Day."

"Christmas day!" exulted the wan cheeked, needle-nosed old man at the window. "I haven't missed it."

Ebenezer Scrooge, fiction's most famous regenerate villain, had come to terms with Christmas and had not missed it after all.

At almost the same hour on that very same morning, in a more respectable section of London known as Regent's Park, an upstairs window flew open in the neat red-bricked dwelling that stood at 1 Devonshire Terrace. A frail, smiling young man, his eyes agleam with "a moist and oystery twinkle," leaned out to greet the postman.

His name was Charles Dickens and he had not missed Christmas either.

The morning mail brought the jubilant news that "A Christmas Carol," the ever delightful chronicle of Scrooge's ghostly conversion, had sold out all 6,000 copies on its first day of publication and a second and third edition were already on the presses.

Like Scrooge reborn, Dickens felt "light as a feather, happy as an angel, merry as a schoolboy, giddy as a drunken man." At 31 with little formal schooling but with "Pickwick Papers," "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickelby," "Old Curiosity Shop" and "Barnaby Rudge" already behind him, he was at the height of his creative powers.

And although he didn't realize it then, this versatile writer, who yearned all his life to be a great actor, had just penned a masterpiece in miniature.

"The Carol," as Dickens always referred to it, was written at white heat, in less than a month, to satisfy his creditors. He was deeply in debt. The recent American tour, with mixed memories of adoring crowds and bitter controversy, had not come up to financial expectations. He had borrowed heavily against insurance policies and taken a large advance from his publishers. His wife Kate was expecting their fifth child. He was also supporting his sister-in-law Georgina, his younger brother Frederick and his always out-of-pocket "prodigal father," the lovable, voluble spendthrift who provided the blueprint for Wilkins Micawber in "David Copperfield."

To get back on his feet, Dickens decided to publish "The Carol" as a private venture on a commission basis, risking all the losses in hopes of pocketing most of the profits.

The idea for a ghost story about Christmas first occurred to him in a railway carriage en route to Manchester for a speech in mid-October. The plot fascinated him, but the writing did not come easy.

The numerous strikeouts, crossovers and margin jottings in the original manuscript, now on display at Harvard's Fogg Museum on loan from New York's Morgan Library, indicate he worked harder on this slender volume than on any previous work.

The cozy little study overlooking the pleasant brick-walled garden at Regent's Park became a dreary dungeon of drudgery. "Men have been chained to hideous walls and other strange anchors ere now," he once described the throes of authorship, "but few have known such suffering and bitterness at one time or another as those who have been bound to pens."

The sister who comes to take Scrooge home from school is named Fan and he weeps to see her. In real life, Dickens wept bitterly when his sister Fanny, whom he loved dearly, won a prize at school, which he could not attend because he had to work 12 hours a day pasting labels on bottles in a shoe polish factory. "The tears ran down my face," he told his biographer. "I prayed when I went to bed that night to be lifted out of the humiliation and neglect in which I was in."

The musty pawn shop in an obscure part of town, where Scrooge in horror sees the curtains sold from his deathbed and the shirt from his corpse, had been visited years before by young Dickens, who came to sell his own little bed and a few chairs when his father went to debtors prison.

Even Fexxiwig's gay warehouse party, that precursor of all Christmas parties, may have had its spots in his blighted childhood, the friendly law chambers of Ellis and Blackmore where Dickens at 15 served as office boy and amused himself by dropping cherry pits out the window on passers-by.

But most of all—and some readers may shudder to hear this — Dickens was Ebenezer Scrooge, a "squeezing, wrenching, grasping, clutching, covetous old sinner." He drove a hard bargain with his publishers, quibbled over every cent of royalties, ran out on several contracts, fired two artists without warning and was partially responsble for the suicide of another.

Like Scrooge, he was capable of the extremes of benevolence and malevolence. A softtouch for panhandlers, especially down-at-the-heels actors, he kept a close eye and a tight hand on family budgets and made scenes over hotel bills. A fond and affectionate father, he was a vain tyrant of a husband who, at 46, ruthlessly left the wife who had given him 10 children to have an affair wth an 18-year-old actress. He never saw Kate again and was livid when any of the children went to see her.

Gregarious, extroverted, egocentric, childish to the point of absurdty, he had all the actor's vices and none of the writer's. He lived for applause, cultivated the crowd, made a fetish of never reading his critics.

While Scrooge was being haunted by the ghost of his business partner Jacob Marley, Dickens was being visited by the ghost of his alter ego, Ebenezer Scrooge.

And Scrooge's Christmas conversion, duly ratified over a bowl of smoking bishop, may have symbolized Dickens' own resolution to reform. If so, the spell quickly wore off. Within a month he was at the throat of his publishers again, accusing them of jackng up the costs because "The Carol" did not immediately materialize into the financial success he envisioned from the postman's report on Christmas morning. It had sold well, but Dickens insistence on color plates and a fancy binding while keeping the price at five shillings, had eaten into his profits.

But "Tht Carol" was — and still is—an immensely popular success one of those rare, happy, hallowed books that seem destined to pass on from generation to generation of enchanted readers, while successive waves of critics attempt unsuccessfully to pick it apart.

"Who can listen to objectons regarding such a book as this?" asked William Makepeace Thackeray almost as soon as it appeared. "It seems to me a national benefit, and to every man and woman who reads it a personal kindness."

CHRISTMAS GOOD WILL

Marx Refresher After Synthesis

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — In this Christmas season when TV is so full of synthetic good will, Groucho Marx is a refreshing study in ill-will.

Now listen, lady, you can stop writing that letter right now. I didn't say I disliked Christmas. I like it. I love it. What I don't like is the phony, cuddly - bunny, treacly, mush - heartedness that seems to ooze out of each channel like warm egg yoke at this time of year.

In the middle of all this emotional swampwater, Marx stands like a malevolent bump. He operates with cheerful malice and takes no pains to hide it. He scoffs at the guests on his show, he baits them, he makes jokes about their jobs, their appearance and what they sometimes offer up as their ideas.

He is TV's foremost balloon-pricker and hot air-chiller and I am grateful to him for it.

Contestants Trumped Up

Let's not have any illusions about his NBC-TV show. The contestants are a pretty trumped up bunch and most of them seem to have drifted out of trees. The quiz part of his quiz show is just so much parsley. Nobody takes it seriously and not much money is involved. That's all to the good. I'm getting pretty tired of experts on Persian mushrooms and Bulwer-Lytton.

The stuff out of which Thursday night's show was manufactured was typical Marxian dialhectic (sic). He had a gentleman on his show who said he could chew wood and he did. He had a lady who was married to a gentleman who owned five liquor stores.

Question And Answer

"Would you have married him if he had five grocery stores?" asked Marx.

"I would have married him if he had five banks," replied the lady in what may have been the year's tastiest non-sequitur.

There was a professional wrestler and another lady who had a barber-drummer for a husband. She sang "I Don't Care" for reasons I didn't sufficiently comprehend and Marx commented:

"There's not a dry eye left in the house. In fact, I'm afraid there isn't anybody left in the house."

BATTLE VETERAN

Gettysburg College Planning National Civil War Institute

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A long-sought dream of Civil War buffs and historians may be near reality in this battlefield community.

With the centennial observance of the nation's bloodiest struggle only 3½ years away, Gettysburg College is mapping plans to set up a National Civil War Institute to collect the treasures, fact and fiction of the four-year conflict.

"Gettysburg is a magic name in American history, it marked a beginning in this nation's long rise to world leadership," says Lt. Gen. Willard S. Paul, president of the college.

"We feel the time has come for such an institute, and we are convinced this battlefield is properly the place for it."

To help the plan along the college has earmarked its bullet-scarred Pennsylvania Hall—more familiarly "Old Dorm" — as the first building to house the proposed institute.

Some 94 years ago Old Dorm shook to the sound and fury of the nation's bloodiest battle. It's long halls were slippery with the blood of wounded Union and Confederate soldiers. Its cupola was the watchtower first of Northern, then of Southern officers plotting the carnage that was the battle of Gettysburg.

Today it stands in quiet repose, shrouded by trees, a home for students.

"We hope the institue will become a center for Civil War studies," Paul said. "Our aim is for it to assist students — both professional and amateur — toward better research and interpretation of the war."

The idea of setting up such an institute grew out of the recent first national conference on the Civil War held at the college in mid-November in conjunction with the school's 125th anniversary.

Top Civil War scholars from across the nation joined forces to reappraise the impact of the conflict on the growth of the United States as a world power. All agreed that there was a need for such an institute and that Gettysburg was the logical place for it.

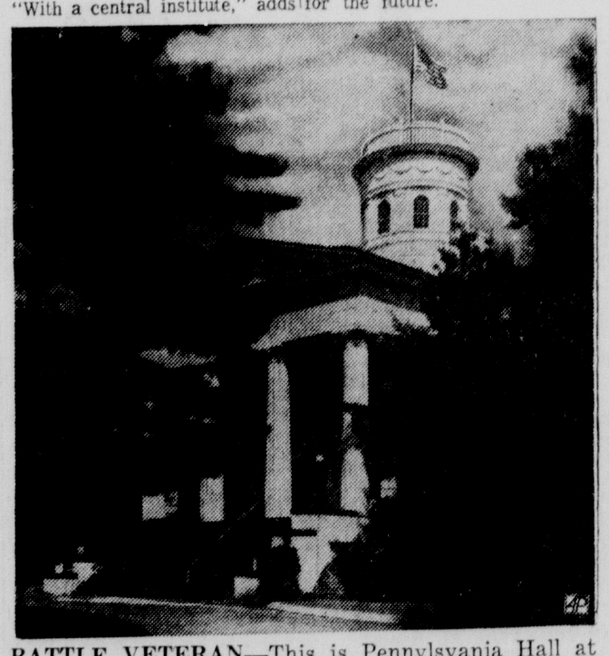
The conference was the curtain-raiser on what promises to be a massive observance of the Civil War centennial — which will probably continue well into 1965, the 100th anniversary year of the war's end.

Paul says the planned institute would not be limited to military developments, but include civil affairs, arts, literature, politics, international relations and studies of the long-range impact of the war on current national problems.

"To implement this aim we hope to establish first a summer school Civil War workshop, bringing in the top men in the field as lecturers," Paul said. "Field trips to other Civil War battlefields would be part of the program."

Paul said the long-range plan for the institute is to build up an extensive library and museum covering not only the war period, but also the period leading up to the war and during its aftermath.

"With a central institute," adds Paul, "perhaps these elements of our greatest national tragedy can be brought together or catalogued with an eye to preserving them for the future."



BATTLE VETERAN—This is Pennylsvania Hall at Gettysburg College, whose cupola served as watchtower first for Union and then Confederate officers during the Battle of Gettysburg. The college hopes the historic building will be the first home of a National Civil War Institute.

MP&L Says Group Filed False Report

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP)—Mississippi Power & Light Co. today accused an organization which claims to be planning a power generation plant near Meridian of filing false information with the public Service Commission.

MP&L denied that the South Mississippi Power & Light Co. tohas an office at Collins and said the association's claims regarding equipment and facilities "are false, incorrect and constitute a legal fraud . . ."

State Treasurer R. D. Morrow of Brandon is president of the SMEPA, which filed its application Sept. 28, 1956 to build a 100,000 kilowatt steam generating plant.

The purpose of the plant would be to provide power wholesale to several rural electric cooperatives, all of which now buy their power either from MP&L or Mississippi Power Co. of Gulfport.

MP&L's new charges were in the form of an amendment to their original protest filed simultaneously with the association's original application. MPC also has objecte dto granting of the application

The 1956 application by SMEPA Claimed that the Rural Electrification Administration already had approved a loan to enable the group to build the plant and also set out that SMEPA itself has access to funds to supplement them.

The national 'REA administrator, in a visit to Jackson earlier this year, confirmed that a 19 million dollar loan has been sought by a group wanting to build such a power plant but said it has not been acted upon.

Denying that EMEPA has a place of business at Collins as set out in the application, MP&L said: "Applicant's alleged domicle is ficticious in that applicant does not have any established office, staff or employes or headquarters at any place in the state or elsewhere."

SMEPA's original application gave Collins as the organization's home but said that for purposes of the application the post office address would be the Jackson law firm of Hedgepeth, Ewing and Hedgepeth. Harvey Hedgepeth of Jackson is attorney for several rural electric cooperatives.

MP&L denied the organization's claim to having made a $55,000 investment in a generating plant and claimed that no site or right of way for such a plant has been acquired.

Five Grass Fire Calls Answered Recovered Cash

Monroe firemen answered five grass fire alarms yesterday—a sharp decline from Dec. 24 of 1955, when 37 trucks were dispatched in a six-hour period.

Firemen at Central Alarm Headquarters on Hudson Lane attribute the decrease to a fireworks, ban, adding that in previous years this season had numerous grass fires as the result of fireworks.

In West Monroe, one grass fire was reported.

Dulles Says All Well With NATO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles came home today from Allied talks at Paris, declaring all had gone well there but that "continuing efforts and sacrifice are required."

Dulles, tired-looking and his voice hoarse and cracking, told newsmen the 15-nation Atlantic Pact summit conference "took all of the essential decisions for which we had hoped."

Dulles' 250-word formal statement upon arrival at National Airport seemed aimed in part at dispelling any idea that U.S. proposals had been essentially rebuffed by the European Allies.

The statement never mentioned the key U.S. proposal to establish intermediate-range missiles bases in West Europe in response to Russia's new scientific-military advances. When reporters recalled that the basic idea was accepted only in principle, something on which Dulles had previously frowned, he denied feeling "discouraged or unhappy."

"We got everything we hoped for in that respect, in fact somewhat more," Dulles said.

The secretary had no comment on new Soviet proposals for an international conference on disarmament, instead of the foreign ministers disarmament talks suggested by NATO this week. Dulles said he was not even aware that such a proposal had been made by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a Moscow speech today.

Dulles stressed that the NATO decisions "were not merely military" but "covered political and economic matters as well."

Above all, Dulles said, the NATO meeting strengthened the unity, cooperative spirit and mutual trust and confidence of the alliance.

"All that we have done during this past week adds up to another chapter in the waging of peace," he declared.

"And, as President Eisenhower said when he left Paris, what has happened means that we can now feel that peace is somewhat more secure but continuing effort and sacrifice are required."

Dulles commented that Russia appears to "have abandoned" disarmament negotiation. But his reference appearently was to the Soviet boycott of the United Nations Disarmament subcommittee.

Reporters, noting Dulles' raspy voice, asked him if he had a cold.

"I haven't exactly got a cold," he replied, "But I strained the ligaments in my throat."

Dulles' return bring him face to face with perhaps the most difficult task of his career. The Kremlin is pushing a full-blown drive for "peaceful coexistence" on Communist terms at a time of hesitation and uncertainty among the Allies.

Dulles has no prospect for rest and contemplation after the rigors of the NATO meeting.

He and President Eisenhower found there no strong allied support for the U.S. idea of countering recent Russian advances with a buildup of military strength. Instead the current ran toward having another try at talking away the threat of nuclear war in new negotiations with the Soviet.

Moscow moved swiftly today to take advantage of the allied compromise, half military and half conciliatory, reached among the 15 NATO chiefs of government at Paris.

Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko laid down their terms in speeches before the Supreme Soviet, Russia's Parliament. As Dulles expected, they ruled out the NATO proposal for a foreign ministers meeting to break the East-West deadlock on disarmament within the United Nations.

Seven Youths Charged In Crime Series

More than a dozen burglaries, thefts and cases of vandalism were solved yesterday police reported, with the apprehension of seven white youths, all juveniles from Monroe.

Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly stated that some of the youths had committed more than one offense.

Three between the ages of 15 and 16 years were taken into custody on a charge of theft from a car parked in downtown Monroe on Nov. 24.

On Dec. 1, four shirts were taken from a car. Three youths are charged. Between Dec. 1 and 15, four thefts of gas from cars parked downtown occurred. Juveniles are charged with siphoning off the gas.

Boys are charged with theft of hub caps from the car of a Monroe resident while it was parked in West Monroe on Dec. 15, and other youths are charged with stealing gas from a car in Ruston and several minor thefts in Ruston on Dec. 15.

Juveniles are charged with two cases of vandalism — throwing rocks from moving cars onto other autos.

They are also charged with theft from a Monroe Seven-Eleven store on Dec. 17.

AT SHREVEPORT

$2,000 Blast Ends Boys' Frolicking

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 21 (AP) —Two teen-age fireworks salesman, playing with their merchandise during a lull in business, today blasted $2,000 worth of firecrackers into the air.

The blast rocked windows in a fashionable section of Shreveport. The only damage reported was to the firecrackers and the sales stand, which was destroyed. No one was hurt.

Gerald Rushton, 15, of Tyler, Tex., and Thomas Reeves, 15, of Shreveport were selling fire crackers on a street corner. But there were few customers.

The boys walked 50 feet away from their stand and set off a flying saucer - type firecracker. This spins in the air after it is lit and then explodes.

After it was ignited, the flying saucer spun directly into the fireworks stand.

The resulting explosion shot the stand's roof 100 feet in the air. The blast could be heard for a mile.

The firecrackers continued to expode for more than two hours, at time setting grass fires in the area. Some neighborhood boys rushed to the scene, attempting to grab some of the unexploded fireworks. But some of the smouldering fire crackers went off as they approached, and the boys retreated.

Firemen came to the scene to insure that the grass did not spread.

A. H. DICKERSON

Death last night claimed A. H. "Doc" Dickerson at the age of 84, after he suffered a heart attack at the home of his daughter, Mrs. T. N. Barfoot.

Mr. Dickerson, who had been well-known in the area surrounding Eros, had been a planter. He had resided with Mrs. Barfoot at 403 Montgomery street, West Monroe, for several years.

He was rushed to St. Francis hospital shortly after 10 p.m., but was dead upon arrival. Funeral arrangement will be handled by Kilpatrick Funeral home of West Monroe.

M'Neil To Quit Mississippi Post

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — Charlie McNeil announced today he will resign next March 1 as general manager of Mississippi Federated Cooperatives, a statewide farm-business organization which does a 30 million dollar annual business.

McNeil has been manager since Dec. 1, 1929, at which time it was known as the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation. In 1935 the Farm Bureau split off and confined its efforts to social, legislative and educational endeavors.

Frank D. Barlow of Crystal Springs, president of the board of MFC, said McNeil has agreed to stay on as manager consultant. The board named Ernest G. Spivey of Jackson to succeed McNeil. A. E. Beall of Jackson was promoted from organization director to fill Spivey's post of assistant manager.

A Tupelo native and a Mississippi A&M graduate, McNeil is a former Tate and Madison county farm agent. He gained statewide attention in Madison County by promoting cooperative purchasing of fertilizer and seeds.

McNeil supervised establishment of MFC's cotton department in 1939, which now handles a large share of the state's cotton crop. In 1942 MFC began manufacturing fertilizer and now has plants at Canton, Meridian, Corinth and one under construction at New Albany.

BEAUTY — "Miss Potpourri" for 1957 is Northwestern State College coed Mary Dunckelman of Raceland, who was chosen for the coveted honor by members of the NSC yearbook (the Potpourri) staff. A junior at Northwestern, Miss Dunckelman is majoring in medical technology. She was presented along with the Potpourri court by President John S. Kyser of NSC during the annual dance Friday night.

Is Given Over To Good Cause

The Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department praised the outcome of the solution of an October 13 burglary.

The Goodfellows Fund received a boost of $30.10 . . .the money recovered from the burglary of Lonnie's Bar. Two New Jersey men who broke into the Bar near the Ouachita-Lincoln parish line are now regretting their action in the state penitentiary. But their "loot" has been put to good use.

Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailley Grant revealed that when he attempted to return the money to Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Boddie, of Highway 80, West Monroe, the owners of the Bar, they refused it. "Give it to the Goodfellows' Fund," they requested of Grant.

The money will be used to aid the needy on Christmas.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE PRESIDENT

NEW ORLEANS—UP—Richard W. Freeman, president of the Louisiana Coca-Cola Bottling Co., was elected as president of International House Wednesday. He will succeed Joseph Rault.

U.S. CONCESSIONS

Europeans Appear To Be Determined

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS, Dec. 21 (AP)—European diplomats, assessing results of this week's NATO conference, appeared determined today to ask the United States for more concessions before opening their countries to American missile and nuclear bomb bases.

Perhaps the major demand will be that the United States drop what Europeans feel is a negative attitude toward Russia and go into what Europeans feel is a negative attitude toward Russia and go into a high level conference prepared to make broad agreements.

Increasing doubt seems to be developing that Secretary of State Dulles is the man to lead the United States in these talks.

Fears Linger

Nor did President Eisenhower's performance here dispel the fears of many diplomats concerning his health. The issues focused during the conference will require top level negotiations and intense thought over the next two years. Europeans are, frankly, not reassured that Eisenhower's health will allow him to maintain the pace needed for leadership.

These findings became apparent from a running series of talks with European diplomats before, during, and after the conference. At the conference an agreement in principle was reached to stockpile Europe with nuclear weapons, but only after an attempt is made to get Russia into a conference on disarmament and other subjects endangering peace.

A fundamental difference in point of view between Dulles and some of the European foreign ministers thus was made relatively apparent. Dulles clearly dislikes talking to the Russians because he feels it is fruitless. Europeans suppose that a great many Americans also feel that dealing with Communist powers is a sordid and dirty business which a clean-minded country ought to avoid.

Don't Like Reds

Europeans for the most part don't like communism but don't share the feeling of many Americans that it is a contagion to be avoided.

This is an important difference of attitude. While Europeans feel the late President Roosevelt went much too far in dealing with the Russians and trusting them, they feel Dulles is far too suspicious.

It is on this front first that European diplomats are likely to exert their earliest and most urgent pressure.

They feel that agreement by the Americans to any talks at all with the Russians was a gain, although they overlook somewhat that America tried to find a formula for continuing disarmament talks which the Russians, buoyant about their Sputniks, bolted in disdain.

Europeans, notably French and Germans, feel gains were made at the summit talks. Reluctantly, they gave in to the Americans in principle about bombs and missiles, but they got the Americans to give way on the urgency of talk with Russia. To that extent, both sides gained, both sides were left moderately happy.

Six Students Initiated Into Campus Group

Six students and a Northeast State faculty member were initiated into the campus chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, national history fraternity.

The new student members are Bobby Collins of Jonesville; Virgil Dalrymple, Delhi; George Fox, Monroe; Marilyn Gill, Monroe; James Walker, Monroe, and Peggy Wingate, Baton Rouge. James Matthai of the faculty also was initiated.

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta is considered an honor because of its high scholastic requirement. Initiation calls for a better than "B" average in all history courses.

Survey Conducted

A survey conducted last spring by the registrar's office at Northeast State disclosed that the scholastic record of the campus chapter's membership was higher than that of any other group at the college.

Phi Alpha Theta has chapters in high ranking colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The local group recently extended membership was initiated in ceremonies directed by William Walker of the liberal arts faculty. He was assisted by Dr. J. R. Brown and Ted Ferguson, also of the faculty, Mrs. Zanona Flinn, library assistant and fraternity reporter, and Ernest Bradshaw, member of the organization.

MP&L Says Group Filed False Report

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP)—Mississippi Power & Light Co. today accused an organization which claims to be planning a power generation plant near Meridian of filing false information with the public Service Commission.

MP&L denied that the South Mississippi Power & Light Co. tohas an office at Collins and said the association's claims regarding equipment and facilities "are false, incorrect and constitute a legal fraud . . ."

State Treasurer R. D. Morrow of Brandon is president of the SMEPA, which filed its application Sept. 28, 1956 to build a 100,000 kilowatt steam generating plant.

The purpose of the plant would be to provide power wholesale to several rural electric cooperatives, all of which now buy their power either from MP&L or Mississippi Power Co. of Gulfport.

MP&L's new charges were in the form of an amendment to their original protest filed simultaneously with the association's original application. MPC also has objecte dto granting of the application

The 1956 application by SMEPA Claimed that the Rural Electrification Administration already had approved a loan to enable the group to build the plant and also set out that SMEPA itself has access to funds to supplement them.

The national 'REA administrator, in a visit to Jackson earlier this year, confirmed that a 19 million dollar loan has been sought by a group wanting to build such a power plant but said it has not been acted upon.

Denying that EMEPA has a place of business at Collins as set out in the application, MP&L said: "Applicant's alleged domicile is ficticious in that applicant does not have any established office, staff or employes or headquarters at any place in the state or elsewhere."

SMEPA's original application gave Collins as the organization's home but said that for purposes of the application the post office address would be the Jackson law firm of Hedgepeth, Ewing and Hedgepeth. Harvey Hedgepeth of Jackson is attorney for several rural electric cooperatives.

MP&L denied the organization's claim to having made a $55,000 investment in a generating plant and claimed that no site or right of way for such a plant has been acquired.

MAN 'O WAR BOWS TO CHRISTMAS — The Norfolk-based submarine Ray shows only a slight resemblance to the fighting ship it is at Norfolk as ol' St. Nick perches precariously atop a periscope. Five Grass Fire Calls Answered Recovered Cash

Monroe firemen answered five grass fire alarms yesterday—a sharp decline from Dec. 24 of 1955, when 37 trucks were dispatched in a six-hour period.

Firemen at Central Alarm Headquarters on Hudson Lane attribute the decrease to a fireworks, ban, adding that in previous years this season had numerous grass fires as the result of fireworks.

In West Monroe, one grass fire was reported.

VICTIM EXPIRES

Dulles Says All Well With NATO

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles came home today from Allied talks at Paris, declaring all had gone well there but that "continuing efforts and sacrifice are required."

Dulles, tired - looking and his voice hoarse and cracking, told newsmen the 15-nation Atlantic Pact summit conference "took all of the essential decisions for which we had hoped."

Dulles' 250-word formal statement upon arrival at National Airport seemed aimed in part at dispelling any idea that U.S. proposals had been essentially rebuffed by the European Allies.

The statement never mentioned the key U.S. proposal to establish intermediate-range missiles bases in West Europe in response to Russia's new scientific-military advances. When reporters recalled that the basic idea was accepted only in principle, something on which Dulles had previously frowned, he denied feeling "discouraged or unhappy."

"We got everything we hoped for in that respect, in fact somewhat more," Dulles said.

The secretary had no comment on new Soviet proposals for an international conference on disarmament, instead of the foreign ministers disarmament talks suggested by NATO this week. Dulles said he was not even aware that such a proposal had been made by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in a Moscow speech today.

Dulles stressed that the NATO decisions "were not merely military" but "covered political and economic matters as well."

Above all, Dulles said, the NATO meeting strengthened the unity, cooperative spirit and mutual trust and confidence of the alliance.

"All that we have done during this past week adds up to another chapter in the waging of peace," he declared.

"And, as President Eisenhower said when he left Paris, what has happened means that we can now feel that peace is somewhat more secure but continuing effort and sacrifice are required."

Dulles commented that Russia appears to "have abandoned" disarmament negotiation. But his reference appearently was to the Soviet boycott of the United Nations Disarmament subcommittee.

Reporters, noting Dulles' raspy voice, asked him if he had a cold.

"I haven't exactly got a cold," he replied, "But I strained the ligaments in my throat."

Dulles' return bring him face to face with perhaps the most difficult task of his career. The Kremlin is pushing a full-blown drive for "peaceful coexistence" on Communist terms at a time of hesitation and uncertainty among the Allies.

Dulles has no prospect for rest and contemplation after the rigors of the NATO meeting.

He and President Eisenhower found there no strong allied support for the U.S. idea of countering recent Russian advances with a buildup of military strength. Instead the current ran toward having another try at talking away the threat of nuclear war in new negotiations with the Soviet.

Moscow moved swiftly today to take advantage of the allied compromise, half military and half conciliatory, reached among the 15 NATO chiefs of government at Paris.

Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko laid down their terms in speeches before the Supreme Soviet, Russia's Parliament. As Dulles expected, they ruled out the NATO proposal for a foreign ministers meeting to break the East-West deadlock on disarmament within the United Nations.

Seven Youths Charged In Crime Series

More than a dozen burglaries, thefts and cases of vandalism were solved yesterday police reported, with the apprehension of seven white youths, all juveniles from Monroe.

Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly stated that some of the youths had committed more than one offense.

Three between the ages of 15 and 16 years were taken into custody on a charge of theft from a car parked in downtown Monroe on Nov. 24.

On Dec. 1, four shirts were taken from a car. Three youths are charged. Between Dec. 1 and 15, four thefts of gas from cars parked downtown occurred. Juveniles are charged with siphoning off the gas.

Boys are charged w th theft of hub caps from the car of a Monroe resident while it was parked in West Monroe on Dec. 15, and other youths are charged with stealing gas from a car in Ruston and several minor thefts in Ruston on Dec. 15.

Juveniles are charged with two cases of vandalism — throwing rocks from moving cars onto other autos.

They are also charged with theft from a Monroe Seven-Eleven store on Dec. 17.

M'Neil To Quit Mississippi Post

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 21 (AP) — Charlie McNeil announced today he will resign next March 1 as general manager of Mississippi Federated Cooperatives, a statewide farm-business organization which does a 30 million dollar annual business.

McNeil has been manager since Dec. 1, 1929, at which time it was known as the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation. In 1935 the Farm Bureau split off and confined its efforts to social, legislative and educational endeavors.

Frank D. Barlow of Crystal Springs, president of the board of MFC, said McNeil has agreed to stay on as manager consultant. The board named Ernest G. Spivey of Jackson to succeed McNeil. A. E. Beall of Jackson was promoted from organization director to fill Spivey's post of assistant manager.

A Tupelo native and a Mississippi A&M graduate, McNeil is a former Tate and Madison county farm agent. He gained statewide attention in Madison County by promoting cooperative purchasing of fertilizer and seeds.

McNeil supervised establishment of MFC's cotton department in 1939, which now handles a large share of the state's cotton crop. In 1942 MFC began manufacturing fertilizer and now has plants at Canton, Meridian, Corinth and one under construction at New Albany.

BEAUTY — "Miss Potpourri" for 1957 is Northwestern State College coed Mary Dunckelman of Raceland, who was chosen for the coveted honor by members of the NSC yearbook (the Potpourri) staff. A junior at Northwestern, Miss Dunckelman is majoring in medical technology. She was presented along with the Potpourri court by President John S. Kyser of NSC during the annual dance Friday night.

Is Given Over To Good Cause

The Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department praised the outcome of the solution of an October 13 burglary.

The Goodfellows Fund received a boost of $30.10 . . .the money recovered from the burglary of Lonnie's Bar. Two New Jersey men who broke into the Bar near the Ouachita-Lincoln parish line are now regretting their action in the state penitentiary. But their "loot" has been put to good use.

Ouachita Parish Sheriff Bailley Grant revealed that when he attempted to return the money to Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Boddie, of Highway 80, West Monroe, the owners of the Bar, they refused it. "Give it to the Goodfellows' Fund," they requested of Grant.

The money will be used to aid the needy on Christmas.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE PRESIDENT

NEW ORLEANS—UP—Richard W. Freeman, president of the Louisiana Coca-Cola Bottling Co., was elected as president of International House Wednesday. He will succeed Joseph Rault.

U.S. CONCESSIONS

Europeans Appear To Be Determined

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS, Dec. 21 (AP)—European diplomats, assessing results of this week's NATO conference, appeared determined today to ask the United States for more concessions before opening their countries to American missile and nuclear bomb bases.

Perhaps the major demand will be that the United States drop what Europeans feel is a negative attitude toward Russia and go into what Europeans feel is a negative attitude toward Russia and go into a high level conference prepared to make broad agreements.

Increasing doubt seems to be developing that Secretary of State Dulles is the man to lead the United States in these talks.

Fears Linger

Nor did President Eisenhower's performance here dispel the fears of many diplomats concerning his health. The issues focused during the conference will require top level negotiations and intense thought over the next two years. Europeans are, frankly, not reassured that Eisenhower's health will allow him to maintain the pace needed for leadership.

These findings became apparent from a running series of talks with European diplomats before, during, and after the conference. At the conference an agreement in principle was reached to stockpile Europe with nuclear weapons, but only after an attempt is made to get Russia into a conference on disarmament and other subjects endangering peace.

A fundamental difference in point of view between Dulles and some of the European foreign ministers thus was made relatively apparent. Dulles clearly dislikes talking to the Russians because he feels it is fruitless. Europeans suppose that a great many Americans also feel that dealing with Communist powers is a sordid and dirty business which a clean-minded country ought to avoid.

Don't Like Reds

Europeans for the most part don't like communism but don't share the feeling of many Americans that it is a contagion to be avoided.

This is an important difference of attitude. While Europeans feel the late President Roosevelt went much too far in dealing with the Russians and trusting them, they feel Dulles is far too suspicious.

It is on this front first that European diplomats are likely to exert their earliest and most urgent pressure.

They feel that agreement by the Americans to any talks at all with the Russians was a gain, although they overlook somewhat that America tried to find a formula for continuing disarmament talks which the Russians, buoyant about their Sputniks, bolted in disdain.

Europeans, notably French and Germans, feel gains were made at the summit talks. Reluctantly, they gave in to the Americans in principle about bombs and missiles, but they got the Americans to give way on the urgency of talk with Russia. To that extent, both sides gained, both sides were left moderately happy.

Six Students Initiated Into Campus Group

Six students and a Northeast State faculty member were initiated into the campus chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, national history fraternity.

The new student members are Bobby Collins of Jonesville; Virgil Dalrymple, Delhi; George Fox, Monroe; Marilyn Gill, Monroe; James Walker, Monroe, and Peggy Wingate, Baton Rouge. James Matthai of the faculty also was initiated.

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta is considered an honor because of its high scholastic requirement. Initiation calls for a better than "B" average in all history courses.

Survey Conducted

A survey conducted last spring by the registrar's office at Northeast State disclosed that the scholastic record of the campus chapter's membership was higher than that of any other group at the college.

Phi Alpha Theta has chapters in high ranking colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The local group recently extended membership was initiated in ceremonies directed by William Walker of the liberal arts faculty. He was assisted by Dr. J. R. Brown and Ted Ferguson, also of the faculty, Mrs. Zanona Flinn, library assistant and fraternity reporter, and Ernest Bradshaw, member of the organization.

Executive Dies From Gun Wounds

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 21 (AP) —A prominent Mobile loan company executive died late today of gunshot wounds suffered a short time before in a hunting accident.

Earl Long, Jr. about 36, died in an ambulance. The ambulance had met the jeep near the Mississippi line and the wounded man transferred with a physician who was in the hunting party.

AT SHREVEPORT

$2,000 Blast Ends Boys' Frolicking

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 21 (AP) —Two teen-age fireworks salesman, playing with their merchandise during a lull in business, today blasted $2,000 worth of firecrackers into the air.

The blast rocked windows in a fashionable section of Shreveport. The only damage reported was to the firecrackers and the sales stand, which was destroyed. No one was hurt.

Gerald Rushton, 15, of Tyler, Tex., and Thomas Reeves, 15, of Shreveport were selling fire crackers on a street corner. But there were few customers.

The boys walked 50 feet away from their stand and set off a flying saucer - type firecracker. This spins in the air after it is lit and then explodes.

After it was ignited, the flying saucer spun directly into the fireworks stand.

The resulting explosion shot the stand's roof 100 feet in the air. The blast could be heard for a mile.

The firecrackers continued to expode for more than two hours, at time setting grass fires in the area. Some neighborhood boys rushed to the scene, attempting to grab some of the unexploded fireworks. But some of the smouldering fire crackers went off as they approached, and the boys retreated.

Firemen came to the scene to insure that the grass did not spread.

Russia Expected To Okay Parleys

PARIS, Dec. 21 (UP)—Western diplomats predicted yesterday that Russia would accept the NATO offer of a foreign ministers' conference on disarmament if only to try to slow the West's stepped-up missile arms program.

American officials were skeptical about the success of such a conference, which probably would be held early next year. The United States was going ahead full-blast with a program that envisaged an additional one billion dollars for missiles development and the arming of Western European nations with nuclear ballistic rockets.

Sources said Spain might be offered missiles also, although not a member of NATO. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles conferred with Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Madrid today on the results of the NATO conference.

Britain Agrees

Britain, while supporting the idea of talks with the Soviet, was going along with the United States on missiles armament.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government won a House of Commons vote today on its plans to establish American - supplied missile bases in Britain and its acceptance of the fact that U. S. Air Force bombers carry nuclear weapons while flying defense missions from British air bases. The vote was 289-251, a margin of 38.

Other nations, notably West Germany, Norway and Denmark were pinning their hopes more on talks with Russia in the 25-nation United Nations disarmament commission. Failing that, the possibility of a foreign minsters, conference would be explored.

Ike Reluctant

Sources said President Eisenhower and Dulles during the four day NATO conference in Paris agreed only reluctantly to talks with Russia on grounds they would be futile.

The Soviet press was embarked on a violent propaganda campaign denouncing the NATO meeting.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said the big powers at the 15-nation meeting "succeeded in forcing" the smaller ones to accept U. S. missile bases.

See Man In Space Within Five Years

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (UP)—U.S. military space scientists said yesterday a maximum effort could put a manned American space station 600 miles above the earth by 1962.

They described the space station as the third step in a five-step program that could take man to the moon. No timetable was set for such a venture, however, on ground that each step made into space would be more difficult than the last.

But the scientists said Russia's avowed determination to reach the moon underscored the need for giving military space projects top priority in future defense budgets. The cost of any such program would run in the billions.

They outlined these five steps:

—Earth satellite tests, including sending unmanned rockets to the moon and nearby planets. They would provide data on cosmic rays, meteorites, air densities and their effect on animals and radio signals.

—Launching and successful return to earth of a manned satellite.

—Establishment of space stations 500 to 6,000 miles above the earth. In addition to reconnaissance, these might serve as kick-off points for rockets designed to probe deeper into space.

—Establishment of a space station 22,500 miles above the earth, circling the earth every 24 hours. It would be the ideal reconnaissance satellite because it theoretically would be able to see every place in the world once a day.

—Space ship flight between space stations and ultimately to the moon.

Personal Approach Best, Says Friar

By EDWARD J. NEIL

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The Rev. Benjamin Kuhn, O. F. M., speaker, bicyclist and honorary everything, maintains the personal approach is far more effective than television evangelism.

The portly, 52 - year - old "Happy Friar" of Siena College speaks before more than 200,000 persons a year in his schedule of dinner, breakfast and other appearances in the Northeast.

He used bicycle riding to shed the banquet - acquired poundage from his 5-foot, 11-inch frame.

Clad in a white and green Siena sweater, Roman collar and black trousers, Father Ben takes jaunts up to 35 miles on his beefed-up American bike.

While averaging more than 200 speaking engagements a year, the Franciscan priest has received honorary titles ranging from honorary Holstein bull to honorary contour (by a soil conservation group).

He says he and his fellow priests must get out and carry religion personally to the people.

"The personal force of a speaker and the power of his convictions sometimes cannot get to the audience through television," he says.

His many appearances, which he calls public relations for the 20 - year - old college he helped found, follow a basic pattern.

"I find the common denominator of the group, and then give them 50 minutes of entertainment and 10 minutes of commercial," he told a reporter.

The commercials deal with such topics as the opportunities available in America, work, leadership and salvation.

In his 20 years at Siena, Father Ben has become a campus legend. He jolted students for months by leading his pet duck about the campus on a leash.

His students remember him interrupting calculus classes to expound on his theory on defeating baldness:

"Let the side strands grow long, and comb them across the head."

This is the method he uses.

The Happy Friar also has been dubbed "the apostle of the buses," because of his fondness for transcontinental tours. Last summer, he made his 25th crossing of the continent, and reported he "found the nation in good spiritual health."

He refuses to argue religion with acquaintances during these tours on the ground that sending them literature is more effective.

Included in the literature usually is his own work, a family prayer card. Father Ben compiled a pamphlet containing most of the common prayers of the Catholic faith. More than one million have been distributed, and it is being translated into foreign languages.

Despite his numerous speaking engagements, Father Ben says one of his rules is:

"Stand up to be seen, speak up to be heard and shut up to be appreciated."

Television Now Honored By Czech Stamps

Television certainly is becoming a universally popular medium for entertainment and communication — even behind the Iron Curtain.

Concrete evidence of this popularity is revealed in the latest set of two stamps from Czechoslovak honoring its TV industry.

The 40 horuna blue and red depicts the Czech TV sending tower superimposed on a block of houses with antenas on the roofs.

The 60 h brown and green shows a family watching a TV program in their living room.

Switzerland has issued its 1957 Pro Juventute (Child Welfare) set, reports the New York Stamp Co. These stamps have been issued annually by Switzerland since 1912. The additional values on the stamps go to various child welfare agencies in that country.

Eire has issued a new commemorative issue honoring Father Luk Wadding. The 3 pence blue and 1 shilling 3 pence ruby bear a portrait of Father Wadding based on a painting by Ribera. His dates "1588 - 1657" appear above the picture. Collectors may obtain first day covers of these stamps by writing to Irish Cachet Covers, 947 East 32 St., Brooklyn 10, N. Y. The cost per cover with a complete set of stamps is 75 cents. No envelopes are necessary.

Russia Expected To Okay Parleys

PARIS, Dec. 21 (UP)—Western diplomats predicted yesterday that Russia would accept the NATO offer of a foreign ministers' conference on disarmament if only to try to slow the West's stepped-up missile arms program.

American officials were skeptical about the success of such a conference, which probably would be held early next year. The United States was going ahead full-blast with a program that envisaged an additional one billion dollars for missiles development and the arming of Western European nations with nuclear ballistic rockets.

Sources said Spain might be offered missiles also, although not a member of NATO. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles conferred with Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Madrid today on the results of the NATO conference.

Britain Agrees

Britain, while supporting the idea of talks with the Soviet, was going along with the United States on missiles armament.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government won a House of Commons vote today on its plans to establish American - supplied missile bases in Britain and its acceptance of the fact that U. S. Air Force bombers carry nuclear weapons while flying defense missions from British air bases. The vote was 289-251, a margin of 38.

Other nations, notably West Germany, Norway and Denmark were pinning their hopes more on talks with Russia in the 25-nation United Nations disarmament commission. Failing that, the possbility of a foreign minsters, conference would be explored.

Sources said President Eisenhower and Dulles during the four day NATO conference in Paris agreed only reluctantly to talks with Russia on grounds they would be futile.

BRINGING UP FATHER

DON'T FORGET WE HAVE A DATE FOR LUNCH, DEAR.

OF COURSE NOT, DARLIN'!

WHY DON'T YOU PICK ME UP AT MY OFFICE AROUND 12:30?

THAT WOULD TAKE ME OUT OF MY WAY! LET'S MEET AT THE RESTAURANT!

I'M DRIVING - AND I CAN AVOID A LOT OF TRAFFIC THAT WAY!

ALL RIGHT, DARLIN' — WHATEVER YOU SAY!

I MUST STOP IN AT YOUR OFFICE ONE DAY SOON, DEAR --- IT'S BEEN SO LONG SINCE I'VE BEEN THERE I'VE FORGOTTEN WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE

IT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE MUCH ANY MORE, MAGGIE! --THE FURNITURE IS GITTIN' PRETTY OLD-FASHIONED LOOKIN'!

SAY, THEY'VE GOT SOME GOOD-LOOKIN' FURNITURE HERE! I HAVE A GOOD MIND TO REDECORATE MY OFFICE!

OFFICE

FURNITURE

YOU'VE MADE AN EXCELLENT SELECTION, SIR! WE'LL DELIVER IT IMMEDIATELY!

I'M GLAD YOU'RE GOIN' TO TAKE MY OLD FURNITURE IN TRADE!

IT'S OUT OF STYLE, SIR -- ALL I CAN ALLOW IS $100.-

O.K.- THAT SOUNDS FAIR ENOUGH!

I CAN HARDLY WAIT UNTIL MAGGIE SEES MY NEW OFFICE! I'LL INVITE HER HERE TOMORROW!

MAGGIE! WHAT ARE YOU DOIN' HERE? WE WUZ SUPPOSED TO MEET AT THE RESTAURANT!

I HAVE A BIG SURPRISE FOR YOU, DEAR --

I FOUND A STORE WITH SOME MARVELOUS OFFICE FURNITURE! IT'S NOT NEW - BUT SEE HOW SOLID AND STURDY IT IS!! AND I GOT IT ALL FOR ONLY $500!!

TIM TYLER'S LUCK by Lyman Young and Tom Massey

THE SMOKE CLOUDS ARE STILL RISING, KAYTO—

YES. SANTO, OUR SPY, MAKE SURE WE SEE THE SIGNALS AND JOIN HIM—

SANTO HAS FOUND KING OTERRO'S WHEREABOUTS— HE WILL LEAD US TO OTERRO TONIGHT, PRINCE SARA—

OH-OH- THE SMOKE CLOUDS HAVE STOPPED!

SHAKO, MY ZEBRA, WILL CARRY YOU AND ME ACROSS THE LAKE, TIM—

IT IS DARK ENOUGH NOW TO TAKE OFF FOR THE MAINLAND, KAYTO—

SANTO WILL LEAD US TO KING OTERRO'S CAMP FOR SURPRISE ATTACK—

....AND BEFORE DAYLIGHT PRINCE SARA WILL BE KING SARA OF THE OKABEE PEOPLE—
